CITIZENS OF CANTON ARE CALLED TO ACT ON MELLETT MURDER

PETITION SENT TO DONAHEY

REVENGE SLAYER'S MOTIVE

From a Staff Correspondent.

CANTON, Ohio, July 18.—With forty eight hours gone and no sign apparent that any headway has been made in tracing the assassins of Don R. Mellett, publisher of The Canton Daily News, killed supposedly by agents of the underworld he fought unrelentingly to the day of his death, 100 prominent citizens, officers of various social and civic clubs, have been asked to meet tomorrow morning by William Kuhns, President of the Canton Chamber of Commerce, to "consider action."

Not an arrest has been made, though State, Federal and local officials are supposedly seeking clues to the identity of the slayer or slayers who fired the deadly volley from the darkness as Mellett stood at the door of his garage.

On the tongues of those met on street corners and in hotel lobbies one name is mentioned when the murder of Mellett is discussed. This name, according to old residents, has been on the lips of every Cantonian for sixteen years and more, as the "King of the Jungle," which means the ruling spirit of the underworld section of the city. Yet this man has not been called before Police Chief Lengel for examination, although other denizens of his realm have.

Asked this afternoon why he had not called this man in, Chief Lengel shrugged his shoulders and said: "We haven't a thing on him. So, if we arrested him we ourselves could be prosecuted for false arrest."

In practically every church in Canton this morning a petition was circulated repudiating the Police Department and asking for a full investigation by agents to be appointed by the Governor.

"We believe that action on your part is necessary to protect the fair name of our city, to protect the lives, property and society of our citizens and to protect the foundation of our form of government," said the petition.

Hundreds signed it and it was wired to Governor Donahey.

Revenge Motive, Says Slater.

Ora Slater, detective of renown throughout this section because of his solving of the Nesbitt bath tub murder last night and who has been retained by Prosecutor McClintock to conduct the county's investigation of the murder independently of the local police, spent most of the day in conference with McClintock, Safety Director Hexamer and Judge H. C. Pontius, Mellett's friend and legal adviser.

He made a preliminary survey of the "Jungle" district along South Cherry Avenue and of the equally tough region along Carnahan Avenue on the other side of the town. He also talked with Mrs. Mellett and other members of the family. Tonight he announced that he had definitely narrowed possible motives for the crime down to that of revenge.

"After an impartial survey I am convinced that this killing was not done out of any of the usual motives that lead to murder. By that I mean that it had nothing to do with jealousy over hidden love affairs and that it was not the result of a personal quarrel.

"The only motive left is that of revenge on the part of persons who were deeply affected by Mr. Mellett's editorials and other news comment. The people that he attacked on the pages of his newspaper were those of the underworld.

"Here in Canton and elsewhere in this State the underworld is divided generally into four classes. There are those running liquor, those selling it in speak-easies, the gamblers and the organized vice promoters. The man who shot Mellett was one of these four classes."

Awake to Real Situation.

Now that Mellett is dead this little Midwestern city has awakened to the real situation confronting it.

With Mellett alive and proclaiming in daily streamers that the roads between here and Akron or Pittsburgh were jammed with illicit liquor transports, that the police were declining to arrest known narcotic peddlers and that speak-easies frequented by women were allowed to flourish almost at the doorsteps of decent homes, a constant menace to young people, the citizens read the charges with indifference.

Even when Mellett was shot to death the first reaction was, "So they got Mellett, eh? Well, it was bound to come."

But now the better sort of Canton residents are flaring mad and are proclaiming the fact in public statements. Chief Lengel, whose resignation had been demanded by Mellett up to the time the mysterious bullet ended the young publisher's life, is retorting with statements that injure the civic pride.

"Conditions are just as bad in any other town in Ohio," is his defense.

Angered by Police Attitude.

Chief Lengel's response to the charges laid against him and the Police Department is virtually to tell the people of Canton that they are a tough lot and get what they deserve. He has made public what purports to

Busy Andrews Water Pitcher Called 'The General' in London

LONDON, July 18 (AP).—The largest cut glass pitcher at the Ritz has become known as "The General" since doing duty day and night filled with ice water in the suite occupied by Brig. Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, Chief of the Prohibition Enforcement Service of the United States.

The Ritz and most other hotels in London patronized by Americans serve ice water in their restaurants Summer and Winter, but they lack arrangements for bellboys to carry the tinkling pitchers to the rooms, as the English people have no such habit.

General Andrews reached London during one of the hottest spells in several years, so that when he requested a constant supply of ice water, the headwaiter was appealed to and that functionary unearthed the largest cut glass pitcher of its kind in the hotel. This pitcher has sometimes been used at state functions, but ordinarily it is kept in retirement.

SLAYER PREACHES TO PACKED CHURCH

HE IS INVITED TO NEW YORK

"Texas Tornado" Says He Will Preach at First Baptist Church Here Aug. 1.

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 18 (AP).—Charged with the murder of D. E. Chipps, Fort Worth lumberman, yesterday, the Rev. J. Frank Norris today preached his regular Sunday morning sermon from the text, "There is no condemnation to them that are in Christ."

Standing within fifty feet of the church study where Chipps was killed when he called to protest against certain utterances of the widely known Baptist pastor, Mr. Norris told one of the largest Sunday audiences that ever listened to him that his faith was stronger than ever.

The large First Baptist Church auditorium, which seats 6,000, was filled to the doors with many standing and several hundred outside. Before Mr. Norris started preaching a choir of 700 voices sang hymn after hymn while two pianos with relays of pianists furnished the music.

When Dr. Norris finished speaking several hundred of his congregation sauntered down to the front of the church to shake the preacher's hand as he stood before the platform. Many embraced him, and at this point Mr. Norris showed the only sign that the tragedy had affected him. He neither smiled nor nodded, but appeared to be on the verge of tears and seemed unable to speak because of emotion.

Announces New York Invitation.

Mr. Norris announced tonight that he had received an invitation to deliver a sermon from the pulpit of the First Baptist Church of New York City on the night of Aug. 1. The pastor said the invitation was a usual one and that he would accept it. His announcement was made at an open air religious service tonight, atended by many of his followers from many miles around.

The funeral of Mr. Chipps was conducted this afternoon. Mayor H. C. Meacham headed the list of honorary pallbearers. Masonic rites were used at the burial.

According to the preacher's version of the shooting, given last night, Chipps called at Norris's study and threatened to kill him. He demanded, according to the pastor's statement, that the latter desist from attacks on certain of Chipps's friends. Norris had launched an attack on Mayor H. C. Meacham for the purchase by the city of land for the opening of a street. In his church publication, The Searchlight, and in sermons Norris is said to have charged that the street opening was designed to benefit Meacham's own property. He is the owner of a large department store.

Mr. Norris said he tried to induce Chipps to leave his study, and he escorted the visitor to the door. The latter, however, returned with a threat and was apparently about to attack him when Norris, according to his statement, took a watchman's pistol from a drawer and fired at Chipps.

Chipps was shot three times. He died in an ambulance.

The morning sermon was shorter than usual, because of the communion

I. R. T. STRIKERS FAIL TO GET ARBITRATION AS SERVICE PICKS UP

Their Third Offer Rejected and Company and Transit Board Testify to Gain.

LEADERS ACCUSE METZ

To Charge of 'Fare-Rise Dodge' He Replies 'Men Who Would Say Such Things Are Liars.'

I. R. T. EXPLAINS REFUSAL

Sees New Arbitration Proposal as Move to Break Brotherhood—Picket Campaign On Today.

The striking employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company again proposed arbitration yesterday after a meeting with the Transit Commission. Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough, flatly rejected this overture, and at the same time Mr. Hedley and the Transit Commission issued figures indicating that service was steadily nearing normal.

The percentage of Interborough subway trains operated on the Lexington-Fourth Avenue line had risen to 72 per cent. of normal on Saturday, the Transit Commission reported, and on the Broadway-Seventh Avenue line it had risen to 71 per cent. When the strike was first called the percentage fell to 44 per cent. Mr. Hedley said the total number of passengers Saturday was 2,204,581, as compared with 1,819,213 on the preceding Saturday. The elevated lines maintained a normal July Sunday schedule, he added, and the subway operated at 80 per cent. of the normal Sunday schedule.

Reply to Arbitration.

Mr. Hedley, in replying to the arbitration demand of the strikers, said, "it would be the height of folly for the management to break faith with its loyal men and recognize or deal with the seceders."

"There will be no dealings of any kind, directly or indirectly, with any representative of employes of the Interborough, except through the Brotherhood of Interborough Employes," said Mr. Hedley. "The sooner all persons quit encouraging the strikers to hold out hope of any other outcome the better it will be for the public and for the strikers themselves."

The General Strike Committee of the insurgent motormen and switchmen also accused Herman A. Metz of unfairness in the meeting he held with their leaders at his Mamaroneck home on Saturday to discuss possible peace terms.

An official statement said:

"The Strike Committee of the Consolidated Railway Workers of Greater New York brands as unqualified misrepresentations the last pronouncement of the Interborough to the effect that the strikers broke off Saturday's Mamaroneck conference. After the manifestly dishonorable tactics of Mr. Metz, so-called mediator and Interborough director, in compromising the impartiality of the meeting by innuendo against one of the strike leaders as well as by anticipatory conditions, the strikers would have been justified in refusing altogether to attend the superficial increased-fare dodge of Mr. Metz. Notwithstanding these facts the committee attended, but when they refused to fall into the trap made by Mr. Metz were peremptorily dismissed."

Mr. Metz Denies Statement.

Mr. Metz at his home in Mamaroneck last night replied: "Any men who would say things like that are liars pure and simple." He said his only allusion to higher fares was to remark in passing that any advance in wages would eventually involve the Interborough's capacity to pay, and that then the fare question might likely come up for discussion. He said he told the men it had no other bearing upon what they had actually gathered to talk over Saturday. The strikers had told him at the outset, he said, that they would consider no settlement which did not bring recognition of their new union. He had answered that that killed chances of any compromise. He had explained his own function was merely to canvass both sides and to report upon possible grounds for conciliation.

Mr. Metz called preposterous the statement that the men had been

Three Greek Ex-Premiers Held in New Plot To Oust Government and Kill Pangalos

ATHENS, Greece, July 18 (AP).—Former Premiers Kafandaris, Papanastasion and Michalakopoulos have been arrested in connection with the discovery of a plot to overthrow the Government and take the life of President Pangalos. They are being transported to the Island of Naxos.

President Pangalos himself, in a proclamation issued today, made the allegation that a conspiracy was developing to overthrow the Government and take his life. He said there was evidence that Venizelist leaders had joined with General Plastiras, who is supposed to have been behind the recent unsuccessful revolutionary movement, with a view to carrying out a new revolt.

The President complained of the general Venizelist opposition to his efforts to establish normal conditions, but declared he would continue his work of reconstruction and take measures against those who attempted to disturb law and order.

It was also announced that in addition to the three former Premiers, who are described as "Democratic leaders," several other politicians and newspaper men have been arrested. All are charged with conspiring against the present régime.

Athanasios Eutaxis, former Minister of Finance, has undertaken the task of forming a Cabinet. President Pangalos has been endeavoring for some time to find a statesman capable of organizing a new Government.

M. Kafandaris was Premier of Greece just before that country became a republic, and M. Papanastasion assumed power as first Premier of the republic.

In June, 1925, General Pangalos, the present President and Dictator, overthrew the existing Michalakopoulos Ministry and installed himself as Premier. Among the Dictator's first acts was to banish General Plastiras, who was suspected of organizing a revolt.

A Communist plot was discovered in February of this year, and a few days later word reached London that M. Papanastasion and other prominent Greeks were under arrest and were to be deported. In April soldiers mutinied in Saloniki. This rising was crushed and it was reported that General Plastiras was involved.

When Pangalos was elected President early in the present year he ordered the liberation of all political prisoners and the return of exiles, among whom was Plastiras.

RUINS YIELD PROOF OF BIBLICAL RECORDS

Dr. M. G. Kyle Says Wreckage of Kirjath-Sepher Reveals History of Canaanites.

CITY BURNED FIVE TIMES

First-hand details of the uncovering of the ruins of the biblical city of Kirjath-Sepher, founded by the Canaanites 2000 B. C. and destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar in 600 B. C., were brought to New York yesterday by Professor Melvin G. Kyle, President of the Xenia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, who returned on the Holland-America liner Volendam from Palestine.

He said that the discoveries made in the ruins of the ancient city formed the most complete and continuous history of the Canaanites from 2000 B. C. to their conquest by the Israelites in 1300 B. C., and of the latter people until the Exodus in 600 B. C., when the inhabitants were driven out by the Assyrian King. It confirmed the historical events narrated in the Bible, Professor Kyle said, and also other records that had been found previously of the history of the cities of Judah. The different ages were traced by pottery, implements and utensils of various kinds that were used by the Canaanites and Israelites in their daily lives.

Found Underground City.

Dr. Kyle said that the expedition which he led also found a subterranean city dug forty to fifty feet down in the shale rock under Kirjath-Sepher, where the water supply and stores were kept in case of siege, as was the custom in all of the old cities in the Near East. The members of the expedition were able to enter three or four of the rooms that had been excavated, but it was difficult to penetrate very far because the passages were choked with the débris accumulated in centuries. Dr. Kyle said he hopes to dig further in the underground city when he makes his second visit to Palestine.

Telling of the work done by the expedition since last February, Dr. Kyle said that there were from sixty-five to eighty-five native laborers engaged in the digging at Kirjath-Sepher, and that the whole cost of the excavation was not more than $2,500.

"The old biblical city which is spoken of in the Book of Joshua," he said, "is called Tell-Beit-Mirsam at the present time by the Arabs and lies thirteen miles southwest of Hebron, or thirty-seven miles by the road from Jerusalem. It is also alluded to in the Scriptures as 'the walled city,' and with the exception of the parapets, which have fallen down, it stands today as a fine example of what the walled cities of the Bible were like.

Burned Down Five Times.

"Kirjath-Sepher was burned down five times between its foundation in 2000 B. C. and its final destruction. The layers of ashes were found with five to six feet of débris between them, which marked the times the city was fired. The first was in 1800 B. C., by whom is not known; the second was in 1300 B. C., by Othniel, in the time of Joshua, and the third fifty years later, but it is uncertain by whom it was fired. The fourth burning of the city occurred in 900 B. C., by Shishak, in the time of Jeroboam, and the fifth by Nebuchadnezzar in 600 B. C.

"The only ashes we could find of the last destruction of the city by fire were at the East Gate, because the heavy rains of the intervening centuries had washed them away."

"What do you think the population of Kirjath-Sepher was in the days of its occupation by the Canaanites?" Dr. Kyle was asked.

"Judging from the houses we have uncovered," he replied, "I should estimate the number to have been about 5,000 in time of peace, which might be increased to 10,000 or 15,000 in time of war, when the people came in from the surrounding country for shelter. We could find only two streets, and they were not more than three to four feet wide. The majority of the houses led from one into the other. The two wells mentioned in Joshua, the upper and the lower, were intact.

"We drew water from the lower spring for drinking purposes all the time the excavation work was in progress. It was interesting to discover that the hard stone curb which goes around the wells in Palestine had been

TEMPERATURE DROPS FAST

Before two successive thunderstorms, the first of which began about 6:30 o'clock last evening, had broken the day's heat and driven nearly a million pleasure-seekers from New York's beaches, three men had been drowned, the body of another drowned on Saturday had been recovered and six persons had been saved from death in the water. Five of the rescues were made by lifeguards.

The heat and the storms both took their toll in accidents. A man seeking relief from the heat fell from a window ledge of his apartment and last night was in Roosevelt Hospital, dying of his injuries. Three persons were hurt in an automobile crash in Manhattan and three firemen in Jersey City were injured when their truck skidded on a wet roadway.

Lightning struck the top floor of a seven-story loft building at 48 Canal Street, occupied by Slaubbach Brothers, dry goods wholesalers; the top floor of a four-story building at 247 Broome Street, ccupied by the Fire Underwriters' Association, and the second floor of a six-story building at 402 East Eighth Street, occupied by Morris Hecht. In each case the damage was trifling.

In Brooklyn lightning struck several buildings, but not great damage, although several alarms of fire were sounded. A thirty-foot chimney on Public School 103 at Arlington Avenue and Linwood Street was struck and cracked. The police roped off a section of Arlington Avenue.

Coney Island Darkened.

There was a crowd estimated at 700,000 persons at Coney Island and proportionate numbers at other metropolitan beaches when soon after 6 o'clock last evening the sky darkened and a wind which reached a maximum velocity of sixty miles an hour sprang up. Big drops of rain began to patter down at 6:30 o'clock. The first thunderclap came four minutes afterward.

The throngs at the beaches immediately started for their homes and consequently the subway, elevated and trolley terminals were soon congested. The storm clouds had so darkened the sky above Coney Island that the electric lights were turned on there. Police Captain Gillan called out his reserves to handle the throngs at the transit terminals.

There were about 125,000 persons at Midland and South Beaches, Staten Island, who started hurriedly for their homes when the storm broke. Both the South Beach and Tottenville divisions of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway became congested, and the municipal ferry house at St. George soon became filled to capacity and there were long lines of would-be ferryboat passengers outside in the rain.

There was also great congestion of automobile traffic on Staten Island, and although extra ferryboats were put on to care for the overflow many motorists had long waits before reaching Brooklyn or Manhattan. The heaviest traffic from Staten Island does not usually begin until 8 o'clock in the evening and the ferry lines were not prepared immediately to cope with the earlier increase caused by the storm.

Damage by Storm in Queens.

The storm did damage in various sections of Queens, and automobile and trolley traffic was badly tied up because of it in the Richmond Hill and Jamaica districts. At several points along Jamaica Avenue between these two points the street was practically impassable and cellars were flooded by the failure of sewers to carry off the tremendous amount of water which fell in a short time.

The United States Weather Bureau recorded a rainfall of 1.12 inches in the two hours succeeding the breaking of the first storm. The second storm, which began at 7:45 o'clock and lasted until after 9 o'clock, was punctuated

BORAH URGES NEED OF A PARTY LOYAL TO CONSTITUTION

Senator Declares Enforcement of the 18th Amendment Has Never Been Tried.

CALLS FOR POSITIVE STAND

If Neither Party Will Take It, He Says, the People Should Form One That Will.

ASSAILS WET REFERENDUMS

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 18.—Senator Borah of Idaho told the Protestant Ministers' Association here today that enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment was the only way to take prohibition out of politics. Attempts to repeal the dry law, he declared, were in reality attacks upon the Constitution, which meant nullification, and this, he asserted, was the greatest present danger to the Republic.

The First Presbyterian Church, in which the Idaho Senator spoke, was jammed to capacity, and a large crowd outside the building listened to the speech by the aid of amplifiers. It was in this church that Woodrow Wilson's father preached, and Mr. Borah spoke from the same pulpit.

Asserting that if neither of the present parties would take a positive stand on the prohibition issue, "the people should organize another party which will be loyal to the Constitution of the United States," Mr. Borah declared that the wet referendums proposed in several States, and especially the plan proposed in New York, were wrong in principle. They did not ask the people to express themselves in favor of amending the Constitution, he said, but "in favor of the States respectively construing and enforcing the Constitution of the United States."

Defines the Liquor Issue.

In his address to the clergymen Senator Borah said:

When the debate on the liquor problem opened a few months ago, the question did not seem particularly important. It did not appear to be either interesting or significant. The discussion was over the modification of the Volstead act, a little higher percentage of alcohol, but always within the Constitution, and therefore always non-intoxicating.

The controversy had not proceeded far, however, until the most important issue that a self-governing people can ever be called upon to consider forged its way to the front. Instead of a modification of the Volstead act, we now have the nullification of the Constitution. Instead of non-intoxicating liquor within the Constitution, the demand is now for intoxicating liquor in defiance of the Constitution. Instead of proceeding in an orderly way, and as pointed out by the Constitution, to amend the Constitution, appeal is made to the principle of "direct action."

Instead of amending the Constitution so as to turn this matter back to the States, if it is thought wise to do so, it is seriously proposed that the States shall be given control, regardless of the Constitution—the Federal Government, like Saul of old, consenting to the crime. The same leaders who asked in the beginning for modification within the Constitution now declare that they will have intoxicating liquor, Constitution or no Constitution, Volstead act or no Volstead act.

This is the issue that we now have to meet. It may be that it is within the power of the liquor interests to amend the Constitution—a thing which it is well within their rights to undertake and within possibilities to achieve. But I take the privilege of asserting, and without fear of the future, that it is not within the power of the liquor interests to nullify the Constitution.

Holds Constitution Alterable.

Webster once declared: "Let it be remembered that the Constitution of the United States is not unalterable. It is to continue in its present form no longer than the people who established it shall choose to continue it. If they shall become convinced that they have made an injudicious or inexpedient partition and dis-

Smith to Preserve in Museum Pike Sent to Him by Coolidge

Special to The New York Times.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 18.—Governor Smith at breakfast today did not eat the three-pound pike President Coolidge sent him as he had planned. Instead he decided to have the fish stuffed by the State taxidermist and placed in the State Museum at Albany. Accordingly the fish was sent to Albany last night for treatment.

Governor Smith said he would have the fish labeled as a fine specimen of New York pike caught by President Coolidge in Lake Osgood, July 17, 1926.

COOLIDGE UNSHAKEN IN HIS DEBT POLICY

CHEER COOLIDGE AND SMITH

Crowds Greet Both President and Governor as They Attend Churches in Saranac.

Special to The New York Times.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 18.—While no official comment was authorized by President Coolidge today upon the fall of the French government and the propaganda for cancellation of the French debt, it is known that his policy toward the settlement of the foreign war debts has not been affected by the situation in France and the attempts to arouse sentiment in this country in favor of cancellation.

President Coolidge announced his policy not to annul these debts in his last message to Congress and since then has expressed himself as of the opinion that they must be settled as an obligation to the American taxpayers. He has not been moved by a recurrence of the demands of Americans for cancellation that have reached him recently and apparently intends insisting upon France ratifying the agreement reached by Ambassador Berenger.

Instead of showing any signs of weakening President Coolidge, it is known, had a long talk with Secretary Mellon before he left Washington, at which he stated his views in the strongest terms. He sent to Mr. Mellon the letter of Frederick W. Peabody of Massachusetts, which pleaded for cancellation, and the reply recently authorized by Secretary Mellon actually stated Mr. Coolidge's views.

In Accord With Mellon Statement.

President Coolidge, according to his advisers here, is in entire accord with the statement made by his Secretary of the Treasury, which asserted that the United States had gone to the limit of generosity in dealing with France. The belief here is that the present agitation for cancellation will have anything but the desired effect upon the American public.

If Senator Borah follows his plans and makes a number of speeches in different parts of the country in an attempt to arouse the public not only against the French debt terms but the attitude of the Administration on other issues, the fears of the Administration are that Congress will regret the settlement before it and demand more rigorous terms.

President Coolidge is hopeful that the political situation in France will be composed during the Summer and a Government established that will accept the American policy and proceed to ratification of the agreement. If this is done in advance of the assembling of Congress confidence is felt that Congress will readily adopt the present plan and remove the settlement from the sphere of American politics. The opinion prevails here that it is not a political subject but economic and ought not to figure as political in this country or in France.

The visit of Secretary Mellon to France, which is expected to bring him in contact with French statesmen, will it is felt, lead to a change in France on the debt program. That is the hope of President Coolidge, who wishes to be helpful to France and aid her in the restoration of her finances.

It was reiterated today that American bankers would not be encouraged by the Government to make private loans to France until the situation there became less antagonistic to the settlement of the war debt to this country.

Coolidge and Smith at Churches.

President and Mrs. Coolidge and Governor and Mrs. Smith and party attended church today in Saranac. The roads leading there, twelve miles distant were filled with automobilists

Ex-Premier Plans a Combination Ministry to Include All Parties.

HIS SUCCESS IS DOUBTED

BRIAND GOES A-FISHING

But Retiring Premier Is Believed to Be Still Working Actively in the Situation.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, July 18.—President Doumergue sent for Edouard Herriot at noon today and asked him to form a new Government. He accepted.

But now, twelve hours later, the unhappy Cartel chief finds that the bed he made for himself when he engineered the defeat of the Briand-Caillaux Government last night is full of thorns instead of the petals his roseate imagination foresaw.

The new Herriot Cabinet consists so far of M. Herriot. None of the other leaders of the Chamber or Senate show any enthusiasm about linking their political fortunes with him.

When M. Herriot awoke this morning a note was handed to him from M. Briand saying that the ousted Premier had gone fishing down in Normandy and requested particularly not to be disturbed. Of course M. Briand knew the note was well directed because he had "advised" President Doumergue last night to let M. Herriot see what he could do with his victory.

Plans Coalition Cabinet.

At the Elysée M. Herriot explained to President Doumergue that he hoped to form a Cabinet of the large coalition, including if possible Socialists on the left and Poincarists headed by M. Marin on the right. President Doumergue replied that he thought such a Cabinet would obtain a large vote in the Chamber.

Full of hope, M. Herriot set about his task. He wrote a letter to Léon Blum, head of the Socialists, inviting his party to join the new Government, and a letter to M. Marin asking him to come and see him to discuss the formation of the new Government.

The result of his efforts tonight is that the Socialists in a meeting marked by an excellent pugilistic contest replied to M. Herriot that they would take part in any Cabinet which pledged itself to a capital levy. M. Marin has informed M. Herriot that although his group found him very convenient in getting M. Caillaux's scalp yesterday he did not wish to join a Herriot Government.

Of course, M. Herriot cannot get a capital levy either through the Chamber or Senate, and therefore the Socialists' letter was a refusal.

Questioned tonight, M. Marin said, with respect to a Herriot Government, that he preferred to remain in opposition.

"It is plain enough that a Coalition Cabinet is not possible under M. Herriot," he said.

Briand Believed Still Active.

The net result of the day obliges one to conclude that M. Briand's fingers are still in the pie and that M. Herriot's dreams for saving the franc are doomed. The issue seems to be with respect to him whether he will tomorrow confess failure or form a Left Government doomed to defeat within ten days.

At 9:30 tonight M. Herriot went to the Elysée and remained with President Doumergue an hour. It was rumored that he had gone to report failure, but it is understood President Doumergue said that one who had so brilliantly defended the abilities of Parliament was by the nature of things designed to prove that Parliament was as good as he said. And so it was announced that M. Herriot would try again tomorrow and return to the Elysée after luncheon.

Were it not believed that the designation of M. Herriot was only to clarify the situation by his failure one could scarcely understand developments.

M. Herriot's press today presents him as a man who led a fight to show that France would brook no interference into the rights of Parliament, but this picture of the savior of Parliament does not stand scrutiny. The vote of 288 against M. Briand yesterday included 100 Right votes which were not at all concerned with the sanctity of Parliament, but were aimed to "get" M. Caillaux. In fact, M. Marin stated that the Poincarists might give full powers to someone, but not to M. Caillaux.

From this angle it is seen that there were in the Chamber 243 votes, which were cast for the Government, plus 100 Right votes that really were not for M. Herriot's plea.

Furthermore, M. Herriott is head of the Radical Socialist Party, and of the deputies of that group forty-eight voted with him and sixty for the Government, or against him.

Majority, Like Others, Chance One.

Therefore, there was no noble declaration by the Chamber about conserving its rights at the clarion call of the President of the Chamber. Indeed, it might be said that M. Herriot, when he said he spoke as Pres-

American Battles Tartar Raiders All Day, Till Cavalry Saves Near East Relief Ranch

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 18 (AP).—An experience recalling Wild West days, in which two American Near East Relief workers, Paul H. Phillips of Seattle, Wash., and his wife, had a narrow escape in a fight with raiding Tartars in Russian Armenia, is related in messages from Erivan to the Near East Relief offices in Constantinople.

Phillips, who superintends the relief organization's model ranch at Karakalla, was aroused one morning by excited orphan employes crying that Tartar tribesmen from Azerbaijan had crossed the mountains in the night and were raiding the ranch.

Phillips, who had often encountered cattle thieves in the American Northwest, picked up his rifle and hurried out, to see the Tartars driving away prize Swiss stock imported by the Americans to improve Armenia's breed. Thinking to frighten the thieves, he opened fire, but the raiders, numbering from twenty to thirty, made a stand behind the rocks and returned the fire.

Alone with his wife and a few orphans, Phillips realized that they were outnumbered and that darkness might prove disastrous. He therefore dispatched the oldest boy on horseback to the nearest American relief post, eighteen miles away.

In the subsequent fighting Mrs. Phillips was severely beaten by a tribesman. Throughout the day the sniping and stalking continued, and when it was growing dusk the situation became desperate.

Suddenly, another relief worker, William Cronin of New Haven, Conn., appeared over the hills with a company of cavalry. They rushed down upon the tribesmen, shooting some of them and clearing the American ranch of the invaders.

Tex Rickard to Wed Maxine Hodges, Actress; Tells of Troth in Denying Secret Marriage

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Tex Rickard, the boxing promoter, is engaged to marry Miss Maxine Hodges, a young actress, it became known today.

Rickard is 56 and a widower, his first wife having died last Fall.

Rickard admitted the engagement while denying a telegraphic report from New York to the effect that he and Miss Hodges already were married.

"That report has been broadcast and rebroadcast since last February," said Rickard, who is in Chicago negotiating for a Tunney-Dempsey championship fight, probably in this city.

The bride-to-be, he said, is Miss Maxine Hodges. Dispatches said that she is 16. Rickard declared the girl, formerly an actress, is 25. She last appeared, he said, in "On Trial."

"Miss Hodges is in Chicago now," said Mr. Rickard. "She is visiting relatives and we have an engagement together tomorrow.

"She will be 25 years old on her next birthday. I have known her for eight years. We have been engaged and intend to marry in the Fall. This ridiculous rumor of a secret marriage has followed me since last Winter."

Miss Hodges appeared in the presentations of a stock company during the early part of her career on the stage, and later she entered vaudeville, dancing and delivering a monologue. Later she was a member of the cast of "On Trial," appearing in that play for more than a season.

dent of the Chamber and on behalf of the Chamber, deceived himself.

As with every other majority ever found in this Chamber, yesterday's majority was a majority of chance. There were Communists, Socialists and half of the Radicals against the full-power project and there were 100 Nationalist Deputies against M. Caillaux. It was a good negative majority. It was a worthless majority for positive purposes.

Many names are mentioned as possible new Premiers, but the situation tonight remains very clouded. It is evident that it is only some fortunate combinaton which can unite the majority. There is talk of Albert Sarraut as Premier with M. Bokanowski as Finance Minister and M. Herriot in the Quai d'Orsay.

There is talk of André Tardieu, whose chances seem small.

M. Poincaré returned to town this evening from his country home and it is understood that he and M. Briand will meet tomorrow afternoon. When these two master politicians get together something may result. The last time they cooperated a dark horse was elected to the Elysée instead of the candidate of the Left bloc.

The press today generally appeals for haste in solving the crisis, realizing that there may be a tremendous fall in the franc if almost immediate steps are not taken. It is a secret for no one that the legal limit of advances by the Bank of France to the Government has been almost reached and that at least 2,000,000,000 extra francs will be needed by the Government in August. The Government has left only a small manoeuvre fund to protect the franc on the exchange market and there is danger that a further display of lack of confidence will result in an additional flight of French capital.

Dissolution Talk in Paris.

There is considerable talk in Paris tonight of the possibilities of dissolution of the Chamber. The Chamber could be dissolved by the President of the republic with the consent of the Senate. There is no doubt about the Senate's consent and M. Briand himself thinks the country should be called on to express its opinion of the present Chamber which if it coincided with the opinion of M. Briand would result in a great change at the Palais Bourbon.

However, President Doumergue has not yet reached a decision on the matter. He wishes to try the present Chamber a little while longer. Of course, the urgent need for financial laws militates against dissolving the Chamber now. It will therefore in all probability be allowed to continue for the time being.

Perhaps the experienced politician who sits in the Elysée sometimes ponders on the fate of his predecessor. In the last elections President Millerand went into the campaign on the side of the Right and when the Left won it put him out. Now if President Doumergue dissolved the Chamber, which has a Left majority, it would obviously be for the purpose of altering that majority and if there were a Left victory he might find himself facing the troubles which cut short M. Millerand's tenure of office.

The Poincaré group in the Chamber publishes its financial program, which in the event of M. Poincaré becoming Finance Minister would logically be the basis of the country's financial policy. This statement declares not only against the Washington debt settlement but against the London accord. It is interesting to note that among the leaders being considered tonight, M. Briand is the only one committed to the Berenger treaty. Mm. Poincaré, Tardieu, Herriot, Franklin-Bouillon and Blum have all gone on record against it. But who knows? Strange things happen in the Palais Bourbon.

If the opinion expressed by the papers of all parties is any criterion a Herriot Government would be in a hopeless position. While the Nationalist press applauds the fall of M. Caillaux it rises in wrath against M. Herriot.

The Intransigeant says its imagination fails before the effort to understand how reasonable human beings could have taken the action the Chamber took last night.

The Ere Neuvelle, which hitherto had always supported M. Herriot, says that if the franc is to be saved full powers must be given to some Government.

The Volonté declares that if President Doumergue does not dissolve the Chamber the dollar will go to 100 francs and adds:

"All France wants this dissolution and if the President of the republic remains deaf to the clamor which surges from all classes of society and from every corner of the country let him guard against the tempest whose swelling waves may sweep up to the doors of the Elysée."

The Temps says:

"The Chamber only too often has shown its power of destruction. It is time it showed some constructive power. Yesterday it demanded to retain all its rights. Well, now what is it going to do with them?"

GERMANS FEAR FOR FRANC.

Foresee, if It Collapses, Disastrous Effect on Teuton Interests.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 18.—The fall of the Briand-Caillaux Cabinet inspires profound pessimism in Germany. In official quarters as well as in the press the French Chamber's action, which is regarded here as motivated by exaggerated dread of a dictatorship, is taken to mean rejection of the Mellon-Berenger agreement and probably of the Anglo-French accord as well and the consequent complete collapse of the franc.

And while Germans manifest a certain amount of malicious satisfaction with their erstwhile enemy's financial troubles they are too practical not to appreciate the harmful effect of a French currency catastrophe on their own business interests.

Nobody in Berlin ventures to prophesy what is going to happen in Paris. Dr. Stresemann's personal organ, The Taegliche Rundschau, observes:

"Only one thing seems certain: the franc will make Briand's fall the occasion for continuing its own fall."

Attributing the present crisis to political weakness Georg Bernhard, Germany's foremost Liberal publicist, declares in the Vossische Zeitung that France, had she adopted simultaneously all the economic measures necessary, could have stabilized her currency without touching a single gold franc in the Bank of France reserve, and adds:

"The franc's further depreciation will be a misfortune not for France alone. German trade will be affected in like measure. No one European country can be plunged into economic misery without steeping the whole Continent in misery."

Under the heading "Fears a Dictator," Germania, the Catholic organ of Chancellor Marx, remarks:

"The political situation in France assumes a threatening character which cannot fail to have a catastrophic reaction on the fate of the franc. The absolutely tragic outcome of yesterday's Chamber debate demonstrates that France is not yet ready to tackle successfully the great problem of stabilization. Caillaux's agreement with Churchill is endangered and the settlement with Washington has still less prospect of winning the Chamber's approval. And with this stands or falls a foreign loan to France."

Recalling the plenary powers conferred by the Reichstag on the German Government for stabilizing the mark in 1923, German opinion severely censures the French Deputies for their refusal to do as much for M. Briand and his Finance Minister. Thus the Boersen Courier writes:

"What happened in France yesterday was not an ordinary Cabinet crisis but a panic—a nervous breakdown and loss of judgment amounting to an outburst of fear. The origin of this fear is not to be found in France alone, for it arises from that malady called dictatorship hysteria. The Chamber feared not the man Caillaux but the dictatorial powers he demanded. What a silly misconception!

"With the defeat of his measure for debt settlements, at least the Washington accord also falls. Neither Poincaré nor any one allied with him will carry out the agreement with America. Herriot or Léon Blum will not dare to take the responsibility for the inevitable social distress created by a basic economic purge. Rudderless, France drives before the growing storm."

The reactionary Tag says Poincaré as dictator would fulfill the hopes of those who want inflation continued, and it adds:

"French dislike of Anglo-Saxon financial subjugation is understandable, but why has France since 1919 pursued a policy necessarily leading to the present dilemma? For Germany the outlook is by no means pleasant—a shift toward Poincaré would bring friction on the Rhine, trouble at Geneva and large-scale dumping in the trade field."

The Deutsche Allegemeine Zeitung declares that the Anglo-French debt compact shows that neither England nor France believes in the possibility of Germany's fulfillment of the Dawes plan.

WASHINGTON STILL HOPEFUL.

French Cabinet's Fall Viewed as Merely Delaying Debt Ratification.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—That the fall of the Briand Ministry will merely mean delay in ratification of the American and British debt compacts and in the adoption of the basic principles of the plan of the French experts for the reorganization of France's finances, rather than complete abandonment of the whole program, was the opinion expressed here today.

The point was made that the French political and financial leaders must now be fully aware that no country or foreign private financial interests could float loans or establish banking credits for France to support the value of the franc under the present political conditions in that country, or unless a permanent Government was obtained and a sound program of fiscal reform adopted.

Italy and Belgium have been compelled to give extraordinary powers to their Governments to handle their financial affairs and there are many here who believe that, despite the repeated delays, France will find that she must follow the same course.

In this connection it was pointed out that the situation of the French Treasury was very serious, with large obligations to be met and little money on hand to satisfy them, unless the legal limit of inflation was increased by the French Parliament, or arbitrarily exceeded by the Bank of France. This situation is made even more acute because of the unwillingness, now generally admitted, of any foreign country to extend, under present political conditions, further loans to France with which to meet her obligations.

Just what course a Cabinet headed by Herriot, if he succeeds in forming one, could follow except to give consideration to some program along the lines of that advocated by the financial experts under the recent Briand Ministry, which included ratification of the American and French debt compacts, was a question which observers here found it difficult to answer. The opinion is that France, temporarily, at least, needs substantial outside aid from the United States and Great Britain, and if credits and loans are banned until the desired reforms are put into effect in France, there appears to be no way for that country to get the assistance except to vote the required reforms.

A more urgent demand on the part of the people of France for a permanent Government and sound financial reform is expected when the rapid decline in the value of the franc becomes fully reflected in the rising cost of living. Adjustment upward of living costs has not yet been sharp, but it is inevitable with the fall in the value of the franc and will first be felt by the population in the cities.

BLAMES FRANC CRISIS ON US.

London Paper Says It Is Consequence of American Debt Policy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—The fall of the French franc to 199¾ to the pound sterling and the collapse of Premier Briand's Ministry, says The Daily Mail, are the consequences of the burden of the American war debt which overhangs Europe and is a fruitful cause of economic and financial disaster. It must be something of a shock to many Americans who cross to this side of the Atlantic to find that the common view of the letters U. S. throughout Europe is that they stand for Uncle Shylock.

"There would have been none of this miserable debt-collecting business which is causing so much harm in France and Italy if the United States had listened to the proposals made in Lord Balfour's note and agreed to general cancellation of war debts."

In black type on another page The Daily Mail publishes some "cold facts." It says the British debt to the United States is £935,753,000 while the Allies' debt to Britain amounts to £2,062,450,000.

"Of the £935,000,000 which Britain is now repaying the United States at the rate of over £37,000,000 a year every penny was spent in buying American goods. The prices [which were high] were fixed by the American Government. Income tax and other taxes were collected on those prices and had to be paid by the British. The profits on the goods went into American pockets. A British proposal to repay American goods with British goods was rejected.

"The American loss of life in action in the war was 40,464. The British loss was 908,000 in the army. Eight hundred thousand British casualties were incurred in 1917-1918 in the period when the United States was in the war but not actively fighting.

"The British Government in 1922 proposed to the United States to cancel all war debts. The United States declined."

Foresee, if It Collapses, Disastrous Effect on Teuton Economics.

BERLIN, July 18 (AP).—The German press for the most part is favorable to M. Caillaux in the French crisis. Pessimism is expressed regarding the future of French currency, and disastrous effects on German economics are foreseen.

The Tägliche Rundschau says:

"M. Caillaux's plan for a financial dictatorship was justified, for we know from experience that in such a situation Parliament is bound to fail. Although the Briand-Caillaux Cabinet was founded on the Parliamentary Left, it was unable to gain the support of this Parliamentary Left for its financial policy."

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung criticizes the French Chamber for lack of judgment, which it predicts is sure to lead to bitter consequences.

"The tragic outcome of Saturday's session in the Chamber," says Germania, "proves that France is not yet prepared to stabilize the franc."

Georg Bernard in the Vossiche Zeitung compares the rejection of the Caillaux plan to the first unsuccessful attempt of Germany to stabilize the mark. He predicts a further slump in the franc, which would be likely to involve Germany's economics.

On the other hand, Voorwärts interprets M. Herriot's attitude as "intervention in favor of Parliamentary rights."

WAR MINISTER GETS SHOCK.

Review in His Honor in Rhineland Is Cancelled as He Loses Office.

MAINZ, Germany, July 18 (AP).—General Guillaumat, on a tour of inspection of the French troops of occupation in the Rhineland, retired last night Minister of War and awoke this morning just plain General of Division.

The instability of the position of Cabinet Ministers in France was never better exemplified than today when a big review of the troops fixed for 11 o'clock in the morning and a luncheon at Coblenz to be given by M. Tirard, President of the International Rhineland Commission, in honor of the Minister of War, were countermanded, owing to the fact that there was no longer a Minister of War in the Rhineland.

PARIS, July 18.—There are 13,000 jobs going begging in France. This paradoxical situation in the face of the nation's worst financial crisis is mentioned by many as proof of the fundamental soundness of the economic position.

On July 10 there were only 369 persons receiving unemployment allowances in all France.

The Ministry of Labor reports the number of unfilled jobs rising rapidly. A year ago there were 10,000 vacancies.

There has been practically no unemployment in France for five years, clerical labor being the only kind for which the demand does not exceed the supply.

MEXICO CITY, July 18.—Mexican business men and the public are awaiting the effects of the proposed boycott by the Catholics, which is expected to cause serious difficulty to business in general, owing to the strong Catholic feeling manifested by the Mexicans, 90 per cent. of whom are members of the Church.

That the Catholics are taking the question seriously has been shown by a delegation of Catholic women of the richest social circles, who visited THE NEW YORK TIMES office, saying that they would continue the boycott until the anti-Catholic laws are withdrawn, and declared that no matter what sacrifices they were forced to undergo they would sustain their pledges. One of the most prominent women added that she had advised her friends that she would not be "at home" until the question was settled and would not attend any diplomatic functions here.

Another prominent woman declared she had given an order in her own home to cut down expenses until she was barely living, as she was anxious to do her part in helping the Church. All forms of luxuries are tabooed.

Observers carefully watching the meeting place of prominent society women in a church parlor maintained that the company in this parlor on five evenings a week is a roster of society in Mexico City.

Archbishop Mora del Rio is preparing a document which will be read to the faithful on Sunday, July 25, in all the churches in the republic. This document will advise the Catholics how they may maintain the boycott and will recommend that Catholics observe the articles of the Constitution to prevent friction with the Government officials. The Archbishop has reported that Catholics in the Southern States of Tabasco and Chiapas, are advocating stronger measures, but the Church dignitaries are warning the faithful to observe the laws, saying that the power of prayer is much stronger than the mere acts of man.

Families Alarmed as Government Lacks Schools—Free Education for Poor Also to Cease.

MEXICO CITY, July 18.—Obeying the recent anti-religion decrees all colleges in Mexico City where teachers are members of religious orders will be closed on Aug. 1. Two colleges under the direction of religious of the Dominican Order will be closed and 800 students forced to leave. The schools taught by the Teresians, the Jesuits and the Christian Brothers will also close. Many families are greatly alarmed over the lack of education for the pupils who attended the Catholic schools, as the school facilities of the Government are very limited and plans made by the Department of Education to provide a number of schools are still on paper, but the building of them is problematical. Until the number of schools is largely increased, thousands of Mexican children will be forced to forego any education.

The Carmelitas, Capuchines, Dominicans and Benedictines have complied with the law and have been dissolved. Each order maintained a private school for families who paid for the education of their children and at the same time maintained free schools for the poorer classes throughout the entire republic. A system of private pay schools with free schools where the same lessons were taught has been conducted by the religious orders. Owing to the provision of the Constitution which prohibits the existence of religious communities, all religious orders which provided teachers are leaving Mexico.

Catholics here complain that there are no teachers of Mexican birth who are sufficiently instructed to take over the classes which formerly were directed by the religious orders.

BERLIN, July 18.—The city of Caub in the Palatinate has invited President von Hindenburg to be buried there. The Municipal Council is already discussing plans for building a colossal "Tomb of Honor" which will serve alike as the Marshal's grave and monument.

Strongly supporting the movement, the important Cologne Volkszeitung writes:

"Nobody can say that it is not tactful to make a living individual the subject of a discussion about himself dead. There are many pious and enlightened men who arrange for their burying place during their lifetimes so as to spare their families trouble and perhaps avoid sordid disputes over the open coffin."

What President von Hindenburg thinks about the proposition has not been disclosed.

ROBBERS GET $4,000 AT ICE CREAM PLANT

Four Armed Men Hold Up Three Employes as They Are Putting Day's Receipts in Safe.

Four armed men held up the superintendent and two other employes of the Hydrox Ice Cream Company plant at Nelson Avenue and Van Dam Street, Long Island City, and escaped with $4,000 last night.

U. R. Stewart, the superintendent, and the other employes were preparing to put the money, collected by drivers during the day, in the safe in the first floor office when the robbers burst in. While three intruders threatened the employes with pistols, the fourth seized the money.

Warning the victims to make no outcry, the men hurried from the building, jumped into an automobile waiting in the rain with a fifth man at the wheel, and were driven away. Stewart notified detectives of the Hunters Point station and a search for the thieves was started.

CITIZENS OF CANTON TO ACT ON MURDER

be a statistical record of arrests. There were 18,000 in Canton during 1925, according to these figures, and 9,617 so far in 1926.

In other words, there was one arrest for about every six citizens of the city last year. While more than half of these, 10,853, were for traffic law violations, there remained 2,240 for drunkenness, 640 for violating the prohibition law, 494 for gambling, 18 for maintaining disorderly houses and 56 for selling narcotics.

Looking back over Mellett's record, it is seen that directly as a result of his crusading a crooked Director of Public Safety landed in the penitentiary, as did two bootleggers associated with him; that a Mayor of Canton was removed from office; that when the police asserted there was no "dope ring" in Canton, Mellett went to the Federal authorities in Cleveland and two days later three Canton narcotic peddlers were actually arrested and pleaded guilty.

A tour down South Cherry Avenue and into the "Jungle" reveals even in daylight streets of distasteful aspect. There are rows of "barber shops," Greek "restaurants" and "hotels" which the residents of Canton point out by more applicable names. In front of shed-like houses one sees expensive closed cars. There is a similar section on the other side of the town near the steel mills.

While the root of evil is traced to the "Jungle," the branches have grown to take in, at various times, the entire political structure of the Municipal Government. And here it is possible to be specific, because many of the outgrowths are a matter of court record and are familiar to most of the residents of Stark County.

Conditions Mellett Attacked.

The conditions which Mellett sought to eliminate first arose in 1921, soon after the appointment by Mayor C. C. Curtis of his brother, E. E. Curtis, to the post of Safety Director. E. E. Curtis appointed Lengel, then a desk lieutenant, to be Chief of Police, but took over the Chief's work himself, assigning patrolmen to their beats, literally running the department and participating in liquor and vice raids.

In a few months rumors were rampant that the Safety Director in his supposedly offensive dealings against the bootleggers was making financial profit for himself. Prosecutor C. E. McClintock instituted a Grand Jury investigation of the Police Department, but achieved no definite results. The outcome was a split in the local Republican Party.

A delegation of Canton ministers and members of the Anti-Saloon League called on Governor Donahey to remove both the Mayor and the Safety Director. But the Governor declined to act. In 1923 Curtis ran for Mayor again, opposing a dissenting element in his own party, and won a sweeping victory. There was a storm of protest when he reappointed his brother Safety Director.

Delegation after delegation traveled to Columbus, and finally Governor Donahey decided that action was required. He held a hearing. One faction charged the Mayor with graft and other forms of collusion and the Mayor retorted that he was the victim of a frame-up. The Governor removed Mayor Curtis, and Charles Ball, President of the Council, took office as Mayor for the remainder of the term. He immediately dismissed the Safety Director, and the community breathed a sigh of relief, believing its difficulties at an end.

But soon came the filing of charges against Police Captain Ben Clark, who had been a leader in the fight against the Curtises and who, to the not unbounded surprise of Cantonians, was accused of receiving "hush money" from certain bootleggers.

When the dust had cleared away, E. E. Curtis, Harry Bouklias and Harry Turner were under indictment as bootleggers. Prosecutor McClintock drew evidence from Bouklias and Turner that convicted Curtis and resulted in a sentence of from two to ten years. Bouklias and Turner pleaded guilty and were put on parole for five years without imprisonment.

Then Mellett, who had come from Indianapolis as business manager of The Daily News and had succeeded to the publishership, began to irritate various people.

Bouklias and Turner had not been out of court very long before Mellett was printing stories that they were actively engaged in the liquor business despite their parole. Bouklias, the articles related, handled a raw alcohol business, collecting, by some mysterious means, 30 cents on every gallon of liquor distributed by a third person to speakeasies. Also, he told his contributors just how much they were to buy from this third party, and when they fell short, it seemed that somehow or other a police raid came their way and they found themselves in jail.

In the accumulation of evidence against Bouklias and Turner, John ("Jiggs") Wise, a police sergeant, who had risen from Corporal to Captain in the World War, had been invaluable. Paul Kizman had also been helpful in obtaining the conviction that sent the two to prison. Kizman's house burned to the ground soon afterward.

Mellett employed private detectives and kept in touch with friends in the Police Department, among them Sergeant Wise. When Wise told a story of how he had frustrated an attempt by brother police officers to "frame" Kizman, Mellett printed it. According to Wise, he had been sent on a false tip to the northwestern part of the city, had dashed to Kizman's house in the opposite direction on a hunch of his own, and had found policemen assisting in putting a five-gallon crock of alcohol on Kizman's porch.

Revealed Narcotic Sales.

Mellett also went into details in print when Sergeant Wise raided the apartment of a prominent alleged bootlegger and, when the case came to trial, found that there was a third party to swear that he, and not the alleged bootlegger, owned the contraband. Wise asserted he had locked a quart of Scotch found in the apartment in his locker at police headquarters to submit as evidence but that it had mysteriously disappeared.

Mellett's stories of such happenings caused the town to seethe. Chief Lengel, who is accused by Mellett's family of being "responsible" for the murder, and who has not made a single arrest in the forty-eight hours since it occurred, was the chief object of Mellett's onslaughts.

Mellett asserted, on the strength of evidence collected by his own detectives, after charging the police with incompetency, that a narcotic ring was operating in Canton. Chief Lengel and many private citizens shrugged their shoulders and talked about "yellow journalism."

Mellett went to the Federal narcotic authorities in Cleveland and arrests resulted which revealed the systematic transportation of "dope" among Cleveland, Akron, Canton and other mid-Ohio cities. Mellett testified personally before the Federal Grand Jury. Of the twelve who were arrested three pleaded guilty and went to the penitentiary.

There were many other such incidents, the flame alternately flaring and dying. But never since last Thanksgiving, when several dozen members of the Police Department received each a fat turkey with a card bearing the initials "H. B." has there been any real peace.

Mellett had been active as business manager of The News for about a year at that time and had just assumed the position of publisher. When the turkey episode came out Sergeant Wise announced he had learned that "H. B." stood for Harry Bouklias, whom The News was then accusing of violation of parole.

"Who Got a Turkey?"

The News published daily a box in a prominent place headed, "Who Got a Turkey?" Then came, "I Did Not," and an invitation to members of the Police Department to subscribe their signatures. Several did. Chief Lengel said he had returned the turkey sent to him and had a receipt.

Curtis was beaten in the Fall election. Mayor Swarth, who succeeded him, summarily dismissed Lengel, after a hearing, at which the chief presented a receipt for the returned turkey, dated two days after Millett's turkey stories began. The hearing aroused Canton to the height of dissention, every one taking sides.

Five detectives were suspended with the chief. He, however, immediately appealed his case to the Civil Service Commission, comprising three men, J. W. Burris, Price Janson and James Allerdice. Burris and Jansen, after a hearing which lasted two weeks, with 100 witnesses and startling evidence, voted that Lengel should be reinstated, and so he was.

The Mayor refused to accept the ruling of the commission and carried his fight to the Common Pleas Court, where he lost. He was compelled to accept Lengel again as chief, but last week announced he would bring the case up again before the Civil Service Commission.

In this he has just been frustrated by an injunction obtained in the Common Pleas Court by Burris and Jansen, restraining the Mayor from conducting a hearing. The Mayor, backed by thousands of those disgusted with the present régime, is now planning to appeal for dissolution of the injunction, which, while temporary, because of court schedules, is good until September.

who waited along the roadside to cheer the Chief Executive of the Nation and show appreciation of their Governor of the State.

President and Mrs. Coolidge worshiped in the First Presbyterian Church, as on last Sunday, and were again greeted by handclapping as they entered and left the church. The services followed the prescribed form and the prayer and sermon contained no reference to the head of the nation. The church holds about 200 persons, and to accommodate the overflow, seats were provided in the yard.

Governor and Mrs. Smith and their party reached Saranac earlier than the Coolidges and were warmly cheered as their cars, preceded by motor police, rounded into the main street. At St. Bernard's Church, which is on the same street as the First Presbyterian and not far away, the crowds were dense.

Governor Smith was loudly cheered as he stepped from his car and when he left, an ardent admirer shouted, "Three cheers for our next President." These were given heartily, but were not received with pleasure by Governor Smith, who appeared to resent their impropriety.

The Governor and his party drove to Saranac Inn this afternoon and visited the Rockefeller estates. Mr. Smith plans to leave here tomorrow for Bluff Point, Lake Champlain, and to reach Albany on Wednesday.

President and Mrs. Coolidge spent the rest of the day quietly within camp, walking about the rhododendron bordered paths and visiting interesting points and admiring the panoramic view.

They had a trying experience again last midnight, when a terrific electric storm, accompanied by high winds and rain put the electric system out of operation until noon today. The storm, one of the worst that has visited this section since the Summer White House was established, lasted for more than two hours. Many trees were demolished.

Frank W. Stearns of Boston, and Mrs. Almira Goodhue, mother of Mrs. Coolidge, have been invited to be camp guests following the Plymouth trip.

The first Cabinet member to confer with President Coolidge will be Secretary of War Davis, who has been invited to spend Monday night with the President following his inspection of Students' Military Training Camp at Plattsburg. While it was said that the coming of Secretary Davis had no special significance, it became known today that President Coolidge will seek his advice as to the proposal to move several munitions depots now located near large cities.

REED ASSAILS MELLON.

Missouri Senator Says Statement on Debt Reveals False Pretenses.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 18.—Critics of the terms accorded France and other nations in the settlement of war debts, among them Senator James A. Reed, are finding justification for their opposition in the statement made by Secretary Mellon in his letter to Frederick W. Peabody of Ashburnham, Mass., in which he explained that the French debt agreement was, in effect, a cancellation of all obligations except such as accrued after the armistice.

Commenting last night on Mr. Mellon's statement, Senator Reed said:

"It gives the lie direct to the claim so persistently made that France is paying in full but only receiving favorable interest rates. It equally proves the falsity of the claim so often made on the floor of the Senate that the Italian debt settlement was not in fact a cancellation of 75 per cent. of the Italian debt.

"It will be remembered that it was insisted by the proponents of the Italian debt settlement who represented Mr. Mellon and the Administration on the floor that Italy was paying in full and only receiving a low rate of interest.

"Mr. Mellon has torn the mask from his own face and from the faces of those Senators who voiced his false pretenses in the Senate debates. The truth is now plain that we have canceled a large part of the Italian debt and that we are asked to cancel substantially 50 per cent. of the French debt. Against the completion of this outrage at least some of the Senators will wage a vigorous opposition.

"In my judgment, every man who voted to relieve foreign nations of their just obligations to our Government and who thereby helped to impose a corresponding burden upon the taxpayers of the United States ought to be defeated the first time he comes before the people for re-election.

"The whole business was in my judgment engineered in the interest of international financiers who desired to stabilize and advance their own privately held foreign securities by canceling the debt due our Government."

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, July 19.—As the old Romans would say, no deus ex machina will keep a man from feeling "fair whacked" in hot weather. No contraption has been invented to make one cool except to dress that way.

Wear the suit of tropic-weight worsted in the spruce pattern formed by white hairline stripes upon black. The cloth is woven open of triple-twist yarn, instead of the usual double twist. Added strength without added weight. Exclusive, but not expensive.

but not business experience

BUSINESS, after his death, would go on "as usual," thought a certain man. His insurance would care for his wife. But she, worried and unskilled in business matters, turned to a neighbor for advice as to how best to secure the safety of her funds. He suggested certain mortgages.

Fortunately, not too late, this woman referred the matter to Irving-Columbia. Our officers found that the mortgages she was planning to buy represented more than the full value of the property involved!

AT the widow's request we then prepared a list of investments suitable for her which would insure the protection of her capital and give the highest return compatible with safety. She followed our advice and her inheritance was unimpaired.

Records show that 9 out of 10 estates of more than $5000 are dissipated within seven years. For the best business experience and judgment are as necessary in administering and settling an estate as they are in acquiring that estate.

When you appoint the Irving-Columbia your executor or trustee you safeguard your heirs completely against losses due to incompetence or insufficient knowledge of finance and business.

WE SHALL WELCOME an opportunity to discuss with you how we can serve you in your business or personal affairs. Telephone or drop a line to the Banking Office most convenient to you.

FOUR PERSONS DIE IN BAY STATE STORM

Bolt Kills Adams Girl—Two in Canoe Lost and Tree Hits Third in Springfield.

Damage In Western Part of the State Is $500,000—A Score Are Injured.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 18 (AP).—A rain, hail and lightning storm of cyclonic velocity which struck western Massachusetts late this afternoon claimed four lives, injured more than a score and left in its wake damage which will amount to $500,000. In Adams a girl was instantly killed; in Springfield, two men were drowned when their canoe overturned, and a man died beneath a falling tree at the height of the storm.

The dead are: Marie Angie Dubois, 19, Adams, instantly killed by lightning; Soturno Mantani, Springfield, killed by falling tree; George Guillotte, West Springfield, drowned; Joseph Trudeau, Springfield, drowned.

The storm generated high in the Berkshires, where lightning struck in many places and rushed eastward, doing its heaviest damage in this city and West Springfield. In the latter town the roof was torn from a large dance hall, a boat house flung into midstream and numerous trees and small buildings ripped from the ground.

In Springfield the ninety-foot steeple of the Asbury Methodist Church crashed to the ground, the roofs were ripped from several apartment houses, billboards and trees were swept flat and tops blown from automobiles. Trolley service was demoralized, underpasses flooded and lightning wires torn down. Telephone service was crippled throughout the district so that it was several hours before reports of damage began to come through.

The two men drowned in this city were canoeing on the pond at the Government arsenal when the wind struck. Their canoe was overturned.

ADAMS, Mass., July 18 (AP).—One girl was killed by a lightning bolt and two other persons suffered serious shocks during one of the most severe electric storms of the season here today.

Marie Angie Dubois was crossing the Valley Street playground with her brother, Alfred, and Leonard Bourdon. Alfred was struck by a bolt and threw out his hands. One hand came in contact with his sister and she fell dead. Bourdon also was stunned but escaped serious injury.

Another lightning bolt struck a tree in Forest Park under which John Sanecki had taken refuge during the storm. He was found some time after the storm had passed partly paralyzed and with his head badly lacerated.

HAMPTON BEACH, N. H., July 18 (AP).—Leo McCaughey, 14-year-old clam digger, was struck and killed by a bolt of lightning while at work on the Hampton flats today. E. L. Rowe, his companion, was knocked unconscious but revived in time to help a third digger carry McCaughey's body ashore. McCaughey was the son of Mrs. Annie McCaughey of Lowell, Mass.

CROPS DAMAGED IN MAINE.

Lightning Starts Many Farm Fires —Hail and Rain in Bangor.

BANGOR, Me., July 18 (AP).—A series of electrical storms caused widespread damage in Bangor and vicinity today. Edward I. Snow of Hermon, a farmer, was killed by a lightning bolt as he was driving in his cows.

Lightning caused a fire in the store of the Rines Company in Bangor, resulting in damage estimated at $5,000. The farm buildings of Abner Fraser in Charleston were struck and burned, with loss of $7,500. A barn and the ell of the house on the Bearce farm in Costigan were burned, and many other farm fires were reported in Penobscot County.

In Bangor there was a terrific electrical display and torrents of rain. In the first of the three storms hail fell. The hail and rain laid flat all growing crops, and the damage in this respect is great.

HEAVY TOLL IN OHIO.

Storms and Accidents Responsible for Fourteen Deaths.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 18 (AP).—Storms and accidents on land and water took a toll of fourteen lives in Ohio Sunday as a major portion of the State's population sought relief from the heat at beaches and on the highways. Many were injured, one of whom was reported dying.

Dr. Harvey C. Highman, an instructor in Ohio State University Dental College, was crushed to death by a tree which fell during a storm near Delaware.

Storm Visits Explosion Area.

DOVER, N. J., July 18 (AP).—A terrific electrical storm, similar to the one to which the Lake Denmark disaster is generally attributed, tonight struck this vicinity. Lightning flashed for almost two hours and a driving rainstorm continued for many hours afterward, but no damage was reported.

Hail Damages Crops at Hornell.

HORNELL, N. Y., July 18 (AP).—Crops throughout this section were damaged considerably by a severe hail storm today. Hail stones of unusual size fell for more than an hour; lightning interrupted electric and telephone circuits.

Girl Cannot Tell Who She Is.

A well dressed girl, evidently a victim of amnesia, was found wandering about the streets of the Brownsville district of Brooklyn yesterday afternoon by Policeman Rehm. She was taken to the Liberty Avenue station house, but was unable to tell anything about herself. She was sent to the Kings County Hospital. The girl is about 18 years old, five feet tall, and weighs about ninety pounds. She has black hair and brown eyes. She wore a black silk dress, champagne-colored stockings, black shoes and black hat. She had a leather pocketbook, in which the police found neither money nor cards.

Storm Hampers Transmission Of News by Cable and Radio

Electric storms on this side of the Atlantic last night greatly delayed the transmission of cable dispatches from London, Paris and other European news centres.

Static conditions at the same time made wireless across the ocean practically impossible.

Bathing Girl Who Sheds Dress in Public Startles Beach; May Cause Stricter Law

Special to The New York Times.

BRADLEY BEACH, N. J., July 18.—A young woman, who had arrived in an automobile, walked out on the Boardwalk here today, seized the hem of her dress and in two quick motions whisked it over her head.

This left her fully attired for the beach in a two-piece bathing suit. She tripped down the Boardwalk stairs, and ten seconds later was in the water. All this took place in the view of scores of people.

About an hour later the three City Commissioners of Bradley Beach held an informal conference and considered passing a regulation on Tuesday night which may prevent outsiders from arriving at Bradley Beach with their bathing suits on. Under this ordinance special permits would be issued to all-the-year-round residents. Summer residents and hotel residents, permitting them to wear their bathing suits from their rooms to the beaches. All others would be required to use the municipal bathing houses.

"Outsiders have been coming in by the thousands in automobiles, wearing their bathing suits under their ordinary clothing," said Commissioner Poland. "Some of them use their automobiles for bath houses, and others boldly strip to the bathing suits in public. We are through with spectacles of this kind at Bradley Beach."

Other New Jersey beaches have similar regulations. As the beach is State property, however, there is some doubt as to the constitutionality of local ordinances barring the use of the ocean to outsiders, or even compelling them to pay fees at the municipal bath houses. No one yet has made a test case.

BROOKLYN SOLDIER DROWNS

James J. McKenon Loses Life While in Camp at Fort H. G. Wright.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 18 (AP).—Private James J. McKenon, 21, of Battery K, 245th C. A. C. Regiment, New York National Guard, was drowned yesterday while swimming off Fort H. G. Wright, Fisher's Island.

Private McKenon enlisted with the coast artillery regiment, formerly the famous Thirteenth Regiment, six months ago, and came to Fort Wright a week ago for a two weeks' tour of camp duty.

He resided at 79 Hall Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. In his enlistment papers he named Mrs. Conklin of the same address as his nearest relative. He has no immediate relatives. McKenon was employed in the auditing department of the New York offices of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The body was forwarded to Brooklyn tonight. Burial will take place in Cypress Hills Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Girl, 16, Missing Five Days.

Samuel Deutsch, a tailor living at 361 Seventh Street, Brooklyn, yesterday asked the Missing Persons Bureau to send out a general alarm for his daughter, Margaret, 16 years old, who has been missing from her home since the morning of July 14. She wore a gray dress trimmed with black, light tan pumps and stockings. She weighs 103 pounds, is 5 feet 2 inches tall, has a birth mark on her left cheek and one eye is darker than the other.

ELEVEN CONVERTED BY GIRL EVANGELIST

Uldine Utley, Protegee of Dr. Straton, Holds Service in Tent in Elmhurst.

'ANGEL,' SAYS AGED WOMAN

Sponsor's Wife Calls Her Healer—He Defends Preaching by Women In His Own Sermon.

Eight women and three men "hit the trail" for Uldine Mabelle Utley, 14-year-old bobbed-haired evangelist, who preached yesterday afternoon in a tent near Baxter Avenue and Broadway, Elmhurst.

On her appeal for sinners to repent and join the church, the eleven went forward, knelt in silence several minutes and asked to be taken into the church.

The tent resounded with shouts of "Amen" and "Glory Hallelujah." Mrs. T. E. Gosienecki, 70 years old, of Sunnyside, L. I., jumped to her feet and shouted:

"Do you know what she is? She's an angel."

The child orator smiled, extended her hands and gave Mrs. Gosienecki her blessing.

Mrs. John Roach Straton, wife of the clergyman who sponsors the young evangelist, attributed healing powers to Uldine. She said she was suffering from a severe pain in her side and the girl had promptly relieved it by prayer.

In her sermon the girl said:

"The earth is not crying for doctrines of man, it is crying for another vision of Jesus. We are too busy in this twentieth century. We have too many things on our minds. I would have you catch a new vision of life and follow Christ, as John, Peter and James did when He bid them come. They had many things to do, but they were not too busy to be led to a high mountain by the Lord."

Dr. Straton's Sermon.

In his sermon last night in the Calvary Baptist Church, 123 West Fifty-seventh Street, Dr. Straton defended preaching by women. Admitting that there were texts which, taken at their face value, might seen to discountenance such preaching, he continued:

"Taken as a whole, the teaching of Scripture is clear that woman has her rightful place, both in the ministry of prayer and in the proclamation of the saving truths of the Gospel.

"From the very beginning God Himself has called and commissioned women and children to have their share in the great work of human salvation.

"But it is urged by those who oppose the teaching, speaking and praying of women in public that Paul himself in this very connection says: 'Let your women keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law. And if they will learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home; for it is a shame for women to speak in the church.'

"Yes, Paul did say that, and he meant precisely what he said.

"But we can only know what he meant when we get the setting of his words and read them in the light of the other God-inspired scripture teaching. Paul himself in this very chapter has evidently recognized the right and duty of 'all'—both men and women—to prophesy and to speak the saving truths of the Gospel. And that he did recognize the general right of women, as well as of men, so to speak is made clear further when he says, 'But every woman that prayeth or prophesieth with her head uncovered dishonoreth her head.'

Woman's Right Admitted.

"He here clearly admits the right of woman to pray and prophesy and to participate otherwise in religious work. And he certainly would not in another place, if there were not some specific reason for the local rule, nullify his own injunction and set at naught his own teaching.

"Let me hasten to say, therefore, that if Paul, under evident guidance of the Holy Spirit, had declared that women should not pray or preach, then, whether I understood it or not, I would stand on that teaching as the inspired word and will of God, and despite all of my natural desires would say that no woman or girl anywhere ought ever to raise her voice in prayer, testimony or the proclamation of the Gospel message in any public assembly.

"But it must be perfectly evident from the scripture teachings which I have presented that such cannot be the case. The Holy Spirit cannot deny Himself and when He has directed women to speak equally with men in one place He certainly cannot reverse Himself and forbid their so doing in another place."

DRYS TO DEFEND PASTOR.

Rev. L. E. H. Smith Is to Answer Charges Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 18.—Federal attorneys will defend the case of the Rev. L. E. H. Smith, Black Rock minister and "under cover" dry agent connected with the staff of Major Eugene C. Roberts, charged with outraging public decency, when it comes up for hearing Tuesday before Justice of the Peace Jones at Tonawanda.

An order calling for argument of a motion to shift the case of the "vice crusading pastor" and Miss Eva Jay, a singer in his choir, to the Grand Jury has been served on Assistant District Attorney Walter F. Holheins of Erie County. It was obtained in the Supreme Court by Assistant United States Attorney John S. McGovern, and will be argued Tuesday morning, while the case is scheduled to be heard in Court of Special Sessions in the evening.

It is the custom of the dry service to defend agents from accusations laid against them in local courts. The State officials, however, will oppose the move of the Federal men to have the case committed to the next Grand Jury. They will ask that it travel through the customary Court of Special Sessions, not because of the notoriety the case has attracted, it was said, but because the office is opposed to imposing on the Grand Jury minor cases that ordinarily are disposed of by a Justice of the Peace.

24 TAKEN IN A RAID.

Prosecutor Leads Detectives In Drive on Alleged Gambling Den.

GREAT NECK, L. I., July 18.—Ten county detectives led by Seward G. Spoor, Assistant District Attorney of Nassau County, arrested twenty-four men this morning in a raid on an alleged gambling den in the Bridge garage, on the Cuttermill Road here. Among those arrested were William Hoffman, who recently served a term in Sing Sing for receiving stolen automobiles. He was held for the Grand Jury without bail on a charge of maintaining and conducting a gambling house.

Alexander Dellando of Windsor and Lodge Roads, and Frank Adelberg of 135 Cuttermill Road were held on the same charge. Bellando alone was allowed bail of $500, by Justice of the Peace Andrew B. Westervelt of Roslyn.

Two negro lookouts, Leo and Luther Pleasant, were held in $500 bail as material witnesses. William Gallagher of 9 Thompson Street, Manhattan, was held on a charge of possessing a pistol. The other prisoners were each fined $10.

HEAR GOLDMAN IN RAIN.

Audience, Under Umbrellas, at Band Concert in Mall.

In spite of the storm, the Goldman Band, under Edwin Franko Goldman, played on the Mall at Central Park last evening to a number of enthusiasts who defied the wet benches and sat under umbrellas through the rain. It is Mr. Goldman's boast that up to date he has missed only one concert owing to the weather. His program included Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, Liszt's Rhapsody No. 2, and numbers by Mendelssohn, Gounod and Leoncavallo.

The band not only played every number on the program, but gave three encores. Del Staigers, the new cornetist, gave a much applauded solo.

Tonight the band will play on the Campus of New York University.

Pickwick Supper Club Dances.

The Pickwick Supper Club, which meets at the Pickwick Arms, Greenwich, Conn., has arranged a series of special dances, which will take place on July 23 and 30, Aug. 27 and Sept. 3, 17 and 24. A Spanish entertainment will be the feature of the dance on July 30. Members of the club will appear in a program of dances and songs on Sept. 3 and a fashion parade will be the feature of the final meeting.

Drowns in Bathtub.

William Sywok, 16 years old, of 130 Engert Avenue, Brooklyn, was drowned in a bathtub in his home last night. From the position of the body it appeared that Sywok had fainted and fallen fully clothed into the half-filled tub. Efforts to revive Sywok failed.

more often by lightning flashes than its predecessor had been. The first storm passed over the city from the southwest to the northeast and the second from the west to the east.

The temperature began to fall almost at the first raindrop and sank twenty-three degrees in an hour. When the sky became overcast at 6 o'clock the temperature was 82 degrees, two degrees lower than at 5 o'clock, the hottest point of the day. At 7 o'clock the temperature had dropped to 59 degrees, which was only one degree above the lowest temperature recorded for July 18—58 degrees, recorded in 1924. At 9 o'clock it had risen to 64 degrees, and the prediction was that it would be fair and cooler today.

Motor Boat on Rocks.

At the height of the second storm the forty-foot motor boat Oreal, owned by Charles Jacobson of Newark, piled up on the rocks near Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, and for a time Jacobson, his wife and four men friends who were aboard were in grave danger.

The Oreal was coming up the lower bay when the gale struck. Mr. Jacobson was steering and lost his bearings in the driving rain. His craft struck the rocks, rode up on them and stuck precariously. Mr. Jacobson blew his whistle to attract help and the blast was heard by army officers at Fort Wadsworth. They communicated with Coast Guard Base Number 2 at Stapleton and Cutter No. 2320 under command of Ensign Frank Sindt was dispatched to the rescue. The cutter crew took off the water-soaked and anxious party and towed the motor boat to Pier 18, Stapleton.

Earlier in the evening grave alarm had been felt about another motor boat, the fifty-foot Van Wyck, a high-powered vessel belonging to Charles Marscher, Commodore of the Princes Bay Yacht Club. Mr. Marscher had fifteen guests with him. The yacht was posted as missing by the police when it failed to arrive by 7 o'clock. At 10 o'clock, however, she appeared safely in Princes Bay, her passengers nervous and soaked but uninjured. Commodore Marscher reported the craft had weathered a sixty-five-knot gale returning from the Shrewsbury River.

Barges With TNT Adrift.

Three navy ammunition barges, laden with 400 tons of TNT, enough to wreck a fleet, broke loose from their moorings opposite Bensonhurst at the height of the second storm and were rounded up after a frantic dash by police, revenue and Coast Guard craft to catch them before they should collide with a vessel.

The barges were stationed in the bay to supply passing warships and there were two watchmen on each one. In the gale all dragged their anchors and drifted toward Sea Gate. A watchman put off in a small boat, rowed and telephoned to the police and the Coast Guard for help.

The Police Marine Division at the Battery instantly informed Captain Albert Nelson, commander of the revenue cutter Wissahickon, and the latter set out down the bay with engines under forced draft. Meanwhile Coast Guard Base 2 at Stapleton, S. I., sent out four cutters and the six vessels raced toward the drifting barges. As they neared the ammunition carriers they whistled to warn away all shipping and cutters raced out to intercept boats from Coney Island.

The Wissahickon was first to reach the barges. The tugboat Richard S. Houghton of the New York Transport and Towing Company assisted the revenue cutter in rounding up the barges. While the Coast Guard cutters maintained a patrol, the Wissahickon and the tugboat towed the barges back to their anchorage.

Rescues in the Hudson.

Hundreds of passengers on the excursion steamboat Bear Mountain witnessed a thrilling rescue of two brothers in the Hudson River off Alpine, N. J., by seamen from the United States submarine chaser 143 and cheered the three naval militiamen who risked their lives to save the young men whose canoe had capsized.

Joseph Lehrbaum, 22 years old, a salesman, and his brother, Philip, 14, of 103 West 103d Street, were sailing their canoe from Alpine toward Dyckman Street on the Manhattan side when the storm broke. Joseph, who was aft, managed to drop his sail before the storm caught it, but his brother was slower and the wind capsized the boat.

Joseph, a strong swimmer, tried to help Philip. Three times the young boy, quite exhausted, lost his hold on the canoe and his brother pushed him up on it.

The Bear Mountain, on the way to New York with excursionists, sighted the youths when they had been in the water half an hour, and just as seamen began lowering a boat the submarine chaser, with Ensign Arthur R. Maurice in command and twenty-two young naval reservists on board, arrived. Without waiting for an order Seamen Bonacci, Paterson and Moran of New Rochelle dived overboard and reached the brothers.

The rescuers manoeuvred the young men, who were in bathing suits, to the submarine chaser as a cheer went up from the excursionists. Not content with their feat, the naval reservists returned to the canoe, pushed it to their own craft and with others hoisted it on board.

The two youths were very weak after the rescue and Ensign R. P. Maurice, commander of the submarine chaser, directed them to stay aboard and regain their strength while the craft, on its way to its base at New Rochelle, entered the Harlem River at Spuyten Duyvil and proceeded toward Hell Gate where the vessel was to turn northward again for the base.

Approaching the New York Central bridge across the river at 155th Street, Ensign Maurice signaled for it to be opened to permit the craft to pass through. The mechanism of the bridge became jammed and for nearly an hour efforts to open it were of no avail.

Hundreds of motor cars on both the Bronx and Manhattan sides of the bridge were caught in the traffic congestion which resulted. It required hours for patrolmen to relieve the situation. Most of the automobiles had turned back before the bridge was finally righted. The submarine chaser was forced to tie up near the bridge. The machinery of the bridge, it was said, could not be repaired before three o'clock this morning.

In the meantime the condition of the youths improved and they departed for their home.

Injured by Gale.

John Susci, 38, of 145 West Tenth Street, a tailor, was crossing Williamsburg Bridge at the height of the storm when he was thrown by the force of the wind to the roadway and fractured his right shoulder. He was taken in a taxicab to Bellevue Hospital, where he remained.

Crossing Second Avenue at Thirty-second Street, accompanied by her husband, Mrs. F. Reilly of 352 East Thirty-second Street felt a sharp pain when a taxicab passed them. Dr. Healry of Bellevue Hospital found that a piece of glass thrown up with mud by the wheels of the taxicab had struck her in the right ankle.

Austin Southworth, 30, of 463 West Fifty-seventh Street, while sitting on the ledge of a window in his apartment yesterday afternoon fell two stories to the sidewalk. He was taken to Roosevelt Hospital, where little hope was held out that he would recover.

When a fire truck skidded in South Street, Jersey City, after the storm three firemen, Albert Horlacker, Peter Kohkass and James O'Connel, suffered injuries. All will recover.

A short circuit during the electrical storm interrupted services in the Emmanuel Presbyterian Church, 735 Sixth Street. Smoke pouring from the roof attracted passers-by, who turned in an alarm of fire. The congregation remained seated while firemen took off a fifteen-foot section of the ceiling and extinguished a small blaze which had started in the wiring. The Rev. G. A. Schnatz, the pastor, then resumed the services.

Two men were drowned yesterday at Rockaway Beach. They were Nicholas Monaco of 10 Kenmare Street, Manhattan, and William Stern, 20, of 11 Carmine Street, Manhattan. The body of John Staff, 30, of 126 West 117th Street, who was drowned there on Saturday, was recovered.

Those who were rescued by lifeguards at Rockaway Beach were the Misses Lillie and Sadie Kosnerg, 17 and 19 years old, sisters, of 1,642 Lexington Avenue, Manhattan, and Herbert Busch of 1,804 Madison Avenue and Ruby Falk of 15 East 106th Street, Manhattan.

Nicholas Jerossi, 41, of 177 South Eighth Street, Brooklyn, was drowned when bathing off Woodlawn Beach, Staten Island. His body was not recovered. Abraham Mellnick, 27, of 418 North Third Street, Brooklyn, was saved from drowning when bathing at Arverne, L. I.

John McGowan of 638 Eightieth Street, Brooklyn, saved John Graham, 21, of 84 Erasmus Street Brooklyn, from drowning at Coney Island.

Boy and Girl Saved.

Miss Muriel Tell, seventeen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. S. Tell of Mount Vernon, and a boy of the same age from Brooklyn whose name the Tells refused to reveal, were washed safely ashore on Robbins Island yesterday morning after clinging all night to a capsized sailboat in Long Island Sound.

The Tells are occupying a bungalow at South Jamesport, L. I., and the boy was visiting friends there. His mother was said to not have learned of the accident and that was the reason advanced by the family for refusing to give his name. The boy and girl started out in a sailboat from South Jamesport on Saturday afternoon and about 6:30 o'clock that evening the Sound became rough and the boat capsized.

Both sailors were expert swimmers but found themselves unable to do more than cling to the overturned boat until yesterday morning, when it was washed ashore. Meanwhile Miss Tell's parents and a party of friends had cruised about in motorboats trying to find the pair.

MOTOR BOATS FORCED ASHORE.

Crews of Both Go Through Surf at Sandy Hook.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., July 18.—Two motor boats, the K-607-A and the KA-16893, were beached here tonight during a hailstorm which was accompanied by high winds, rain and lightning.

Francis Neill of Leonardo and two companions jumped from the K-607-A as she struck the surf and struggled ashore. On the other boat were David and George Pretz of 69 Houston Street, Newark. They reached shore. The motor boats were hauled up on the beach by Coast Guardsmen.

A canoe left Sandy Hook at 5:30 P. M. for Coney Island, Superintendent M. W. Rasmussen of the Coast Guard station reported. He ordered a lookout for the craft. In the canoe, it is believed, were Edward Albreight of 128 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, and two other men.

DAMAGE TO TOBACCO.

Six Windsor Barns Also Burn During Connecticut Storm.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 18 (AP).—An electrical storm hit Connecticut late today. Lightning flashed and rain fell heavily for a short time. Hail did considerable damage to early tobacco in Windsor.

The only fire attributed to lightning occurred in Windsor, where six barns were destroyed after the largest building in the group was struck. Samuel Soshman, owner, estimated his loss at $20,000.

In Norwich a 10-year-old boy was stunned when lightning splintered a tree, took a corner off a touring car and split a beam of a house.

Trolley service in this city and vicinity was halted for a short time when lightning burned off a terminal wire connection in the Grand Avenue power station of the Connecticut Company.

Wallingford and other towns served by a Waterbury power company were plunged into darkness for several minutes because of the storm.

BOSTON, July 18 (AP).—One of several sudden storms which broke over New England today, causing the loss of several lives and heavy property damage, ripped a path through the Fenway district of Boston shortly after 6 o'clock. Many trees were uprooted and windows were shattered. The wind velocity was estimated at 100 miles an hour and the temperature dropped rapidly 20 degrees. The three back rows of the grandstand at Fenway Park, home of the Boston Red Sox, were demolished. The storms followed a day of extreme heat and humidity which attracted throngs to beaches and inland resorts.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Station at Brockton was struck by lightning and the roof set on fire.

CARONIA ENDS FOGGY TRIP.

Christopher Morley and Thomas A. Daly Back From France.

Captain William H. Hossack, master of the Cunarder Caronia, which arrived yesterday from London via Havre and Southampton, said he had encountered fog almost from the time the ship left London until she passed Nantucket Lightship. In the River Thames the fog delayed the Caronia twelve hours.

Leaving the Solent, Captain Hossack said, the mist was very dense. He heard the horn of a steamer ahead quite close. He reversed the engines and sent the ship astern. The other vessel did the same, averting a collision. The murk was too thick for him to identify the other steamship, Captain Hossack said. Again, off the Grand Banks, the fog forced him to remain on the bridge for thirty hours without any rest.

Among the passengers on the Caronia were Christopher Morley, author, and Mrs. Morley, with Thomas A. Daly, a poet of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Daly, who have been motoring through France. Frank Bernard and Mrs. Bernard, formerly Marion Rich, who have been dancing in London and Paris for eighteen months, also returned.

The Caronia brought 325 tourist third-class passengers who have come to tour this country.

Dies on His Vacation.

Sidney Beaver, 45 years old, of 895 Kelly Street, the Bronx, who was spending his vacation at Brighton Beach, complained of feeling ill yesterday when he returned to his boarding house, 3,042 East Sixth Street, after a swim. Dr. Zahn was called from the Coney Island hospital, but when he arrived Beaver was dead. Dr. Zahn said the man died of heart disease.

service that followed. After communion Norris made a declaration of unshaken faith, asked the prayers of the congregation and asserted that "this day begins a new day."

When he called for converts, two men and three women responded.

Mr. Norris said that this was "a little unusual."

"It's a little unusual," he said, "but the unusual is the expected around the First Baptist Church. God works His will in unusual ways. My faith is stronger today in the living faith of the living God than ever before."

Omits Reference to Killing.

The pastor made no reference in his sermon to the killing or the events leading up to it. Both he and Mrs. Norris taught their Sunday School classes as usual preceding the church services.

Parking space around the church for blocks was occupied long before the opening of the service and crowds milled about the sidewalks.

An American flag hung motionless in the sultry atmosphere, which drove those within the church to fan vigorously during prayer. No electric fans or ventilating devices were visible, and the pastor freely used a large purple-edged pocket handkerchief as he preached.

The text of the sermon was taken from the eighth chapter of the Book of Romans.

"Who is he that condemns?" asked the minister. "All condemnation was passed on Him. And there can be no condemnation on those that are in Him. If God is for us, who can be against us? All things work together for him who is called to God."

Music was unusually prominent in the service. Among the numerous hymns were these: "There Is Power in the Blood," "Shall We Gather at the River?" "Revive Us Again" and "Standing on the Promises of God."

Several of these were played several times as hundreds filed by to shake the pastor's hand.

Mr. Norris received many telegrams from admirers and sympathizers over the country. Many of them were from Kentucky, in several cities of which he recently conducted revivals.

There was one from W. B. Riley, a Fundamentalist leader of Minneapolis, and one from Marvin B. Simpson of Fort Worth, a lawyer, now in Los Angeles, who offered his services to Norris, agreeing to return at once to defend him.

The baptism of the church's negro janitor, Balaam Shaw, had been scheduled for this morning, and Mr. Norris had prepared a special sermon for the event, but this was postponed.

It was announced from the pulpit that the already heavy strain on the pastor would preclude the baptism. Shaw was to have been baptized in the First Baptist Church and was then to accept membership in a negro Baptist church.

Assailed Rockefeller Wealth.

The stormy career of the Rev. J. Frank Norris as an evangelist and leader of the Fundamentalist cause has been marked not only by his bitter attacks on drinking, gambling, dancing, women's dress and other manifestations of what he regarded as the ruinous trend of modern life, but by his attacks also on what he calls the "mammonizing of the church" by the money of such men as John D Rockefelle and Marshall Field

He assailed the Rockefeller influence in the Baptist Church at his revival here at the Tent Evangel, West End Avenue and Ninety-fifth Street, last Summer and declared that something should be done to prevent the Baptist Church from becoming the "religious department of the Standard Oil Company." His latest statement to receive nation-wide publicity was before the Baptist Bible Union of North America in Washington last May, when he declared "We want Rockefeller to keep his bloody money." He favored a movement to force educational institutions of the South to give up funds they had received from the Rockefeller Foundation and said that every preacher, missionary, Sunday School teacher and member of the Baptist Church of the South would be asked to sign a pledge affirming belief in creation as told in Genesis.

The First Baptist Church, at Broadway and Seventy-ninth Street, which, he said, has invited him to preach on Aug. 1, has already been the scene of several typical sermons by Mr. Norris. It was in this church last Aug. 16 that he referred to recent earth disturbances in the country, and predicted that they were only the precursors of a terrific earthquake mentioned in Revelations which would destroy New York. The pastor of the First Baptist Church is the Rev. Dr. I. M. Haldeman.

Norris Led Evolution Fight.

The preacher has been particularly proud of the results he has obtained in his fight against Modernism and has boasted that through his influence the Dean of the Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas, and a professor at Baylor University were forced to resign because they had published treatises favorable to the theory of evolution.

Mr. Norris has described himself as a "hellfire and damnation preacher," who believes the Bible "as she is writ." His utterances at the revival meeting he held at Calvary Baptist Church this city, with Dr. John Roach Straton in 1922, fully upheld this description.

He found New York steeped in sin—so lost to godliness that later he predicted it would be destroyed by an earthquake as prophesied in Revelations—and declared he found the devil working even through the churches. He devoted most of one sermon at his meeting at Calvary Baptist Church to attacking the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie because of the symbolical dances which were being held there.

"The clothes worn today by women who follow the fashions are indecent and degrading.

"The spark of a woman's cigarette some day will light a conflagration that will destroy the world.

"The other day a thousand women in New York went to see men batter each other bloody at a prizefight. Don't you see where that leads? Straight to the women in ancient Rome who attended the gladiatorial shows.

Norris, despite the fact that he was of delicate health in his youth, is a tall, athletic man, with clear blue eyes, tanned cheeks and strong, brown hands.

Dr. John Roach Straton, an intimate friend and associate of Mr. Norris, made no reference to the case in either of his two sermons yesterday. Dr. Straton left for his Summer home immediately after the evening service.

COPELAND ATTACKS COOLIDGE ON COAL

Sees President Reversing Position in Advocating Truce on Railway Labor Law Basis.

QUOTES MESSAGE IN 1925

Executive for Drastic Action Then, for Temporizing Now, Senator Asserts, and Asks Why.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The reported intention of President Coolidge to apply the principles of the recently enacted railroad labor dispute law to the coal industry called forth a statement from Senator Copeland of New York today in which the Senator asserted that such a move would mark a complete reversal of position on the part of the President. Senator Copeland quoted a newspaper dispatch which said the President was going to make overtures to coal operators and miners looking to a truce in the coal industry similar to that brought about between railroad operators and the brotherhoods under the provisions of the so-called Watson-Parker Railway Labor law.

"Was the President naive?" asked Senator Copeland, "or did he have his tongue in his cheek when he proposed the application to the coal industry of the Watson-Parker idea of settling railroad disputes?

"If he ever read the Senate Committee coal bill, commonly called the Copeland bill, he would know that that is exactly what the measure proposed. Indeed, the formal report of the committee said 'it took a leaf from the Railroad Labor bill as it passed the House and, so far as such a law can do so, makes it the duty of all employers and employes engaged in the coal industry to exert every reasonable effort to make and maintain agreements concerning wages and working conditions and to settle their own disputes. All members of the committee agree that so far as possible Government should refrain from interference in the industry.'

"The fact is, of course, that the coal industry wants to be left alone. It resents any 'interference' and is particularly agitated over the fact-finding feature of the Copeland bill. It does not want the public to have any facts, but wishes it to be controlled by the fictions and half-truths the industry feeds out to the public.

"For the President to encourage this attitude is to defeat every formal recommendation he has made to the Congress. It gives an air of insincerity to the excuse made last Winter that 'the President has no power to deal with the coal problem.' Does not he want the Congress to give him that power?

Quotes Message to Congress.

"Some may consider his present conciliatory attitude to be an evidence of high statesmanship. To me it seems merely another sign of reversal of intention on the part of the Administration. How different is this position from the brave language contained in the President's message to Congress in December, 1925, when he said:

"'Authority should be lodged with the President and the Departments of Commerce and Labor giving them power to deal with an emergency. They should be able to appoint temporary boards with authority to call for witnesses and documents, conciliate differences, encourage arbitration and, in case of threatened scarcity, exercise control over distribution.

"'Making the facts public under these circumstances through a statement from an authoritative source would be of great public benefit. The report of the last Coal Commission should be brought forward, reconsidered and acted upon.'

"Is it possible that the President has been weaned away from his course simply because the great coal barons, large contributors to the Republican campaign fund, have exercised their invisible power over the Administration?

"The President has never failed in his official documents to recognize the menace of the coal situation. In his message of 1925, from which I have just quoted, the President stated:

"'At the present time the National Government has little or no authority to deal with this vital necessity of the life of the country. It has permitted itself to remain so powerless that its only attitude must be humble supplication.'

Indirect Relationship.

"When the country read these stirring words and marked the apparent determination of the President to deal with the coal problem as the necessities of the people dictate that it should be dealth with, every heart was stirred. There was applause of the President in every home where fuel is just as much a necessity as are water and milk.

"But the President has turned from his high purpose, and now, according to the press dispatches, it is expected the Federal Government can assume an indirect relationship to the coal industry.

"The apology is received, but I do not believe that those who suffered the hardships of coal deprivation last Winter will accept the apology.

"There must be found a way to make impossible the repetition of the situation of last Winter. Soft words and ready yielding on the part of the Administration will not help to find that way.

"The truth is that soft coal is found in twenty-nine States of the Union. It is found in large quantities in several States, and the Congressional representatives of those States stand as one man against any interference with the industry. I do not need to recite the power the coal operators have in the State of Pennsylvania. The domination of that State by the great interests is recognized everywhere.

"I want to ask the President: Is he going to permit the dictation of a selfish group to deter him from taking the steps which are absolutely essential to guard the citizens of the United States against the deprivation of coal?

"The President may think that the warm weather and the buzz of the mosquitos have lulled the people into a state of indifference regarding the coal problem. He may be right about this. I think he is wrong."

WANTS PARTY LOYAL TO THE CONSTITUTION

tribution of power between the State Governments and the General Government, they can alter that distribution at will."

If the Eighteenth Amendment was an injudicious distribution of power between the State and National Governments, then the people can take it out of the Constitution in the same way and by the same process they wrote it into the Constitution. If it was a mistake, the people can be shown that it was a mistake, and they are wise enough and brave enough to take it out. If, on the other hand, after reconsideration and further reflection, the people conclude it was not a mistake, then under proper and sincere leadership the people will live up to it and maintain it.

There is no possible excuse to invoke nullification under a system of government like ours. There is no law which may not be repealed. There is no provision of the Constitution which may not be rewritten or wholly expunged. To preach nullification is to preach lawlessness—disregard for law, that ancient and persistent enemy of all republics. It is to apply a principle which, like poison in the human system, will search its way into every vein and artery of the body politic.

What are the arguments now advanced against following the orderly procedure of amending the Constitution? They are familiar arguments. They are the practices which are making a hell of Europe today. They are denying free speech, free press, liberty, individuality and justice to countless millions. They are tracing every day's routine of life in blood.

The first argument is that it will take too long, that the method is tedious and cumbersome—that is the cardinal tenet of Fascism. It is said the Eighteenth Amendment is against conscience, oppressive—therefore disregard it. This is the precise argument which nullified contracts and the law of property in Russia.

Talks of Mob Rule.

We are told that the people are fanatics or wanting in judgment, and that they may not repeal the Eighteenth Amendment—that is the basis of military rule in Poland. Mob rule is mob rule, whether it is the mob of the street or the mob of the professional club, whether it is preached from a dry goods box or in a university chapel. Lynch law is lynch law, whether you are lynching an individual or the Constitution.

Of course, the people will have to be consulted, but I have heard that this is a Government of the people, by the people, and for the people. Certainly the forms prescribed by the Constitution will have to be observed, for this is a Government of law and not of men. It may take some time to accomplish all this. But it will take far less time to amend the Constitution in the manner pointed out by the Constitution than it will take to convince the American people that nullification is a sound principle of gevernment.

The sublime intuition of a great and orderly people will never accept any such doctrine. It would be a monstrous thing. It would be national self-abasement before all the world. An abased and contented people the American people can never be. We belong to a different breed of men. I venture to say there could be no greater exhibition of self-abasement, of national degradation, than for this great people to leave the Eighteenth Amendment in the Constitution and, as some have said, forget it and go ahead and live in daily disregard of it. It presents an outlook of national weakness which language is inadequate to describe.

If the adversaries of the Eighteenth Amendment, now greatly interested for the first time in the principle of referendums, would submit a referendum in their respective States for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment they would be pursuing a course not subject to criticism, an orderly, dignified course. But their referendums in the forms submitted are for the purpose of undermining and destroying the Constitution through nullification.

Criticizes New York Referendum.

This is the exact meaning of the proposed referendum in the State of New York, to be followed, we are told, by similar referendums in other States. The people are not being asked to express themselves in favor of amending the Constitution of the United States, but in favor of the States respectively construing and enforcing the Constitution of the United States. The State of New York long ago repealed its State statute for the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, declaring thereby that it would not, as a State, assist in enforcing it. Having repealed its State law for enforcement, it now asks that it be permitted to enforce it and that the national Government consent to all this program. Such a program makes Machiavelli seem commonplace and stupid.

Those who have expressed some interest in this proposal have been told that it is none of our concern as to what New York State does or what any particular State does. What a State chooses to do with reference to her own purely internal affairs can be only of indirect concern to the people outside of that State. But when any State, under the guise of taking the advice of the people through a referendum, proposes that which, if effective, will nullify the Constitution of the United States, or any part of it, it is a matter of supreme concern to all the people in every State of the Union. That is a matter concerning which a State cannot take action without expecting the deepest interest upon the part of every other State.

A State cannot take any step which will affect the charter under which we live and claim the right of individual exemption. Under the Constitution we are one people, with a common destiny and with a common purpose—a purpose never to be changed, I trust—and that is to preserve the underlying principles of order and law which have made us what we are among the proud and powerful nations of the earth.

Nullification Not Revolution.

A distinguished writer upon this subject of nullification tells us that "nullification is not revolution. It is the safety valve which helps the self-governing community avoid the 'alternative between tyranny and revolution.'" No, it is true, nullification is not revolution. It has none of the sturdy attributes and finer virtues of revolution. It involves none of the courage and sacrifice and willingness to die and is inspired by none of the vision of revolution. It has none of the open, manly qualities of revolution.

Nullification is none of these. Nullification is the slinking, silent, cowardly sapping of the very foundation of all order, all dignity, all government. It is the furtive, evasive betrayal of a nation. It poisons the very fountain source of national power, to wit, respect for law and obedience to the expressed will of the majority. It is the spirit and motive of anarchy, without either its courage or its faith. Many a revolutionist has earned the commendation of history, but the nullificationist earns but the pity or contempt of his fellows.

Bolshevism in Russia, fascism in Italy, military dictatorship in Poland, promised dictatorship in other countries, increase of arbitrary power everywhere and nullification openly preached in the United States—they are all whelps from the same kennel. They are barking at the same thing, to wit, constitutional government. They all proclaim that democracy hag broken down, that parliamentary government is a failure, that constitutional government is a thing of the past, inefficient, cumbersome and out of date.

There never has been a time in the history of constitutional government when men should stand so firm in defense of law and order and the orderly procedure by which constitutional rights are guaranteed as at the present time. What we need is not less democracy but more, not less faith in constitutional government, but more.

There is no evil that we cannot for a time endure; there is no hardship that we cannot afford to forget; there is no patience which we should not be willing to practice, rather than to aid and abet in this almost world-wide attack upon a constitutional government.

Former Representative William H. Fleming of Georgia, who introduced Senator Borah, declared that "the Democratic donkey would break out of his pasture in the South and seek more fertile fields" if the Democratic Party should nominate a wet candidate on a wet platform.

THOMPSON WATCHES FILIPINOS AT WORK

He Is Told at Cavite Navy Yard They Are Good Laborers When Americans Treat Them Well.

BEGINS TOUR ON THURSDAY

He Hears That Pro-Independence Legislature Wants to Stop $6,000 Pension to Aguinaldo.

By RUSSELL B. PORTER.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANILA, July 18.—A visit to Cavite today was the first excursion outside of Manila of Carmi Thompson, personal representative of President Coolidge in investigating the Philippine problem. Cavite is across Manila Bay from here. It is the capital of the province of the same name and there a United States navy yard is located.

After talking with the native Governor of the Province and officers of the Cavite Navy Yard, Mr. Thompson said he was impressed with the capacity of the Filipinos as workmen. He found several thousand of them employed in the navy yard.

Naval officers in charge of construction told him that Filipino labor is first rate if it is handled right. They said that each group of twenty-five workmen should be under a Filipino sub-foreman. Otherwise the defective English of the workmen prevents their understanding and carrying out the orders of the American foremen. These officers say that the Filipinos must be treated well to get good results, and add that some business men here have trouble with the natives because they treat Filipinos with contempt as inferiors.

Colonel Thompson found all Filipino labor working on the construction of the new naval hospital in Cavite, and apparently working hard and efficiently. Natually, the labor question is important to the development of the rubber industry. Thompson had been told that Filipino labor is lazy and inefficient, but after his Cavite visit he believes that it is satisfactory under proper direction.

Filipino insular and local officials in Cavite Province did not talk independence to Mr. Thompson. He found them apparently contented and happy under American rule and getting along well with our naval officers.

While in Cavite today he learned that the pro-independence Legislature in Manila is attempting to cut off the $6,000 annual pension paid to General Emilio Aguinaldo, who led the Filipino insurrection against the United States after the Spanish War. The independence leaders have been bitterly attacking Aguinaldo because he is friendly with General Wood and has come out for the continuance of American sovereignty.

Colonel Thompson will leave Manila on Thursday night by steamer for the Island of Mindoro, 100 miles away, and the leper colony at Culion, visiting Calapan, capital of Mindoro, and returning to Manila on Monday.

Then he will make Baguio, the Summer capital, the base for trips to different parts of this Island of Luzon. Baguio is north of Manila, in the Benguet hills, 5,000 feet above sea level, the home of the Igorottes and other former head hunting tribes.

In about a month he will start by steamer to visit the Southern Island, especially Mindanao, the best place for rubber growing, and the Sulu Archipelago, visiting the Sultan of Sulu. The trip will last a month.

LIBERAL LAND BILL OFFERED.

Another Filipino Measure Would Bar Evolution in Schools.

Copyright, 1926, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

MANILA, July 18.—The first tangible reaction to Garmi Thompson's mission is the bill just introduced by Representative Festin of Romblon, to remove the restriction on ownership of land by foreign corporations, effective "on the day the United States grants the Philippines their independence."

The present land law limits corporations to 2,500 acres. It was passed by Congress, which has power to annul it without reference to the will of the Philippine Legislature, but which has interfered little with laws applicable to the Philippines, except on request of the Philippine Legislature. Similar bills are to be introduced by other Representatives in the near future, granting liberal land holding rights, but not removing all restrictions.

Another pending House bill would bar the teaching of evolution in public schools. Representative Pastor B. Noel of Cebu spoke against the measure which says in the preamble:

"The Filipino people are Christians and firmly believe the story of the origin of man as narrated in the Holy Scriptures. The theory of evolution evidently opposes and denies this fundamental belief. Therefore, to teach it in schools supported in whole or in part by the money of people who repudiate it is unwise, futile and preposterous. It means teaching a theory to the children of people who disbelieve it.

EXPOSITION OPEN ON SUNDAY

20,000 Visit Philadelphia Fair as Court Action Impends.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18 (AP).—All amusements at the Sesquicentennial Exposition operated today as usual, and officials asserted that they were better patronized than on the two preceding Sundays, despite the protests and impending court action against opening the exposition on the Sabbath.

More than 20,000 persons visited the grounds during the day and the Gladway, where most of the amusements are located, buzzed with activity. The exhibition buildings were visited by thousands, but only about 500 attended the religious services in the Auditorium.

Quo warranto proceedings in an effort to keep the amusement features of the exposition closed on Sundays are to be started by the State this week in the Dauphin County Courts. Attorney General Woodruff said that "misuse or abuse" of charter powers could be prevented in this way without annulling the charter or interfering with the "legal" running of the exposition.

BOMB BLOWS HOLE IN CHICAGO PRISON

EXPLOSIVES FOUND IN CELL

Convicts Made Great Uproar in the Belief That Roof of Old Building Was Falling.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Two sticks of dynamite fashioned into a bomb and believed to have been set by Henry J. Fernekes, the midget bandit, in an attempt to escape his impending doom on the gallows, today blew a fifteen-inch hole in the west wall of the old wing of the county jail. The bomb did not penetrate the twelve-inch wall, the outer part holding fast against the explosion.

In the midst of the sensation and clamor caused both within and without the jail by the explosion Assistant Warden Fred Springer and a dozen guards, all armed with repeating shotguns, surrounded the building to prevent a jail delivery had the wall been blown.

Sheriff Peter Hoffman, notified at his home in Desplaines, rushed to the jail at sixty miles an hour, picking up fifteen motorcycle deputies as he came.

The prisoners, deafened by the report, some fearing the roof of the rotting old structure was falling, shrieked and milled about in cells and bull-pens, raising a mighty uproar.

Every lead pointed to "Midget" Fernekes, according to the authorities. He was one of only five prisoners exercising in the bombed chamber. No other has the pall of death hanging over him, nor the skill of the dynamiter that is Fernekes's, nor the desperate record of the killer.

In Fernekes's cell the guards today found a cup of paraffin which had recently been heated by matches and a handful of black powder, both of which, according to officials, are used in detonating a dynamite bomb.

HISTORIANS FORM WORLD COMMITTEE

ROCKEFELLER FUND HELPS

Nineteen Nations Represented In Move to Restore Confidence Damaged During War.

A world-wide historical organization, bringing into contact the scholars of all nations, has been effected through the initiative of American historians, the American Historical Association announced yesterday at the headquarters of the National Endowment Committee at Columbia University.

A permanent International Committee of Historical Sciences, with Professor H. Koht of the University of Oslo, Norway, as President, has been formed. Provisional headquarters have been established in Washington. The Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial has contributed $25,000 to help the committee in its work of "developing the historical sciences through international cooperation."

An International Congress of Historians has been arranged, to be at Oslo in 1928, and another will probably be held at Warsaw in 1933. A bureau, or governing board, has been created to administer the committee, and will hold its first meeting in Paris this Fall.

Nineteen Nations Represented.

The permanent committee starts with the backing of nineteen nations, including Germany, Austria and Russia as well as the principal allied countries. Its Treasurer is Waldo G. Leland, Executive Secretary of the American Council of Learned Societies. Dr. Michael Lhéritier of Paris, attaché of the International Institute of Intellectual Cooperation of the League of Nations, is Secretary General.

The Vice Presidents are Professor Henri Pirenne of the University of Ghent and Professor A. Dopsch of the University of Vienna. Members of the governing board are: Professor B. Dembinski, University of Posen; Professor G. de Sanctis, University of Turin; Professor Friedrich Meinecke, University of Berlin; Professor H. W. V. Temperley, University of Cambridge.

Formation of the permanent committee, the outcome of a movement started at the Brussels Congress of 1923 by the American delegates, Mr. Leland and Professor James T. Shotwell of Columbia, was described in a statement of the Historical Association as an event "which frees scholarship from divisions imposed by the World War and releases a new and effective influence for international accord."

Hope for Scholars' Unity.

"It is the hope of American scholars," said the statement, "that the organization of the committee will prove to be a decisive step in the direction of restoring the mutual confidence and friendship of historical scholars in all parts of the world, which is so essential not only to the historical sciences but to all learning, and which would have its influence upon political relations as well as upon those between intellectuals."

Of the grant of $25,000 from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial, $6,000 is to be applied toward expenses of the permanent committee for 1926-1928 and $3,000 is to bear the cost of the secretariat during the same period. For the organization of the International congress of 1928, $1,000 has been appropriated. Publication of the International Year Book of Historical Bibliography will be aided by an allotment of $15,000, to be spent in the first three years of the committee's existence.

DE VALERA IS BACKED HERE.

American Boycott of British Goods Urged at Philadelphia Convention.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18 (AP).—Resolutions endorsing the policy of Eamonn De Valera that Irish Republicans accept seats in the Dail Eireann if they are not compelled to take the oath of allegiance to the King of Great Britain were adopted today by the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic.

The former President of the Irish Republic was loudly cheered by the several hundred delegates every time his name was mentioned. On the platform was De Valera's aged mother, Mrs. Katherine Wheelwright of Rochester, N. Y., and General Frank Aiken, former Chief of Staff of the Irish Republican Army.

President Arthur O'Connor presided.

Other resolutions adopted deplored the policy of the American Government of withholding recognition from the Irish Republic, advocated a boycott of British goods by Americans and congratulated the Egyptian people for "defying the might of the British Empire and its continuous attempt to dominate their country."

The resolutions asserted that England was wielding an "unwarranted influence in American affairs.

Sarajevo Landslide Disaster Denied.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, July 18 (AP).—A semi-official note has been issued denying the report that many were killed in a landslide near Sarejevo, Bosnia. It says there was a cave-in on the Sarejevo Railroad, caused by floods, but that there were no casualties from landslides. A report from Sarejevo by way of Laibach also denies a railway disaster.

A Vienna dispatch of Saturday reported that 117 persons were killed when a landslide buried a train.

Quick Signal by Passenger Saves Train as Wheel Breaks

WILDWOOD, N. J., July 18 (AP).—One car of the Pennsylvania Railroad excursion train from Wildwood, N. J., was derailed today when a wheel on the front truck of a car broke near Tuckahoe. No one was hurt.

The train was running at high speed, but the engineer, responding to signals from a passenger who pulled the signal rope, brought it to a stop within 1,000 feet.

The train carried 980 passengers and left Camden at 7 A. M.

OHLAU, Silesia, July 18.—As a result of the recent floods in the Oder River a hitherto unknown malady here, locally called "swamp sickness," has come into existence in this district. The symptoms of the ailment are sudden high fever and complete exhaustion. It is believed to be spread by swarms of gnats hovering over the muddy marshes on either side of the swollen stream.

More than 100 cases of this swamp fever has been reported thus far, mostly among farmers working in the flooded fields.

Representatives of the Federal Health Department have arrived here to investigate the malady and assist the local health authorities.

BOY ACCUSED OF MURDER.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 18.—A sixteen-year-old orphan boy, Charles Wise, has been arrested on the charge of murdering Miss Nina Viloni, a pianist, of Mount Vernon and New York. Her body was found under a pile of stones near Bradley, Sullivan County, on July 9. He has been committed to the county jail at Monticello to await an examination on Tuesday.

Wise had been residing on a farm not far from the scene of the slaying, and has been identified as one seen following Miss Viloni on the day of the killing.

The authorities say they have strong evidence against him.

Thief Poses as Phone Repair Man.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, July 18.—A sneak thief, posing as a telephone repair man, has been working here and in Mount Vernon. The thief usually gains entrance to homes by saying he is a repair man, then robs the place. The thief is about 25 years old, slender, has brown hair and wears brown working clothes.

renewed six times, which meant at least two centuries for each curb. The bucket rope wears a groove in the stone three to four inches deep, and the dirt is tracked in by the drawers of the water until it becomes level with the top of the curb. A new stone therefore has to be set in around the well to prevent the dirt from falling into the water below.

"There were fully two dozen grooves cut into the stone of each curb by the multitudes of Canaanites and Israelites who had used the wells in all those years."

City Built on a Hill.

Dr. Kyle said that Kirjath-Sepher was built on top of a hill, 700 feet high on the north side and sloping down toward the south side. For that reason the walls, which were from forty to forty-five feet high, were fifteen feet in thickness on the south and ten feet on the north side, where there was less danger of the city being besieged. The base of the wall, he said, was protected by a revetment fifteen feet deep at the level of the ground and tapering off as it ascended. The revetment, Dr. Kyle said, had been constructed with engineering skill, and consisted of beaten clay covered with two feet of rough stones so well set together that it took four of their native workmen two hours to pry one of them loose.

The east gate was found in a good state of preservation, Dr. Kyle said, and the zig-zag narrow passages to conceal the entrance to the city, were found and cleared of débris. The west gate, he explained, was destroyed when Kirjath-Sepher was burned and sacked by Nebuchadnezzar.

Dr. Kyle said that no attempt had been made to rebuild the city since 600 B. C., but that there was a Byzantine colony there in A. D. 600, and a small temple was erected in the valley a short distance away from the hill on which the ruins of the old city remained.

CONFIRM BIBLE STORY OF BETHSHAN TEMPLES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, July 18.—Important confirmation of the biblical statements regarding the town of Bethshan in the time of the Philistines has been discovered by the Palestine expedition of the University of Pennsylvania Museum of Philadelphia, which, under Alan Rowe, has now completed an examination of the material found at Beisan, the Bethshan of the Bible, during the working season of 1925.

It has already been reported that the expedition discovered altogether four Canaanite temples, two dating from the reign of the Pharaoh Ramses II, one from that of his predecessor, and one from the Tel el Amarna period.

The evidence shows that the southern temple of the Pharaoh Ramses II was dedicated to the warrior god Resheph, and the northern one to the goddess Antit, or Ashtaroth, whose monument was discovered in the building.

Until lately it had been thought that under the Pharaoh Rameses III the latter temple was not used, but the new discoveries prove the contrary.

At the death of King Saul, in 1020 B. C., the Philistines, who were in possession of Bethshan, were worshiping in two temples erected by Rameses II, their adoration of Dagon and Ashtaroth being doubtless conducted in the respective temples in which the Egyptians worshiped their Baal and Baaleth. (See first book of Chronicles, tenth chapter, tenth verse, and I Samuel, xxxi, 10.)

Dr. Rowe's investigations show that the building called the Temple of Dagon was the southern temple of Ramses II., and that that called the House of Ashtanoth and the house of their gods was the northern temple.

The Book of Chronicles clearly indicates the existence of two temples at Bethshan during the Philistine occupation, and the fact that there were two is now proved by the excavations.

The walls of the temples of Seti and Ramses bear evidence of having been built by Cretan (Minoan) mercenaries, who left signs on the bricks, characteristic cylindrical cult objects and ring flower stands. These indicate the presence of Cretan mercenaries in the Egyptian army at an earlier time than was previously supposed.

GRAIN BURNED IN DUNKIRK.

Communists Believed Responsible for Destruction on Docks.

DUNKIRK, France, July 18 (AP).—Fires broke out last night in several grain stores of the Quai des Americains.

Arson is strongly suspected, as the Communists for the last few days have given open warning that trouble would ensue should a number of their colleagues arrested for taking part in manifestations on Bastile Day be kept in jail.

In addition to quantities of grain destroyed, 400 tons of canned meats and vegetables were ruined.

Several hundred gendarmes are now guarding the port.

ATTACKS APPEALS FOR STRIKERS' YOUNG

Citizens' Committee of Passaic Denies Such Great Need of Milk—To Make Survey.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., July 18.—In announcing today the beginning of a survey of the Passaic industrial district to determine whether children of textile strikers were in need of milk, and to find out what relief may be necessary for their families, the Citizens Committee of Passaic, Clifton, Garfield and Wallington declared that the appeals on behalf of the strikers to the effect that 5,000 children were in need of milk were erroneous.

"Reports obtained by Dr. John N. Ryan, Health Commissioner of Passaic, prove that there are not that many children in the whole district using milk as a food," the committee said.

"Another statement indicates that the death rate among children in the Passaic industrial district is 82 per cent. higher than that of the rest of the State, as a whole. The latest report from the State Department of Health shows that the death rate in Passaic is actually the second lowest in the entire State, Paterson, a neighboring industrial centre, holding the record.

"Statements regarding general living conditions in Passaic and vicinity made by the Emergency Relief Committee of Textile Strikers and by the Committee of Sixty-three, soliciting funds for milk, are equally false. A recent survey conducted by the Research Division of the American Child Health Association, published in 1925, places Passaic among the upper twenty-nine industrial cities of the country in three of the eleven major health activities, and in the middle twenty cities in five other activities.

"Commenting on the infant welfare work done in Passaic, the survey states that: 'The infant welfare service is such as to place the city among the upper twenty-nine cities.'"

Among those who receive general honors for "first group" work, which represents the highest standard of academic attainment, is Donald Lorenzo Kemmerer of the junior class, son of Professor Edwin Walter Kemmerer, who is now in Poland on another of the many financial missions which in recent years have earned for him the title of "money doctor."

Among those who won general honors for "second group" work are Booth Tarkington Jameson, a senior of Indianapolis, nephew of the author, Booth Tarkington, who was graduated from Princeton in 1893; Joseph Patrick Tumulty Jr., a senior of Washington, D. C., son of the secretary of the late President Wilson; Frank Dan Waterman Jr., a senior of New York City, son of the Republican Mayoralty candidate last Fall, and Melancthon Williams Jacobus Jr., a freshman of Hartford, Conn., a son of the Rev. Dr. Jacobus, trustee of Princeton University and Chairman of the Curriculum Committee.

SKY CRASH SHAKES MAINE.

Supposed Bursting of Meteor Preceded by Blinding, Bluish Light.

PORTLAND, Me., July 18 (AP).—A crash which Professor Charles Hutchins of Bowdoin believes to have been the bursting of a meteor awakened thousands of people in Maine today at 3:08 A. M., Daylight Time. This city, Dexter, 130 miles north, and Saco, 15 miles south, are among the places reporting the phenomenon.

The crash was preceded by a blinding bluish light. The fact that there was no indication of an electric storm at the time added to the alarm of many. A thunder storm tonight did little damage in this section, although a number of minor fires were started.

WOODWARD FOR CONGRESS.

Rochester Man Seeks Seat Held by Dr. Jacobstein, Democrat.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 18.—Anxiety to spring a candidate who will be sufficiently strong to wrest Congressional representation in the 38th District from the Democratic Party today caused James L. Hotchkiss, Monroe County Republican Chairman, to break a precedent and announce the designation of Rolland B. Woodward, General Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, for the post.

Dr. Meyer Jacobstein, the present Democratic Representative, has been elected twice, running up a 2 to 1 vote in the 1924 election. Republican designations usually are left for announcement until the supervisors' picnic in August.

"If we can't win with him, we can't win with anybody," Mr. Hotchkiss said today, declaring that scores of persons have expressed themselves in favor of Mr. Woodward. The independent element, he said, leans to a Republican in sympathy with Senator Wadsworth, and the industrial group want a business man in favor of high tariff.

Mr. Woodward will make an aggressive campaign, he said.

Junior Fellow on Way West.

Thomas T. E. Cadett of The London Times, the first man to hold a Junior Fellowship, established in memory of Walter Hines Page by the English-Speaking Union of the United States, left this city on Friday fro San Francisco, it was announced yesterday. He will begin work on The San Francisco Chronicle on Aug. 1 and after two months there will work east, passing short periods in the offices of several newspapers.

FRANKLIN SEDAN

NEW PRICE $2790

FULLY EQUIPPED F.O.B. FACTORY

A Matchless Concentration of All that is Finest and Farthest Advanced in Motor Cars

PAY more if you want to. But you cannot get finer materials—more careful workmanship—smarter and more enduring style. And you cannot get as much comfort—as easy handling—or cover as many miles in a day!

Pay less if you have to. You can get transportation. You can get a good standardized appearance. You may possibly equal Franklin's 18 to 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline. But you cannot get the true and eventually greater economy that lies in Franklin's ability to keep out of the repair-shops, and in its exceptionally low depreciation—you cannot get the serene satisfaction and pride that only a fine car can give!

Concentrated in the Franklin Sedan today are more clear-cut performance advantages—more advanced construction and design—more sheer owner delight—than in any other car in the world. And its new price is the lowest by far at which any fully equipped Franklin Sedan has ever sold!

Aviation Proves Supremacy of Air-Cooling

No other sedan is cooled as the newest airplanes are—as Byrd's North Pole engines were—by air: no radiator worry, work or expense!

No other sedan has so many means of dissipating road bumps—of securing comfort. Franklin has not only balloon tires, Watson Stabilators, four-point body suspension and the deepest seat-cushion springs, but—far more important—full-elliptic springs, a flexible chassis frame, less proportionate weight below the springs than any other!

Exclusive Features Give Greatest Roadability

No other sedan has so many features to take the strain and exertion out of driving. It has less bulk—less weight—to hamper the driver, than any other of equal size—it has a steering-gear that allows it to turn with one-finger pressure—it has an extremely low-hung body—it has the marvelous non-skid transmission brake: surest, fastest, easiest-operating of all!

What these features mean in sustained speed over the road, Franklin's long list of road records bears witness. What they mean in economy, Franklin's life-long reputation for low upkeep costs testifies. And what they mean in endurance is shown by this: 75% of all Franklins built in 25 years are still in service!

A trial drive will demonstrate what Franklin principles do—and what an amazing value the Franklin Sedan at $2790 is. Come in and make the motoring discovery of your life—today!

The latest Franklin can be owned on terms which make it the wisest investment and the easiest fine car purchase today.

There Is No Better Investment Than Real Estate

Anyone who makes this broad statement is either a liar or a fool.

If you want your money on demand it is about the worst. Stick to Savings Banks. (I am now speaking to the non-expert).

If you want a steady income, bonds are far better.

BUT

Real Estate carefully selected, either through personal knowledge or dependable guidance, is in our opinion the very best investment in America for a surplus above current needs for one who can wait until pressure of population creates a strong demand and who won't have to sell at the first offer. The normal curve of real estate values is like this

SOUTHAMPTON SEES AMATEUR CIRCUS

Fancy-Dress Riding and Driving Party a Success—To Be an Annual Affair.

ANCIENT VEHICLES APPEAR

Mrs. Harry Hamlin's "Covered Wagon" Makes a Hit—Many Other Cottagers of Colony in Roles.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., July 18.—The East Hampton Riding Club gave on Saturday afternoon a fancy dress riding and driving party, which was so great a success that it will become an annual affair. More than 600 spectators were seated on the turf of a natural amphitheatre. There were about seventy-five entries. Prizes were presented to the winners by John Drew, who was one of the judges. Other judges were Mrs. Alber Herter, William H. Woodin, E. Clifford Potter, Grantland Rice and Hamilton King. Newell J. Ward was the announcer. Mrs. Robert Appleton, Chairman of all committees and originator of the party, appeared as Mary Queen of Scots in a gown of black velvet and silver.

A Striking Entry.

The most striking entry, winner of first prize, was Mrs. Harry Hamlin's "Covered Wagon," a battered and dust-covered replica of a Forty-niner wagon, strung with camping apparatus. The settler's family, represented by Mrs. Hamlin, Edward Rockwood, the Misses Connie Leake and Babette Manning and Nicholas Baldwin, wore costumes of the period. An escort of friendlily Indians included Jack and Neavit Steele, Robert Duryea and Miss Jane Baldwin as "singing birds."

Stewart Davis, as Chief Sitting Bull, accompanied by Mrs. Davis in squaw costume, and their young son, who was astride a colt, received first prize for historical authenticity.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ethridge, in an 1830 costume as "Darby and Joan," were driving Old Dobbin. Mr. and Mrs. Phelan Beale, as "Joy Riders of 1840," drove in an old Jerusalem gill, or gig, owned originally by an ancestor of Robert Dayton, a village resident, who loaned it for the occasion. It was the first vehicle with springs to be used in East Hampton.

Queen Elizabeth Appears.

Prizes for beauty and accuracy of costume went to Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Gardiner as the Earl of Essex and Queen Elizabeth and to Mrs. James McMahan as a court lady of the same period. She was garbed in red velvet and had a long, sweeping, red plume on her hat. Judge Bartlett, as the Prince of Wales, rode in an ancient victoria. Miss Jean Leonard, in white satin and black lace, was a Spanish beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Devereux won first prize for comic costumes. He appeared as a bare-back rider in tights, abbreviated skirts and flaxen curls, and she as a severely tailored ring master.

Another comedy note was furnished by Betty Jenny and Marquerite Taylor, clown bareback riders, who frequently fell off their horses. Several children appeared as jockeys on Robert Appleton's float. "The Suffocated Handicap," which received first prize for originality. The children, mounted on gayly painted hobby-horses, were Rosemary Ward, Barbara Leslie, Betty Clements, Shirley and Betty Bell, Jeanette Barton, Sarah Perot, Queenie Simmons and Audrey and Elaine Oakley.

Children in Many Roles.

Rosemary Ward's brother was an Indian scout; little Mollie Flagg and Dolly De Milhau, as Pierrot and Pierette, were seated back to back on a small donkey; Kay Goodman was Peter Rabbit, Katherine Carey a polo player, Marjorie Goodman a "thief of Bagdad."

Judy Hamlin and Betty Gleason, with large pompadours, broad hats and puff sleeves, dashed about in a runabout labeled "The Gay Nineties." Miss Elizabeth Barry and Miss Zella De Milhau, dressed as Joshua and Samantha, drove in a buggy which was used in 1841 by Benjamin Foster on his honeymoon.

GO TO MOUNTAINS TO WED.

C. A. Wilber, Binghamton Official, and Mrs. Tombs Married.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 18.—Mayor Clarence J. Cook of this city united in marriage today on Lime-Kiln Lake of the Fulton Chain, in the Adirondacks, Commissioner of Public Safety Cortland A. Wilber and Mrs. Lila Tombs, both of Binghamton. The ceremony took place in Commissioner Wilber's Summer cottage, and a score of Binghamton city officials and relatives of the bride and bridegroom who had motored to the lake yesterday were guests. A wedding luncheon was served at Delmarsh's on the lake.

Commissioner and Mrs. Wilber will be at home in this city after July 25. The Commissioner is a law partner of Former Lieut. Gov. Harry C. Walker.

GETS BERKSHIRE LANDMARK

Special to The New York Times.

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass., July 18.—Ownership of the old mission house at Stockbridge, built in 1740 by John Sergeant, first missionary to the Stockbridge Indians, has been obtained by Miss Mabel Choate through the generosity of Mrs. Charles W. Mayer of New York, whose husband died recently in Paris. The house will be moved from the Mayer estate on Prospect Hill in Stockbridge Plain, perhaps to the site of the Stockbridge Casino.

Miss Choate purposes to restore the house and give it to the town as a museum for the preservation of Berkshire antiquities. Its Colonial doorway is adjudged by experts to be one of the finest in existence. It is understood the museum will be a memorial to Miss Choate's father, the late Joseph H. Choate of New York, one-time Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

Army Planes Cannot Fly in Carnival.

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Secretary of War Davis has replied unfavorably to the request of officials of the Naval Carnival to be held at Hampton Roads, Va., Aug. 18-21, for the participation of army aircraft in exhibition flights. Training necessities of the Air Service and the schedule of work laid out in advance make it desirable, the Secretary wrote, that other flying "be kept to an absolute minimum." He further pointed out that the law forbids exhibition flights by army planes from other than Government fields "except where an indemnity bond has been furnished to insure the Government against liability."

NEWPORT UNVEILS A WELL OF FAME

T. Suffern Tailer Brings 1,100-Year-Old Cover From Italy to His Ocean Links.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 18.—Like ancient Greek and Roman cities, Newport now has a well of fame, the first in the country. The well, which is a memorial to famous golfers, was unveiled this afternoon by Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, woman champion of the United States, and dedicated with brief ceremonies on Ocean Links, T. Suffern Tailer's private course, in the presence of an immense gallery. The members of the Summer colony were out en masse and there were hundreds of the residents of the city present, as well as many from other cities.

Mr. Tailer was master of ceremonies. When Miss Collett removed the covering that hid the well from view, a carved stone well curb, said to be 1,100 years old, which Mr. Tailer had brought from Italy, was exposed to view, with its unique bronze top.

In a group about the well with Mr. Tailer and Miss Collett were Mayor Mortimer A. Sullivan, State Senator William F. Whitehouse and Francis Ouimet, who made brief addresses; John Russell Pope, architect of the memorial, and his assistant architects, Henry Walters and Robert Goelet. Mrs. Tailer, Miss Betty Tailer and Tommy Tailer, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Miss Grace Vanderbilt, Mrs. Walters, Mrs. Goelet and a few others stood close by and were the first to be escorted down to the well after the speaking was over and Mr. Ouimet had led in three cheers for Mr. Tailer.

On the old well curb has been placed a cover of bronze with a drinking fountain in its centre. On this bronze tablet have been inscribed the names of the winners of the Gold Mashie Tournament, the winners of the Gold and Silver Ball Tournaments, the names of the women winners and others who have excelled on Ocean Links. Space had been left for adding names.

Before the dedication Miss Collett, Mr. Ouimet, former national amateur and open champion and winner of the gold mashie on Ocean Links last year; Richard A. Jones Jr., semi-finalist this year, and Tommy Tailer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tailer, who holds the course record this year, played a foursome, followed by a large gallery. Miss Collett, who for three years has held the course record for women, lowered it today.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., July 18.—Who is to be the metropolitan open champion for 1926 threatens to become the greatest golf mystery of all time. MacDonald Smith, Lakeville luminary, and Gene Sarazen, Fresh Meadow lark, the only two who can possibly solve the riddle, did their level best to shed some light on the matter at the Salisbury Country Club today, but at nightfall every one was as much in the dark as ever.

One hundred and eight golf holes have now been played in the attempt to find out whether Gene is to retain the title, which he won a year ago, or if Smith is to add it to the laurels he now holds—the Western and Long Island open crowns—and the situation is no different than it was when they started out, except that only two men are involved instead of 150. Each has negotiated the No. 3 course at Salisbury six times and the number of strokes is exactly the same—428.

Another attempt will be made to settle the Vexatious problem on Saturday, and if the two principals continue to play as they have for the last four days they will be lucky, indeed, if they get out of the trenches by Christmas. So far as the records of golf show, there has never been such a long stretch of holes played in any major championship.

May Finish on Saturday.

A year ago Willie Macfarlane and Bobby Jones played two extra rounds before Macfarlane gained the national open title, but Smith and Sarazen already have played two, and the end is not yet in sight. They may finish it on Saturday, then again they may not.

Even if the length of the match does not establish a record, the calibre of the golf does. Usually one or the other lets down somewhere even in a one-round play-off, but today neither Smith nor Sarazen let down for so much as a moment. They played the morning round in 70s, three under par, and the afternoon round in 72, one under.

Altogether each has played the course six times for an average of 71 1-3, one and two-thirds strokes under par, and, figured still another way, they have played 108 holes in four strokes under even 4s.

The scores today are all the more remarkable when it is considered that they were made under anything but ideal conditions. In the morning a shifting wind blew over the course and between rounds a heavy rain fell. The rain made shot making difficult and in addition the wind gained force so that all afternoon the two rivals were hampered to a great extent in their playing. A gallery of close to 1,000 persons followed the contestants.

Few matches with so much at stake have had so many dramatic moments as this one, and in few matches has the golf been so monotonously superb. Smith, aided by a bit of bad putting on Sarazen's part, opened up a two-stroke gap on his Fresh Meadow rival before they reached the third green, but caught him at the fourth, playing a great second shot to win the third and holing a twenty-five-foot putt at the fourth.

Smith Again in Lead.

Smith again opened up a two-stroke lead when he holed the short eighth in 2, but Sarazen, fighting back, reduced it to one stroke by taking the eleventh and squared it by winning the fourteenth with a birdie 3. After that it was nip and tuck between them all the way, and up to the very end they were never more than a stroke apart.

Gene never succeeded in getting in the lead until the fifteenth hole in the afternoon, when he managed to hole a twenty-five-footer—the only long one he got down all day—and with only three holes to play, he looked to be at last on the right track. A bad shot to the second followed, and his lead and advantage had vanished.

With the honor in his possession playing the thirty-fifth hole of the match and the seventeenth of the round, he missed the green on the right and was in the face of a trap. Smith was on, quite a distance from the cup. Then Sarazen made one of his few mistakes, so far as recovering went. He chipped out too strong and sent his ball almost as far beyond the hole as Smith was away on the tee shot.

A 4 resulted and Mac got a 3 and the match was again at loggerheads.

The last hole was almost as critical for Sarazen as it had been for Smith in the morning. In the first instance, with everything even, Smith got away a weird slice that would have been out of bounds had it not been that the ball hit a tree and an automobile and bounced back into the fairway, from where he pitched out and got his par 5 to equal Sarazen's.

Gene Gets in the Rough.

In the afternoon it was Gene who faded his second shot into the rough and who placed his title in jeopardy by playing a feeble pitch that just managed to get on the green. With Smith's ball perched up fifteen or eighteen feet from the hole, Sarazen had a long putt to lay dead playing the odd, and he didn't lay it dead. He was left with a good putt to hole for his 5, but courageously put it in just as Smith had done when faced with the same ordeal in the morning.

For the greater part of the match Gene was fighting with his back to the wall. In the morning, for example, he played the first nine holes in even 4s and yet was two strokes down. "What can you do with a fellow like that?" he asked, and no answer was forthcoming. But he stood by his guns manfully, fighting a great uphill fight all the way and never once showing signs of quitting, even if his putter was letting him down frightfully.

It wasn't that he was taking three putts, for he did that only once during the match, but he was missing putts of a size that Smith was holing.

Outside of his luck at the home hole in the morning Mac got another good break. That was at the fourth hole in the morning when he might have been out of bounds, and wasn't. Had not his ball taken a fortunate kick he might have had to put down a 6 or a 7 instead of a 4 and the struggle would have been over then and there. As it was, there was not a single hole in the entire match where either gained or lost more than one stroke.

The breaks in the match, however, were not all against Sarazen and with Smith. There was more than one instance during the two rounds where Mac's putt, headed for birdies, stayed on the very lip of the cup, refusing to drop. In fact, for the greater part of the match Sarazen, playing as nearly perfect golf as any one could hope to play, was outdone by his opponent, and only his tremendous fighting ability enabled him to hang on in the manner he did. He generally was struggling for his halves. Seldom was the shoe on the other foot.

Sarazen Shows Strain.

There was once when Gene seemed to be faltering. That was on the eleventh hole in the afternoon when he took three from just off the edge of the green with a chance to become 1 up. The saving of his half at the twelfth, where he had to play out of a trap almost stone dead bolstered him up, and from there in he played with his head up so far as spirit went, but down as concerned his golf.

Sarazen had a big advantage over Smith off the tee, outdriving the Lakeville star on seven holes, sometimes by margins as great as forty yards. Smith played the odd seven times going out and Gene once. At the one short hole Smith was inside and he was inside Sarazen also at four others.

On the incoming nine in the morning Mac had the honors, being ahead on four of the six long holes. He was also inside Gene, 6 to 3, having the best of the play at each of the three short ones.

Sarazen again outdrove Smoth on the outgoing nine in the afternoon, the figures being 5 for Gene and 2 for Mac, one hole being even. Sarazen was also inside Mac's ball on five green going out. Coming in, Smith played the odd off the tee at four holes, Sarazen at one. At one hole the honors were even. Smith had the best of it on the greens, getting inside Gene's ball on five.

Sarazen took 29 putts in the morning, Smith 32. Gene had seven 1-putt greens and Mac 4. Gene had 33 putts in the afternoon round and Mac 34. The 1-putt greens in the afternoon round were Sarazen 4 Smith 3. Each had one 3-putt green during the round.

Smith Takes First Hole.

Sarazen got a break at the very outset when, after overplaying the green with his second shot, he chipped back beautifully to less than a club's length from the hole, only to miss the putt. Smith, who was on the green with his second, about five yards from the hole, got down in two putts and took the lead, 4 to 5.

Again at the second hole Sarazen, after pitching his second to within four feet of the pin, missed the putt, while Smith holed a ten-footer for his second birdie and added another stroke to his lead.

With his back against the wall Sarazen forced luck to break his way at the next hole. Playing a low pitch to within a yard, Gene holed this one for a birdie 3 and won the honor when Smith, strong with his approach and on the far edge of the green, almost over it, putted back short.

At the fourth hole Smith pulled his tee shot so near the out-of-bounds stakes that he played a provisional ball. The first one, however, was found lying inside, it having taken a lucky kick to the right as it landed, thus saving the Lakeville star from a stroke and distance penalty. Gene won the hole with a birdie 3, sinking a twenty-five-fo putt.

Fifth Goes to Smith.

Thus far every hole had been won in birdie figures. Par was sufficient to give Smith the fifth hole, for Sarazen put his second into a bunker and, after playing a great explosion shot out to within two yards, missed the putt. Smith, after playing a great second shot to within four yards, had a good chance for a birdie but figured the roll wrong and missed the hole by a foot.

Smith now led by a stroke and there was no change in the situation until three holes ahead. Smith got back his two-stroke lead at the short eighth, where he pitched to within six yards and then holed a side-hill downhill putt for a birdie 2. Sarazen was in the sand at the edge of a trap, but sank a five-footer for a par 3 to save himself from losing two strokes instead of one.

The ninth was halved in 4s, although Smith almost dropped a thirty-footer for a birdie 3. Smith was out in 34, three strokes under par, and Sarazen in 36.

The first hole at which neither succeeded in getting a par was the short tenth, which was halved in 4s. Smith drove into the mounds at the left of the green and Sarazen into a trap at the right. Both recovered weakly. Sarazen cut Smith's two-stroke lead down to one by winning the par 4 eleventh, 4 to 5.

Twelfth Is Halved.

Sarazen got a good half at the twelfth. After hooking to the rough and playing his second into a trap that he couldn't see out of, he exploded out to a yard and got his 4. Smith was on the green in 2, but a long way from the hole and his putt lacked three inches of giving him a 3. The thirteenth was also halved, but in birdie figures. This time it was Smith who had to work for his half. His drive was in the rough, but he played a gorgeous midiron to seven feet away. Gene was more than twice the distance away and neither holed, although both came close.

The fourteenth was a peculiar hole. Driving down wind, Smith almost reached the green, 325 yards away. Sarazen was some distance behind, but pitched up to ten feet and holed out for a 3, while Smith, after running too strong, missed a six-footer, his ball hitting the back of the cup and jumping away. That left matters all square with four holes to play.

The short fifteenth was a beautifully played hole. Sarazen, having the honor, pitched on to fifteen feet, but Mac got inside and ran down a two-yarder for a 2.

Sarazen squared the match on the sixteenth, where he got a birdie 4. Fate, which had dealt Sarazen several jolts during the match, gave him two belts in succession at the last two holes. His putt for a 2 from ten feet hung on the lip of the seventeenth and another putt, this one a four-footer, did the same thing on the last hole.

After a bad drive to the eighteenth, he played a great brassie shot and followed it with a marvelous run-up which stopped four feet above the hole. As a matter of fact, he should have won the hole any way, for Smith's second shot was badly sliced and the only thing that kept it from going out of bounds was that it hit an automobile and a tree and bounded back on the fairway, but he got down in two putts for a half.

Mac Again Scores First.

Resuming operations in the afternoon, Smith again won the first hole with a birdie 4 although Sarazen had the better of it after the second shots. The Fresh Meadow professional dropped a fifteen-foot putt for a birdie 3 at the second hole. Smith, with a great second, got within four feet, but missed it and honors were again even. The next three holes were halved in par figures. Smith broke the tie by getting a birdie at the sixth, his pitch stopping two feet from the hole. Gene was eight feet past and failed to hole. Sarazen came right back at him with a birdie 4 on the seventh, after being in the rough with his second.

Smith reached the eighth green from the tee and got down in two putts, taking the lead again. Sarazen was short from the tee and again short with his approach, making an attrocious effort to hole a six-footer for his half. The ninth was halved in par 4s and Smith led by one stroke, the figures being 35 and 36.

The tenth was disastrous for Smith, who three-putted it, missing a meager eighteen inch putt for a half. That made them all even and they remained that way for four holes. Putting cost Gene the eleventh, which he had every right to win. He was only a yard off the green with two great shots and missed a putt of the same length as Smith's miss on the hole before. Smith had to struggle for his 5, for his drive was in the rough.

Putts Close to Cup.

Smith had to play a great shot out of the heavy rough and over a mound to get near the hole. As it was, his putt for a 4 stopped on the lip of the cup. Gene got down in one putt after being short at the twelfth, and the thirteenth was played via the on-in-two, down-in-two method.

Mac was in the rough going to the fourteenth and Sarazen had his second chance to forge ahead but was short on a ten-foot putt.

Sarazen managed to get into the lead for the first time at the fifteenth hole when he dropped an eight-yard putt for a birdie 2. Smith was inside him on the tee shot and just missed on his try for a half, Sarazen sliced to the rough playing to the long sixteenth and his second was also in the rough, near the green. His third barely got on and his next was four feet short, but he holed it for a good five and a half.

One stroke to the good and two holes to play, Sarazen threw his advantage away by driving into the face of a trap at the seventeenth and then failing to put his recovery near the hole. Smith was on and down in two putts for a par 3.

At the last hole Gene sliced his second and was short of the green on his third, but holed a good five-footer for his half. Smith was on the green in three, five yards above the hole, but was short on his down hill putt for a 4. Sarazen came home in 36 and Smith in 37, giving each a 72, one under par.

EASTERN OPEN GOLF WILL START TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

DELAWARE WATER GAP, Pa., July 18.—In spite of a severe rainstorm here today, enthusiasm was still ripe for the start of the Eastern open championship on the links of the Wolf Hollow Golf Club tomorrow. There were well over a hundred named on the starting list, with the great majority expected to put in their appearance at the first tee.

The successive open tournaments of the past ten days have proved to be a severe test of endurance, however, more than was realized, causing several of the big stars to change their minds.

Such stars as Hagen, Mehlhorn, Farrell, Cooper, Turnesa, Walker, Cruickshank, Derr and Williams guarantee that the field will be the fastest that ever played in the East, outside of a national open.

ANDERSON IS VICTOR AT LONG ISLAND NET

KYNASTON HALTED BY RAIN

Leads Ferrier at 2 Sets to 1 and at 2-1 in Fourth Set When Final Is Stopped at Woodmere.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

WOODMERE, L. I., July 18.—Percy L. Kynaston of Rockville Centre was leading Maurice Ferrier, former Swiss champion, at 2 sets to 1 and 2–1 in the fourth set of their match in the final round of the Long Island tennis championship this afternoon at the Woodmere Club when rain forced the players to abandon the courts.

The match will be resumed later in the week. The score when play came to a halt stood at 1–6, 6–2, 6–1, 2–1 in Kynaston's favor.

Fred C. Anderson and J. Cecil Donaldson of the Terrace Club of Flatbush captured the doubles title for the second year in succession, Lewis Gordon and L. O. Pratt of Harvard were their opponents in the final, and were defeated at 3–6, 6–2, 6–3, 6–3. The doubles match was started early in the afternoon, while the singles did not get under way until after 5 o'clock.

Kynaston, who holds one leg on the Long Island Cup, made a poor start against Ferrier today and for a while it looked as though the Swiss were going to follow up his victory over Jerry Lang by putting out the Long Island star.

But it was only a matter of Kynaston steadying down. Once he got his ground strokes to behaving properly, and he did that in the second chapter, Ferrier was always on the defensive, trying valniy to get to the net and equally in vain to match his opponent in depth and angles on his ground strokes.

The Swiss player covered court in his customary dogged fashion, making any number of remarkable recoveries, but the large percentage of his returns were gets and it was not long before his legs tired under him and left him at the mercy of Kynaston's cleverly deployed placements.

Donaldson was the outstanding man in the final of the doubles. The youthful Terrace Club representative stroked with so much power that it was hard to handle his shots cleanly and he had the knack of placing the ball in just the right place, either between the opposing pair or close to the side lines.

Anderson had his brilliant moments in the exciting close-order rallies and some of his overhead smashes were gems, but he was not as steady as his younger partner and did not have as many finishing shots.

In the opening set Pratt and Gordon seemed to be worthy of the steel of the Brooklyn combination, teaming together with smoothness and carrying the fight to their opponents with aggressive drives and clean-cut volleying. Anderson and Donaldson could not seem to find their best strokes against this kind of opposition and were vanquished in the volleying settos and outsteadied in the driving exchanges.

In the second set the Terrace Club players steadied down and began to play their best tennis. The Harvard men made a fight of it to the end, but Donaldson's brilliancy was more than they could withstand. For every pretty shot they sent over another came back from the Brooklyn youth until he had his way and the point.

MISS WILLS AT WEST SIDE.

Practices Forty Minutes and Plans Workouts Every Day This Week.

Miss Helen Wills, national woman's tennis champion, went through a practice session lasting forty minutes yesterday at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills. This was twice the length of her first workout on Friday, following her return from abroad.

Miss Wills stated that she felt fine after coming off the court with Paul Heston, the assistant professional, but she was not quite sure yet whether or not she would defend her title in the national championship in August. She declared that she wants to wait a week or two longer before coming to a decision.

Miss Wills will continue to practice at Forest Hills throughout the week, playing there this afternoon and mornings or afternoons on the other days. The champion stated that she may go to Manchester, Mass., on Monday to play in the invitation tournament of the Essex County Club and expects to compete in the Seabright tournament, starting on Aug. 2.

Western Amateur to Begin Today.

WHITE BEAR LAKE, Minn., July 18 (AP).—An array of golfing talent will start the quest tomorrow for the Western amateur golf crown worn by Keefe Carter of Oklahoma City. More than 150 entries are expected to tee off tomorrow on the White Bear Yacht Club links.

HAVANA, Cuba, July 18 (AP).—In the second series of singles in the Davis Cup elimination contests today Jack Wright of Canada defeated Vincente Banet of Cuba, 6–4, 7–5, 6–2. This evened the matches at two-all, with one singles yet to play. The singles match between W. F. Crocker of Canada and Rogelio Paris of Cuba was stopped by rain with the score of the first set 4–3 in favor of Paris.

MISS NORELIUS CLIPS WORLD SWIM MARK

AMERICAN STANDARD FALLS

Miss Eileen O'Mara and Miss Delaney Both Shatter 200-Meter Back-Stroke Long-Course Mark.

Special to The New York Times.

HOOSICK FALLS, N. Y., July 18.—Miss Martha Norelius shattered the world's record for 880 yards, free style, and the Misses Eileen O'Mara and Elaine Delaney both beat the American long course standard for the 200-meter back stroke at the second day of competition under the auspices of the Babcock Lake Club in Babcock Lake today. All the prize winners represented the Women's Swimming Association.

Competing in a downpour over a fifty-five-yard course, Miss Norelius won a half-mile handicap from scratch in 12:55 and clipped one second from the universal mark set by Miss Ethel McGary at Indianapolis last Summer. She defeated by a wide margin Miss Sarah Lord, who had 50 seconds.

The Misses O'Mara and Delaney went under the dorsal record in a scratch race. The former captured the event in 3:22 1-5. The latter was second in 3:24 3-5, both clipping the old mark of 3:26 4-5, established by Miss Doris O'Mara over the same course three weeks ago.

Miss Agnes Geraghty just missed her own national record for the 220-yard breast stroke in a handicap. She won the event in 3:28 1-5, less than one second behind her best previous time. Miss Matilda Schuerich, allowed 6 seconds, was a close runner-up.

A 220-yard free-style handicap for girls under 14 brought out another youngster of sterling promise in Miss Eleanor Madigan. It was her first furlough race, and she swam in the fine time of 3:20 1-5.

The summaries:

200-Meters Breast-Stroke Swim (Handicap)—Won by Miss Agnes Geraghty (scratch), Miss Matilda Schuerich (6 seconds), second; Miss Adelaide Lambert (8 seconds), third. Time—3:28 1-5.

800-Yard Swim, (Handicap)—Won by Miss Martha Norelius (scratch), Miss Sarah Lord (50 seconds), second; Miss Ruth Morgan (60 seconds), third. Time—12:55.

220-Yard Swim, Girls Under 14 (Handicap)—Won by Miss Gladys Maguire (61 seconds); Miss Rita Brereton (38 seconds), second; Miss Eleanor Madison (6 seconds), third. Time—4:16 2-5.

110-Yard Swim (Handicap)—Won by Miss Helen Katerba (12 seconds); Miss Kathryn Brown (scratch), second; Miss Ruth Bracker (3 seconds), third. Time—1:32 1-5.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 18 (AP).—Thomas E. Lunt of the Monroe Golf Club scored a hole-in-one here today on the 168-yard fifteenth hole of the country club of Rochester course.

Lord Wodehouse Ships Ponies; Lewis Lacey Slightly Injured

LONDON, July 18 (AP).—Lord Wodehouse, well-known British polo player, will sail for the United States on Aug. 11 to compete in the American open championship with the Harlequins. His string of ponies was shipped to the United States yesterday. In the game in which the Argentine El Gordos defeated the Seventeenth and Twenty-first Lancers yesterday, Lewis Lacey, the Argentine player, was slightly injured in a collision with an opposing player, it was learned today. His hurts were not serious.

LANG BEATS MAJOR AFTER LOSING SET

Defender in New York Title Tennis Wins, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2—Orser Extends Bowman.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., July 18.—Jerry Lang, defending title-holder, and Herbert L. Bowman, who holds two legs on the challenge cup, were both forced to concede a set to their opponents today in advancing in the New York State tennis championship at the Hempstead Country Club.

Cedric Major of the West Side Tennis Club, who ranks eighteenth nationally, one position behind Lang, threatened to rob the tournament of its champion when he took the first set from Lang at 6–3, but Lang smothered his fast drives in the second and third chapters. The score was 3–6, 6–1, 6–2.

Horace Orser, one of the likeliest looking of the younger metropolitan players, gave Bowman trouble all the way before submitting at 6–3, 3–6, 6–4. Orser's beautiful forcing shots that barely cleared the net and his smooth volleying and stinging service were a source of worriment to Bowman constantly and it was only by setting himself to his task every minute that Bowman came through in the deciding set.

Percy L. Kynaston, Edward Feibleman and Luis Heyden, three more of the favorites, made their first appearance in the play today. Kynaston and Feibleman advanced without losing a set, but Heyden was forced to show his best wares before getting by Victor Hockmeyer at 6–4, 4–6, 6–0. Kynaston beat Hampton D. Ewing Jr. 6–4, 6–2, while Feibleman put out J. P. Guiler at 6–0, 6–2.

One of the most notable victories of the day was scored by William Einsmann, who put out J. Gilbert Hall. Hall took the first set easily enough, but cracked badly and dropped twelve games in a row.

First Round—Cedric Major defeated H. McTigue, 6–0, 6–1; R. Tailer Townsend defeated W. E. Gossett, 6–2, 6–1; Gregory Mangin defeated G. McCabe, 6–0, 6–4.

Second Round—Kenneth D. Appel defeated F. J. Salicha, 8–0, 6–2; William Einsmann defeated J. G. Hall, 2–6, 6–0, 6–0; Percy L. Kynaston defeated Hampton D. Ewing Jr., 6–4, 6–2; Gerald B. Emerson defeated H. Dietz, 6–1, 6–2; Luis Heyden defeated Victor F. Hockmeyer, 6–4, 4–6, 6–0; L. J. Salmon defeated E. P. Snow, 6–3, 7–5; Edward Feibleman defeated J. P. Guiler, 6–0, 6–2.

Third Round—Herbert L. Bowman defeated Horace Orser, 6–3, 3–6, 6–4; Jerry Lang defeated Cedric Major, 3–6, 6–1, 6–2.

A CARD OF 26 RACES HELD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, July 18.—The Great All-Union Derby—that is its official title—was run today for a prize of 10,000 rubles before a crowd of 50,000 persons. Despite the title, the race did not resemble the English Derby.

Firstly, today's event was not racing but trotting, which is far more popular here. Secondly, four-year-olds instead of three-year-olds competed, and thirdly, the race was run in two heats with all eleven competitors in both. The winner was adjudged by time.

A dark bay stallion, Marquis, was the winner of the first heat in 2:17, whereas Bonaparte, the winner of the second heat, in which Marquis was unplaced, passed under the wire in 2:20. The American system of using a wire for trotting finishes prevails here. The race was run on an oval dirt track exactly a mile around.

It is a tribute to the universal appeal of horse racing that there is little outward difference between the European race track and the scene today in Moscow, where generally all differences are so pronounced. The grand stand was packed with race fans who paid 50 cents for admission to the cheaper section and $1.50 for places in the enclosure. In the latter one was surprised by the good quality of clothes worn by most of the spectators—especially the women. It takes no great flight of the imagination to forsee the employment of mannequins with the latest modes here soon—if indeed they have not already arrived. A young woman in a charming costume of beige silk was pointed out as an assistant manager of a dressmaking store run by the Soviet silk trust.

The bourgeois appearance of the reserved enclosure was accentuated by the absence of Government authorities. There were one or two high ranking soldiers and a General commanding the remount department, but apparently there were no important civilians present.

The betting was limited by a totalisator with a unit of only three rubles, the Derby winner paying eighteen rubles, or 5 to 1. The number of spectators placing bets was infinitely smaller than in Western Europe, despite the fact that the Russians generally are fond of gambling.

The public certainly got plenty for its money—no less than twenty-six races being held. The program began at noon and ended at 9:30 P. M. Nearly all the horses entered are owned by farms under Government control, but in the Derby a privately owned horse, Mac, driven by its owner, Zaitsef, ran. It finished nowhere.

Among the drivers was an elderly American, C. Keyton, who was one of the big figures of the trotting turf here in the old days. He managed an extensive stable which was "nationalized" after the revolution, but was left under his charge. He drove Zelim Khan, which did not figure in either heat.

SHUT-OUT OF YANKS IS FIRST OF SEASON

KEN WILLIAMS HITS HOMER

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Jezebel Tecumseh Zachary swung a mean left arm yesterday and the Yanks went down to their first shut-out defeat of the season, 4 to 0. The ancient wing of Mr. Zachary was in magic form. It made the ball quiver and dance before the startled eyes of the Yanks, whose closest approach to home plate was second base.

While Zachary applied the white-wash, Messrs. Gerber and Melillo held the bucket. These two infielders accepted twenty-one chances between them, tore off four damaging double plays and covered the infield like a carpet.

The St. Louis outfielders just stood around and admired the wonderful work of their colleagues. Only three putouts went to the outer cordon, and Bing Miller snatched all three of these. Ken Williams and Harry Rice might as well have left their gloves on the bench and taken a ukulele out with them.

Mr. Williams's day, however, was not wasted. In the third inning, with the score 2 to 0 and a runner on second, he smashed a nice home run into the right field bleachers, driving Samuel P. Jones from the mound and strengthening the conviction among 30,000 customers that the Yanks were in for a spanking.

Browns Make Four Double Plays.

Zachary struck out men when he had to but generally he relied on his little pals at shortstop and second base to do the manual labor. Gerber started right in in the first inning grabbing everything in sight. In the second he cut loose with a brilliant stop behind second, and in the third came the first of four double plays that ruined the afternoon for the Yankees.

There was another one in the fifth. Dugan singled with one out but Collins grounded to Gerber, which was just the same as taking a running leap from the Brooklyn Bridge. In the sixth, Koenig also committed hara-kiri by hitting a grounder to Gerber with Paschal on first and one out. Ruth started the seventh with a single and everybody got excited, but Gehrig soon stopped that with another double play routed through Gerber, Melillo and Boss Sisler.

The main Yankee rally of the afternoon was killed off by bad luck and the St. Louis infield. Gazella batted for Myles Thomas in the sixth and singled to right. Paschal drilled a grounder between Sisler and Melillo but the ball glanced off Gazella, who was called out after he had safely reached third. This explains why the Yanks took their first shutout of the year.

Yanks Helpless in Pinches.

Zachary was not all-powerful, allowing nine hits, but the Yanks were as helpless as a babe in the pinches. Especially Mr. Lazzeri, who fanned three times in three attempts. Zachary unkindly failed to issue a base on balls, very rarely got into trouble and had hair-line control.

Jones's feebleness in the first three innings was our undoing. Melillo doubled to start the game but Rice bunted into Dugan's hands and the Italian was doubled off second. Sisler then singled but Williams fanned.

Not so in the second. With one out McManus singled and went to third on Schang's hit to right, scoring when Gerber sacrifice-flied to Combs.

The passing of Squire Jones took place in the third. Melillo singled over Jones's head and chased to third on Rice's single. Sisler raised a fly to Ruth and Melillo scored. The Babe showed bad judgment by throwing home, which permitted Rice to help himself to second. Williams missed a shot at the bleachers, then landed one in front of the exit gate. Jones was yanked and seemed annoyed, although the Brownies had thumped him for seven hits in three innings.

Thomas and Hoyt Step In.

Thomas filled in up to the seventh and Waite Hoyt took hold for the remainder. Six innings of fine pitching couldn't undo three of bad.

The Yanks might have scored in the second but Gerber's fine stop killed off one and Zachary then fanned Lazzeri. Dugan singled, putting Combs on second, but Collins also fell on strikes. In the fourth Gehrig doubled over Williams's head but was out by a yard twwing for third.

COVELESKIE BEATEN BY THE INDIANS, 5-3

Speaker Leads Attack on Former Team-Mate With Two Drives and Senators Lose.

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Cleveland collected most of its hits in two innings, to shake the jinx Coveleskie, a former team-mate, has held over the Indians for two years, and defeated Washington 5 to 3 today. Ragged base-running offset the Senators' heavier hitting.

Manager Speaker led in the attack on Colveleskie, making a double and a triple and scoring two runs. The box score:

35,000 See McQuillan Tapped for Victory After He Had Held Foe Scoreless.

ROOT HOLDS McGRAWMEN

Allows Only Seven Hits and Strikes Out Eight, Including Kelly With Man on Third.

By IK SHUMAN.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Howard Freigau, Hack Wilson and Riggs Stephenson, three Chicago artillerymen, broke up an orderly diplomatic conversation between pitchers here today, and while 3,500 primitive persons shrieked with joy at the exhibition of force of arms the Cubs won the second of the series from the Giants, 2 to 1.

It was an exhibition of brute force triumphing in a moment over delicate negotiations between two highly skilled ambassadors of the mound, Hugh McQuillan of the Giants and Charles Root of the Cubs. But it was also a retaliation for an overt act committed early in the parley by the retinue of Ambassador McQuillan, and as such was as justified as it was pleasant.

Ambassador McQuillan and Ambassador Root had it diplomatically nip and tuck until the Giants became impatient in the third session of the parley and sent a Giant across the Cubs' border into the forbidden territory of their own home plate.

McQuillan Rules Till Seventh.

Ambassador McQuillan was able by skillful negotiation to keep the forces of the Cubs in check until the seventh session of the parley. Freigau made the first hostile movement with a single, Wilson followed with a double and Stephenson delivered a single which made diplomacy thereafter utterly futile so far as Ambassador McQuillan was concerned.

He was recalled in the eighth in favor of a battler named Jimmy Johnston, and the parleying for the remainder of the meeting was done by Chick Davies. Altogether it was diplomacy of a high order.

For the first seven innings only twenty men faced Ambassador McQuillan. He permitted them only two hits and none went beyond second base. Ambassador Root yielded only seven hits in the entire nine innings and struck out eight men, one of them George Kelly, a mighty Giant battler, in the ninth when a man was on third, two out and even the merest hit would have tied the game.

The meeting was practically all devoted to the spectacle of the ambassador's negotiations and the really exciting moments came only during the aggressions of the artillerymen.

Giants Make First Move.

As on yesterday, the Giants started the aggression. Young was permitted by Ambassador Root to advance sightly toward the Cubs' territory on a walk. Freddie Lindstrom, a former Chicagoan whose associates at Loyola presented him with flowers earlier in the meeting along with a fellow Chicagoan, Paul Florence, singled to left, sending Young to third. Lindstrom tried to move to second on the throw in and was caught in a traffic jam of Chicagoans between first and second. Meusel lifted a sacrifice fly to Wilson, and Young scored with the Giants' only run.

Nothing at all happened thereafter until the seventh. Freigau hit a high ball on the outside to centre for a single. Wilson hit the same sort into a crowd in right field. Ground rules limited each runner to two bases, and then Stephenson hit a high slow one to centre for a single which scored both men ahead of him.

Terry replaced Florence in an attempt at a rally in the eighth and struck out. Ambassador Root threw out Johnston. Heinie Mueller, who made three of his team's hits, singled, but was stranded at first when Frisch popped to Wilson.

The Giants tried again in the ninth. Young led with a single, he reached third on grounders by Lindstrom and Meusel, and the game was ended as Kelly struck out.

TORONTO DINGHY WINS.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 18 (AP).—Tom Turrall, skipper for the National Yacht Club of Toronto, successfully lifted the International Douglas trophy for fourteen-foot dinghies here today when his craft, the N-8, defeated the Gloriette and the Genesee Yacht Club for the second time. The cup, originally a Canadian trophy, was first won by the Gloriette in 1923 and has been successfully defended by her until this season.

Pickups and Putouts

Walter Gerber chloroformed a Yankee rally in the second with a brilliant stop and throw at the Stadium yesterday. Walt hastened clear over to the other side of second, collared Combs's slow bounder with his glove and made a backhand toss with the same hand to Melillo, who stretched out his full length and picked the ball off the dirt.

The unique feature of this banditry was that Gerber, when he threw, was in the second baseman's position and Melillo was over where the shortstop normally would be.

The nearest thing the Yanks had to offer was Paschal's saved-hand catch of Williams's foul. Ben edged near the right-field stand and stuck his glove up nonchalantly.

Hoyt will be ready pretty soon to start a game. In his three-inning workout yesterday he seemed to have nearly all his old-time stuff.

Gerber handled eleven chanes and Melillo ten without as much as a bobble.

It was a great day for Jezebel Tecumseh Zachary. He not only shut out the Yankees, but also got his annual hit.

PARIS, July 18 (AP).—Lucien Buysse of Belgium has won the Circuit-of-France bicycle race which began June 20. The race was in seventeen stages and covered 3,600 miles, the elapsed time being 238 hours 44 minutes 25 seconds.

The course skirted the Atlantic from Dunkirk to Biarritz, thence along the Mediterranean to Mentone, and then the Italian and Swiss frontiers, crossing both the Pyrenees and the Alps.

Buysse also is a six-day bicycle rider and has been seen in this country on the board track. He never won a race here and the fact that he took premier honors in the Tour de France stamps him as a road rider rather than a six-day performer.

The Tour de France is the road cycling classic of Europe and carries with it the unofficial title of world's champion. It takes riders over mountains, through lowlands and brings them into contact with wide ranges of climate. It has been largely a test of endurance, but this year the number of stages, that is the distance the riders must go before coming to a resting post, was increased so the contestants would undergo less of a strain and be able to make better time. The start is made in Paris and it is there also that the finish is made. Last year Italy carried off premier honors in the event.

FIFTH INNING DRIVE WINS FOR N. Y. A. C.

Winged Footers Beat Bennett A. C., 7 to 2—Graham's Home Run Helps.

The New York Athletic Club baseball team gave the Bennett Athletic Club of New York its first defeat of the season yesterday at Travers Island, winning behind steady pitching by Tierney by the score of 7 to 2. The Winged Foot clubmen played errorless ball and scored the majority of their runs in the fifth inning when Werneckie, the visiting pitcher weakened to the extent of five runs.

Graham started the rally in the fifth by driving out a home run with two men on bases. Alexander hit another homer in the seventh. Two singles and a double by Tierney in the fourth gave the home nine its first run. Tierney pitched well throughout allowing three hits in the sixth for a single run and three more in the ninth for another, but outside of those two innings he permitted only three hits.

RICKARD HOPEFUL OF CHICAGO BOUT

Will Announce by 6 Tonight Whether Dempsey Battle Will Be Held There.

SEEKS NEWSPAPER VIEWS

Will Meet Publishers to See If There Will Be Any Opposition to Title Event.

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP).—Whether Chicago will be the scene of the world's heavyweight championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney will be revealed within twenty-four hours.

Tex Rickard, New York promoter, who has the signed articles of the champion and challenger, said tonight that he would have a definite announcement to make before 6 o'clock tomorrow night, adding that indications strongly favored the selection of Chicago as the battleground.

According to Rickard, five or six wealthy Chicagoans are willing to finance the contest and have offered to build an arena if neither of the major league baseball parks not Soldiers' Field is available for the contest.

Predicts Record Gate.

Rickard is enthusiastic over prospects of bringing the contest to Chicago, declaring that it would draw a record-breaking gate, exceeding the one for the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, which drew $1,600,000, with an attendance of 80,000.

Rickard has appointments with two Chicago groups tomorrow. Until after these conferences are held, he said he could make no definite announcement regarding his plans. He refused to confirm reports from New York that the contest had already been signed for Chicago and that the date would be Sept. 16.

If Chicago gets the match, Rickard desires to be positive that there will be no opposition. This apparently is one of the reasons for delaying the announcement. He has several engagements for tomorrow. Some of them with publishers of newspapers to learn their attitude.

New York Asks Delay.

Rickard said he had received a telephone call from Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, urging him to delay his announcement until Tuesday. This request, Gibson said, came from William Muldoon, a member of the New York Commission.

Rickard said, however, he would not wait and that if conditions are satisfactory he will bring the contest to Chicago regardless of the action of the New York Commission, which has ruled that Dempsey must meet Harry Wills before engaging Tunney.

Rickard was emphatic in saying that his visit to Chicago is not being used as a club to force the New York Commission to reverse its decision.

FEATHERWEIGHTS BOX IN BROOKLYN TONIGHT

Silvers Battles Andy Martin at Dexter Park—Amateurs at Coney Island.

Marty Silvers, Brooklyn featherweight, will meet Andy Martin of Boston in the final ten-round bout at the Dexter Park Arena, Brooklyn, tonight. Both boys are anxious to qualify for the title now vacant through the forfeiture of Louis (Kid) Kaplan, and a victory will mean a chance to meet Benny Bass or Honeyboy Finnegan, outstanding candidates for the featherweight championship.

In the ten-round semi-final Henry Goldberg of Carnarsie and Frankie Pitcher, veteran welterweight, will supply the action. Goldberg gained some recognition through his knockout triumph over Sammy Aaronson last week. The first ten-rounder will bring together Nat Kawler and Lou Guglielimini, former amateur star lightweight. In a special bout Harry Mulcahy of Richmond Hill will engage Joe Cattle of East New York.

Ten bouts are on the program for the Coney Island Stadium tonight. The show will be held under the auspices of the A. A. U. and the Northern A. A. One of the outstanding bouts will be the return engagement between Harold Griffin of the New Dorp S. C. and Joe Gransio of the Trinity Club. Both boys are in the 150-pound class. Joe McDermott, Benny Keller, Pete Ceasar and Frankie Erkman also are on the program.

HOPPE IN ACTION TONIGHT.

Will Open Handicap Three-Cushion Match Against Solomon.

Henry Solomon of Spokane, holder of the three-cushion championship of the Northwest, has arrived here for his handicap match against Willie Hoppe which will open at the Hoppe Academy, Fifty-first Street and Broadway, tonight. Solomon, who holds victories over such players as Bob Cannefax, Otto Reiselt, Charles McCourt and other headliners in exhibition games, also was the victor over Hoppe in a handicap match here last year. Hoppe will play for fifty points against thirty-eight for Solomon at 300 to 228. The match will be played at night only, ending on Saturday night.

EL PASO, Texas, July 18 (AP).—Tommy White of San Antonio, Texas, welterweight, gained a referee's decision over Pinkey Mitchell of Milwaukee, junior welterweight champion of the world, in a ten-round bout at Juarez, Mexico, today. Mitchell's title was not at stake. White won every round after the fourth, according to those at the ringside.

Maturo to Meet All Comers.

James Maturo, formerly of Denver, but now of New York, has arranged to meet all comers in a series of exhibition three-cushion games at Kreuter's Academy, the first block of which will be played this afternoon. Maturo's opponent for tonight will be Joseph Fisher, winner of the Eastern States three-cushion title.

Fischer Takes West Jersey Title.

MOORESTOWN, N. J., July 18 (AP).—Carl Fischer, Philadelphia, won the West Jersey singles tennis championship today, defeating Sam Gilpin, also of Philadelphia, 7—5, 6—2, 7—5. Gilpin and Herman Dornheim won the doubles title, defeating Bramhall and Joseph Olhauser, 2—6, 7—5, 8—6, 6—3, 8—6.

THE WEEK IN SPORTS

Delaney-Berlenbach Bout Shows Division's Popularity—Western Success of Giants Encouraging—Thrilling Golf by Sarazen and Smith —Carlaris "Short" for Derby—Return of Miss Wills

BOXING

For years the light-heavyweight class in boxing was practically ignored or at best aroused only mild curiosity and little serious attention. Today the division stands out prominently among the ring classes, practically all of which are stagnant through indifferent or too cautious champions, or lack of high-grade fighting material.

The greatest testimonial to the popularity of the 175-pound division was written last Friday night at Ebbets Field, where more than 40,000 persons paid over $450,000 in gross receipts to see Jack Delaney hammer his way to the title over Paul Berlenbach. Another proof of this popularity was in the amount of money paid the boxers. Berlenbach, in defeat, got what consolation he could from a mere $150,000. Delaney collected $100,000, in addition to the title, whose monetary possibilities are as yet unknown.

Berlenbach has amassed more than a quarter of a million dollars in his boxing career, the greater part of this sum accruing since Paul won the title. Delaney is just now on the threshold of doubtless even greater riches.

Did Much for the Class.

Though he has been relieved of his title, Berlenbach will go into the rôle of ex-champion as the man who "made" the light-heavyweight class. Jack Dillon, Battling Levinsky, Georges Carpentier, Battling Siki, Mike McTigue, preceded Berlenbach as titleholders in modern times, but none of them, not even Carpentier, whose "color" and showmanship have been revealed as his main boxing qualifications, brought to the class the distinction and attention that did Berlenbach. And Paul, not a great fighter, never perhaps to attain the estate of a great fighter, was, without any frills or furbelows, nevertheless a fighting champion in everything that this means. That is what the masses want; that is what "made" the class.

So it is that Berlenbach, now that he has been beaten and it has been established that he assumed an unnatural weight in fighting regularly in defense of his title, can go on as a heavyweight and look back with satisfaction in the knowledge that he popularized the class he led so well.

As it has come to be with the earning power of this title, so it undoubtedly will be with the importance of the class now that Jack Delaney is its leader. Regret at the passing of Berlenbach is tempered with satisfaction that it had to be a Delaney who succeeded to the throne. No better selection could be made because the new champion has that happy mixture of fighting ability and likable personality which assures greater progress for this division. Delaney is a boxer and a hitter, the fans like him for this. In addition he has a personality which attracts even better than did the boyish good-nature of Berlenbach, whose popularity was overshadowed only by that of his conquerer.

May Hold It for Long Time.

Delaney probably will hold the title for a long period, much longer than did Berlenbach. It was inevitable that Delaney could beat Berlenbach when the two met on equal terms physically. Berlenbach had no other rival to fear. He won the title from a timid McTigue; defended it against a convalescent Delaney; held it again against a Stribling who was robbed of vitality through excessive activity, only to bow before the perfect Delaney Friday night.

Delaney has no serious rival at present, though several prospects appear on the horizon. McTigue is not formidable; Berlenbach has deserted the class, or will if he is wise, so that Delaney's most dangerous rival must develop from among Slattery, Stribling, Loughran, Huffman, Rosenbloom or some as yet unheard of youngster. None measure up to dangerous proportions as weighed against Delaney, yet the new champion can have plenty of action if he elects and the popularity of the class will increase accordingly.

GOLF

Golfers who attended the metropolitan open championship at the Salisbury Country Club last week, and especially those who followed yesterday's double round play-off between Macdonald Smith and Gene Sarazen, had an unusual opportunity presented to them.

It is difficult to imagine greater contrasts than Smith and Sarazen, each of whom has arrived at the same goal by diametrically opposite methods. In Smith the gallery saw the born golfer; in Sarazen, the golfer who has come to where he is by careful, painstaking study and practice. In Smith they saw the easy, graceful swinger of clubs; in Sarazen, the hitter who delivers his punch in an entirely different way, but a way just as effective. Smith is tall, Sarazen is short. Each is as different from the other as night is from day, yet each has arrived at the top of his profession.

There were lessons to be learned from following the match. Both men had breaks that would have caused the ordinary golfer to toss his clubs away in disgust, to threaten to give up the game, yet neither became ruffled. Having played the game for years, each one realizes that the breaks even up in the long run, and getting a bad one here and there is to be taken in the course of events.

Why the Poor Attendance?

What has happened to the metropolitan open championship to make it such a poorly attended event is a question that many were asking themselves on Friday when a mere handful turned out for what used to be one of the greatest of golf shows. The attendance increased on Saturday, but even then it was not enough to make any one envious of the revenue-getters.

Each year the metroplitan open, formerly one of the big events on the golf calendar, has diminished in value as an attraction. This year, held at an accessible spot, with a dozen or more of the country's leading professionals among the contestants, the attendance was less even than the year before.

One reason, of course, is that up to a few years ago New York's professional talent was far less numerous than it is today when, with few exceptions, the leaders in professional golf are located here. Now, through exhibition matches, New Yorkers have seen, without traveling, about all there is to see so far as professional golf is concerned. They would rather get in thirty-six holes themselves, bad as the golf might be, and often is, than watch others, good as the golf might be, and often is.

Change of Date Might Help.

It is possible that a change in the date of the tournament might help, and a change would certainly be welcomed by the professionals. Coming, as the metropolitan open does, immediately after the national open, it suffers a loss of interest thereby, and it takes the pros away from their clubs far too long for the pros' own good. There was a reason for holding the metropolitan close to the national years ago when the talent was not concentrated here as it now is; but there is no particular reason now.

It might not be a bad idea for the M. G. A. officials to give consideration to a date in the late Fall when the work lightens at the various clubs. The event now comes in the height of the season, and that may be one of the reasons why so few clubs are willing to offer their courses for it.

The metropolitan open should be one of the really big events of the season, and it could easily be made so by holding it at a more propitious time and by making it worth while from a money standpoint.

Although he has failed to deliver the goods in the national open, Johnny Farrell always seems to be able to garner a title for himself. His latest acquisition is the Shawnee open, which he won for the second time from a field of such calibre as to make the winning well worth while.

TURF

Little illumination was thrown on the three-year-old situation by the results of the two so-called Derbies contested last week end—the Empire City and the Raceland, both at a mile and a quarter.

The local stake was quite overshadowed by the interest in the performance of Carlaris in Kentucky. The fact that the imported son of Phalaris and Carnival was beaten, and decisively, was considerable of a shock to many, but it was discounted by those who stopped to consider what the colt has been through.

He had not carried colors since he won the Coffroth Handicap at Tijuana on March 28. Since that time, until recently, he had been out of training and recuperating from a seriously infected off fore foot. He was given his final workout on Thursday for his Raceland outing and fairly burned up the track. The running of the Derby Stakes showed that the colt was possessed of all his electrifying speed as far as he could carry it. The inevitable conclusion is that he was short for he began to shorten his stride at the far turn, after which it was not difficult for Malcolm B. Jr., a second rater, to dispose of him. Provided he continues to train soundly that effort should serve to tighten up the Anderson colt for his future engagements, the next in line being the Coney Island Derby next Saturday.

The Empire City affair was notable for the reason that a number of owners and trainers neglected a striking opportunity to pick up some easy money. The race was made to order for Chance Play, but Messrs. Harriman and Walker overrode their trainer in their desire to be ready for the rich Saratoga Stakes, where the opposition will be of the stiffest. This was probably the last straw, causing Louis Feustel's resignation. The Yonkers event proved nothing more than that Display was a Spring flash and that Blondin possibly is improving somewhat. Class was decidedly absent.

Nominations for the Coney Island Derby invest that event with interesting possibilities. It may be that a considerable number of the best three-year-olds of the year will accept the issue. Crusader, contrary to Sam Riddle's custom of ignoring the Middle West, probably will start, quarters having been asked for him. Bagenbaggage will be Colonel Bradley's representative. Macaw and Blondin are both eligible to carry the Whitney colors and among the others named are Haste, Pompey, Flight of Time, Display, Black Maria, Rock Star, Canter, Rhinock and Recollection. A half dozen of these fighting it out would help materially in solving the three-year-old problem.

Between Coney Island and Saratoga's money-making possibilities is the $100,000 American Derby at Chicago, scheduled for Saturday, July 31. The Illinois Jockey Club has had its legal troubles to add to the difficulties of completing its plant. Providing the temporary injunction holds over long enough there is every reason to expect that the country's best three-year-olds will try for the world's greatest money prize. It is to be hoped that the best in this division will be represented in these two stakes, for the chances of all getting together at the Spa in one event are remote.

Americans have shot for the Grand National Steeplechase before with homebreds, but none have seemed more likely to gain initial success than Marshall Field with his huge jumper Labrador. He is of the type to get over the most difficult Aintree course and will have a long course of training to prepare him for the hard journey.

YACHTING

With racing yachtsmen in the throes of Race Week at Larchmont it will be difficult for any of them to devote much time to business or home cares during this pressing period. Financial and commercial matters must be put over for the time being and the home piazzas must remain deserted while the yachts fight for the series prizes over the Larchmont courses.

Yachtsmen as a rule are true enthusiasts over their favorite pastime and the old saying still holds good—"If yachting interferes with your business quit your business"—at least, it is sure to hold good during Race Week.

A truly great armada of racing yachts gathered off Larchmont breakwater on Saturday for the first regatta of the club's series and it is practically certain that the fleet will go above 200 boats during the coming week. Commodore Ford and the other flag officers, as well as the committee members, are to be congratulated on being able to gather such a fine squadron together under the blue and white burgee. But Larchmont Week is a time-honored and popular institution and the spirit of the thing proves a strong magnet to racing yachtsmen.

With an average of over 600 persons on board the yachts taking an active part in the racing each day it may be said that these regattas are among the big amateur events of the country. And the fleet itself, stretched fan-like from Execution Light to Bluefish Shoal, is a picture to tempt the brush of a marine artist, a brilliant panorama of the sea.

BASEBALL

The amazing rush of the Giants through the West has brought a new sorrow into the lives of the peaceful inhabitants of Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, St. Louis and way stations. As if these gentle souls did not have troubles enough, the McGrawmen suddenly came to life and gave a realistic imitation of a cyclone tearing over the flat plains of Kansas.

They ripped into Cincinnati and took four straight games. They blew into Pittsburgh, lost the first one, then shocked 40,000 citizens by tripping the champions in a double header. After that the New Yorkers lost the final game but picked up speed on the way to Chicago and in the first game of the series gave the Windy City a sample of the new terror that has invaded the National League.

By last night the men of McGraw had won seven out of ten games in the sunset sector. They had spanked their two chief rivals, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, six times in eight games. This is clearly a pace which, if continued, will lead straight to a front-row seat at the world's series.

"If the Giants Find Themselves."

The only comparison that comes to the mind is that of the giant who, having taken his forty winks and then awakening, proceeded to make life miserable for the community. All season wise men of Gotham have been shaking their heads and saying hopefully: "Well, if the Giants should ever find themselves—" It appears now that the hopes of these incurable optimists have been realized.

It is too early, of course, to count chickens that haven't yet been hatched, but the Giants seem to be out of the terrible slump that has gripped them since early May. The momentum alone of their present pace will carry them along. The Giants thrive on victory. Now that they know how good they are the confidence of the athletes will be strengthened, their mental tone freshened, their determination reinforced.

The reasons for the magic reformation are several: Jackson's return, Frisch's sudden awakening, improvement in the pitching, Mueller's good work in centre, Florence's addition to the catching staff.

Still Pursuing the Yankees.

In the American League the pack is still baying at the Yakees' heels. For a time there was a definite conviction that the Hugmen had cracked. They won only five games in sixteen. On Friday afternoon the outlook was melancholy. The Athletics had won a double header and the Yanks, going into the ninth inning, were two runs behind Detroit. Defeat meant only a four and a half game lead over the inspired Mackmen, but the Yanks won out in the ninth and on Saturday beat the Browns while Philadelphia lost.

So now, in mid-July, the Yankee advantage is six games, or the same lead they held on the first day of June. In other words, no team has made headway against them in six weeks of pursuit. In three of these six weeks the Ruppert entry has been without Bob Meusel, second biggest gun in the battery.

These are comforting facts. Here is another one: When the peak of a great Philadelphia winning streak met the peak of a bad New York losing streak the difference was still five and a half games. Unless the Yanks have blown up completely they will come back, and at the same time the Athletics are bound to slacken their terrific pace.

Cleveland is holding steady, Washington is coming up and Chicago is faltering. In one league the New York team is being challenged; in the other league the New York team is challenging. Viewed from any angle the baseball panorama is beginning to get interesting.

TENNIS

The return of Miss Helen Wills in such splendid physical condition six weeks after she was operated on in France has been a cause for rejoicing among American tennis lovers. No champion ever will have entered a tournament more favored with the public's good wishes and sympathies than the Berkeley girl will enjoy should she decide to defend her title in August.

It is not a certainty yet that Miss Wills will be seen at Forest Hills, though she was so greatly encouraged by the way in which she came through her first practice session last week that she felt fairly sure of her ability to go through the strain of tournament play.

Miss Wills is to be commended for her postponement of her final decision in the matter until she has given her strength a thorough test. The absence of the champion from the tournament would detract greatly from the interest in the matches, but all other considerations are secondary to the safeguarding of her health.

The field that will compete for the title this year will be a particularly strong one, and, with Mrs. Kathleen McKane Godfree, Miss Elizabeth Ryan, Miss Mary Browne, Mrs. Molla Mallory and Miss Eleanor Goss as possible opponents, the ordeal that the champion would be required to face might have harmful effects that would jeopardize her success in future years. Unless she is supplied with the same abundant energy and vigor that have carried her to the championship for the last three years Miss Wills cannot afford to take the risk. The champion understands that, and she may be sure that should she decide to let her title go by default her judgment will be approved by a sympathetic and admiring public.

As France fights her way to the interzone Davis Cup final again the tennis world finds itself speculating as to whether the domination of the French in European tennis will be as pronounced when Germany enters the lists again. The defeat of Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey by Dr. Heinz Landmann in Berlin last week and the five-set struggle that Richards had with F. W. Rahe, who ranks sixth in his country, have opened the eyes of the world to the fact that Germany has developed other high-class players since Otto Froitzheim and Otto Kreuzer played Anthony Wilding and Norman Brookes in this country in 1914. Froitzheim is still one of the outstanding players of his country, and the indications are that Germany will make it interesting for any of the challenging nations when she returns to the international fold.

If there is any one thing that seems fairly certain with reference to tennis at this time it is that Edward Chandler will make his initial appearance in the "first ten" this year. In defeating Cranston Holman, who ranks eighth, in the intercollegiate final the Californian furnished one strong argument for his elevation, and on Saturday Takeiichi Harada, who ranks seventh, fell before him. There is also to be offered in evidence his victory over William Johnston on the Coast. Victories over Johnston never hurt any one's rating and have helped extremely few, for the reason that they happen about once a season.

DELANEY TO REST TILL SHARKEY BOUT

GLICK TO OPPOSE MILLER

Championship Contenders Clash at Coney Island on Friday Night—Other Boxing News.

Now that Jack Delaney, the new world's light-heavyweight champion, will be able to rest for a short time, due to an injured thumb, the champion most likely will prepare for a battle against Jack Sharkey of Boston, which is scheduled to be staged at the Coney Island Stadium next month. Delaney originally was slated to oppose Francis Charles, the French titleholder, at Ebbets Field on Wednesday night, but this show has been postponed, and it is unlikely that Delaney will go through with the bout.

While the champion's plans have not been announced as yet, it seems certain that he will wage an active campaign. He is at the top of his form, his services are in demand and it is an ideal chance for him to capitalize his reputation. Following the Sharkey bout it is believed that Delaney will be prepared to entertain Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, an outstanding candidate for the light-heavyweight crown.

Delaney is at his home in Bridgeport and doubtless will remain there for at least another week. Paul Berlenbach, the vanquished champion, is far from downcast at his home in Astoria, and while his plans are uncertain, one thing is definite, he said, and that is that he will make a determined effort to regain the title, and perhaps, before the season is over. There is a possibility that Berlenbach will take Delaney's place on the card which will feature Charles, the French heavyweight.

Ray Miller, Chicago junior lightweight, again is in active training for his ten-round battle with Joe Glick of Williamsburg, which will be staged at the Coney Island Stadium on Friday night. The bout was to have been fought last Wednesday, but was postponed on account of bad weather. Glick also has been doing some serious training, for the bout means much to him and his future plans.

Glick has walked into a number of setbacks just at a time when he was on his way to a championship battle. The engagement with Miller, he hopes, will be a step nearer this title meeting. He is not underrating the fistic ability of the Chicagoan and is working just as conscientiously as though it were for a title battle. Glick's ambition is to earn a meeting with Tod Morgan, the champion, and in Miller he is opposing a hard hitter, a battler who is capable of destroying the championship hopes of any fighter.

Young Solomon is scheduled to return to action tomorrow night when he meets Johnny Gosso in the feature ten-round battle at the Queensboro Stadium in Long Island City. Johnny Filucci and Joe Malone, a brace of featherweights, will mingle in the ten-round semi-final. Benny Hall and Dominick Petrone will clash in the other ten-round bout.

Benny Bass of Philadelphia, who hopes to be the successor of Kid Kaplan as the world's featherweight champion, has been signed to meet Johnny Farr of Cleveland in the main ten-round engagement at Madison Square Garden on the night of July 29. Matchmaker Jess McMahon also has announced that Tommy Farley of Atlantic City, and Billy Wallace, the Cleveland lightweight, will clash in the semi-final.

Three-ten round bouts will feature the show which will be staged at the Garden on Thursday night. In the main bout Sergeant Sammy Baker and Tommy Freeman will supply the entertainment. The other two ten-rounders will present Tommy Cello, Coast lightweight, and Pal Moran of New Orleans, and Harry Cook of Buffalo and Harry Wallach, Brooklyn lightweight.

FRANZ DIENER, GERMAN HEAVYWEIGHT, ARRIVES

Champion Will Be Here Several Months in Quest of New Boxing Laurels.

Franz Diener, the German heavyweight champion, arrived yesterday from Bremen on the North German Lloyd liner Muenchen, accompanied by his trainer, Sabri Mahir, former middleweight champion of Turkey, and Otto Ziemdorf, holder of the flyweight title of Germany. They will spend three to four months in the United States and will be managed by Lew Myers, who met them at the pier.

Diener is 23 years old, 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 195 pounds ready for the ring. The German heavyweight said through his Turkish trainer, who speaks English well, that he started boxing in earest only three years ago. Out of seventeen amateur bouts twelve were knockouts lasting two rounds and five lasted only one round. Diener fought a draw with Paolino, the South American heavyweight, on March 12, 1926, and knocked out Sampson Koerner, the former German heavyweight champion, three weeks ago, which gave him the title.

Ziemdorf weighs 112 pounds and is 5 fet 1 inch in height.

Not only Captain Caleb F. Gates of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., former intercollegiate hammer-throw champion, and Captain-elect Stephen Bradley of Nyack, N. Y., won honors, but both managers, George C. Taylor of Pelham, N. Y., and Manager-elect Samuel M. McAshan of Houston, Texas.

Hobart Betts of New York City, miler; William H. Vodrey 3d of East Liverpool, Ohio, two-miler, and Arthur Sargent Dumper of Newark, N. J., miler, were declared senior honor men. George P. Faust of Ann Arbor, Mich., pole-vaulter; Edwin J. Dikeman of Goshen, N. Y., broad jumper; William B. VanAlstyne of Kinderhook, N. Y., quarter-miler, and Glenn L. Jepsen of Rapid City, S. D., hurdler, are junior honor men.

The name of Jacob W. Slagle, whose brilliant open field running was an important factor in Princeton's football victories over Yale and Harvard last Fall, also appeared on the list.

COLLEEN FINISHES IN VAN OF STARS

BAYSIDE, L. I., July 18.—B. L. Linkfield, who has been matching his skill with George Elder in the racing of Star class yachts on Long Island Sound, resumed his hostilities this afternoon off this port in the resumption of the interclub series.

Under ideal conditions, with a fresh southwest breeze filling their sails, the fleet covered a triangular course of five miles. From the starting line, which was established in the harbor just off the club dock, the squadron first sailed to a buoy off Fort Totten, then to the second turning point established at a buoy off Great Neck dock, and back to the committee boat.

Captain Elder's Iscyra turned the first mark slightly in the lead of the remainder of the fleet, Colleen, which belongs to Captain Linkfield, followed closely, and then came Vega, sailed by Duncan Sterling Jr. The order was changed on the next leg and with Colleen footing it past the leaders.

The Linkfield sloop retained her lead and increased it on the final leg of the course. She was more than three minutes in the van of Captain Elder when the officials on the committee boat checked the finishes. RAIN CURTAILS THE PLAY

A large crowd of enthusiasts turned out at New York Oval yesterday to see the intercolonial cricket contest between Bermuda and Jamaica, which resulted in a draw, owing to the rain.

Bermuda batted first and put together a total of 136, H. Richardson being top scorer with a fine innings of 42. G. Butterfield, with 34 and W. Paynter, 32, made useful additions. H. Prout was in deadly form with the ball, capturing seven wickets for 29 runs.

Jamaica took its turn at the wicket, but with two men out for 19 runs rain put an end to the day's play.

"Nell Gwyn," said to be the first British feature picture presented here, is one which British National Pictures, Ltd., may well be glad to sponsor. It is entirely English in production and cast, with the exception of the lead, which is happily played by Dorothy Gish. The faults of most historical pictures, cluttered up as they usually are with scenery which producers seem to think the audience should see because it existed at the time in which the story is placed, is conspicuously absent, and "Nell Gwyn" is a smoothly developed and charming presentation of one of the most picturesque persons who ever intrigued the British court.

The brattish, lovable, whimsical and generous nature of Nell, mistress of the King and idol of all London, gives the picture its flavor. It is impossible to think harshly of her. She found her way out of an alley to the theatre, where her droll humor made the city laugh, by the only means at her command. She never forgot her friends, her charities were boundless, she loved her royal patron and, if history is to be credited, remained faithful to his memory after his death. It is this Nell which the picture shows, a delightful hoyden, even in Whitehall. Majesty never had any terrors for her; she retained her fascination by being herself.

With such a character it was possible to produce a picture full of whimsy and drollery. Nell meets the King at the door of the theatre in Drury Lane, that quaint old street full of pushcarts and theatrical history, and presents him with an orange "to sweeten the company he keeps." Her vivacity attracts him, and when the audience is driven from the unroofed building by the rain he invites her to the inn opposite. Nell dines sumptuously, waving a chicken bone under the nose of her royal companion or poking him in the ribs with her elbow with a frank camaraderie which appeals to his weary senses.

And when his companions have not sufficient money to pay the bill, Nell does so with an amusing appreciation of her position, which is infinitely attractive to Charles. He promises that she shall have her chance to be an actress, and sends her silken substitutes for her torn stocking, and buckled shoes to take the place of her shabby footgear.

Whether Nell entered the theatre through Charles, or received her opportunity through earlier admirers, hardly matters. Once in the theatre her fortune was made, for her fame as a comedienne is fully as great as her fame as the King's favorite. She used the stage as the means to discountenance her rivals, and one of the most amusing scenes in the picture is the way in which she subjects Lady Castlemaine, her chief antagonist, to the ridicule which no favorite can withstand. Nell has been forgotten at a reception in Whitehall, where she had been lately installed, embarrassed and unhappy, while her royal lover hastens to the side of Castlemaine, gorgeous in a huge hat which is the centre of attraction. Nell pouts and then laughs, and the next night at the play comes on dressed in a hat so huge it might be an umbrella, under which her antics reduce her rival to impotent anger.

But that is not all of Nell. When two of her old friends visit her at the palace she drags in the King to make him promise that he would give the palace he was building for her at Chelsea to the disabled soldiers of his kingdom. Tradition has it that that is the origin of Chelsea Hospital. And on Charles's deathbed, when with a wry smile he apologizes to his brother for taking so long to die, it is Nell who hurries to him and comforts him.

"Don't let poor Nell starve," he tells his brother, and then asks her, as the tears stream down her cheeks, to laugh one of her gay laughs for him, and to that laugh, joining in its infectious merriment, he dies.

That was the end of Nell's career. For although King James obeyed his brother's wish and provided for her, she did not long survive her lover. But the picture of Nell ends with her scornfully disdaining King James's outstretched hand, and blowing a kiss to the bust of Charles.

Whatever may be the shortcomings of English motion picture producers, if they can put together other pictures as simply and with as much dramatic effect as this story of Nell Gwyn they should have no difficulty obtaining a showing for them anywhere. The story moves quickly and surely, with nothing to strain one's credulity, and the acting of Miss Gish and Raddle Ayrton, who takes the part of Charles, is excellent. So is that of Juliette Compton as Lady Castlemaine. The immorality of the period is suggested without being offensive, and for the second time this Summer a good picture has not been spoiled by prudery. The titles are unusually good and frequently amusing, that dear old gossip Pepys being resorted to for purposes of verisimilitude.

Those Hectic Youngsters.

It is doubtful if Percy Marks would recognize the picture which has been made from his rather keen a alysis of life in a modern co-educational university. Those Hollywood college boys who romp and drink their way through school, the gay fraternity dances, the hero who lets down his college in a track meet because he was out late the week before but comes back strong in the last reel with a touchdown after a run the length of the field, all these are the conventional reflections of college life in moving pictures.

However, "The Plastic Age," despite the amazing things with which a director must crowd a college picture, provides an interesting afternoon's entertainment, largely because of Clara Bow. She has all the lissomeness of Lya de Putti, and eyes that would drag any youngster away from his books, and she knows how to use eyes, shoulders and all the rest of her tiny self in the most effective manner. She radiates an elfin sensuousness.

Donald Keith starts out to be a studious and hardworking youngster, both at his books and in athletics, and the picture shows the inevitable effect of social attractions on such a youngster when he is sufficiently endowed with good looks and personality. When to other distractions Miss Bow as Cynthia Day is added, there is no doubt that Hugh will lose in the track meet. His father tells him he is a disgrace to his college, and Hugh decides to eschew liquor and gay parties. There is an attempt to make of the butterfly Cynthia a self-sacrificing and unselfish girl, who to save Hugh declines to see him any more because their ways lie apart. Cynthia longs for the bright lights and fears her effect on him, so she puts him out of her life. He stays out until he wins the football game in his last year and is graduated, and comes back into Cynthia's life with an embrace which tumbles over the bench on which they are sitting.

"The Plastic Age" isn't quite as silly as most of the pictures of college life, but it is a shame that the moving picture tradition that all life in the colleges is frothy cannot be broken, and a real picture made that will show these puzzled and desperately striving young people as they really are, frivolous and gay, yes, but also earnest to the point of tears and with brilliant conceptions of what life really is.

HASSARD SHORT'S PLAYS.

"Skidding" and a Musical Version of "The Chorus Lady" In His Plans.

Besides the productions for next season announced under his name in yesterday's TIMES, Hassard Short's plans include "Skidding," a comedy by Aurania Rouveyroi, a new author, and a musical version of "The Chorus Lady," in which Charlotte Greenwood will be starred. Miss Greenwood's husband, Martin Broones, is announced to write the score for this piece, which will be presented late in the Spring. She has previously been scheduled by the Sam H. Harris office for "Who Hit Hattie?" a comedy by Norma Mitchell and Russell Medcraft.

Other plays already made public by Mr. Short, which he plans to present are "No Trespassing," by John Hunter Booth, which, produced in association with Sam H. Harris, opens at Werba's Brooklyn Theatre on Aug. 16; "The Scoundrel," by Ben Hecht, in which Emily Stevens will appear, and "Sandalwood," a dramatization of Fulton Oursler's novel, by Owen Davis. Mr. Short also will stage two musical comedies for Charles Dillingham and will go to London to supervise the production there of "Sunny." With Mr. Harris he will be interested in three road companies of "Cradle Snatchers."

Prepare "The Nightingale."

J. J. Shubert has announced that his organization will make an immediate production of "The Nightingale," the operetta based on the life of Jenny Lind, by Guy Bolton, P. G. Wodehouse and Armand Vecsey. This musical play was originally designed by the Shuberts for Marguerite Namara. What actress will sing the title rôle is not revealed by Mr. Shubert.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Two openings are scheduled for tonight. They are "Pyramids" at the George M. Cohan Theatre, and "Honest Liars" at the Sam H. Harris.

P. G. Wodehouse and Guy Bolton will collaborate on the book of the new George Gershwin musical comedy in which Aarons and Freedley will present Gertrude Lawrence and Oscar Shaw.

Jack Donahue has signed a new contract with Charles Dillingham by the terms of which he will continue in "Sunny" and afterward be starred in a musical comedy written by himself, Otto Harbach and Jerome Kern.

"Stylish Stouts," a comedy by Fred Thompson and Maurice Marks will be produced in October by the Dramatists' Theatre, Inc., in association with Hugh Ford.

"Help Wanted—Female," Gladys B. Unger's comedy, is being mentioned as the play which will open John Golden's new theatre in Fifty-eighth Street.

Robert Middlemass, Benjamin Kauser, Larry Wood, Mlle. Militza Yurriea, Hal Clarendon and Ben Taggart have been added to the cast of "Americans All," which P. E. McCoy is producing. The play will open at Werba's Brooklyn Theatre on Aug. 9, with the Manhattan premiere scheduled for two weeks later.

"The Little Spitfire," Myron C. Fagan's comedy which B. F. Witbeck is sponsoring, is to open at the Cort Theatre on Aug. 16. It will be presented at Werba's Brooklyn the week of Aug. 2.

MUSIC NOTES.

The late Arnold W. Brunner, architect of the Lewisohn Stadium of the College of the City of New York, will be commemorated at the Stadium concerts tomorrow evening when the Philharmonic Orchestra, under Willem van Hoogstraten, will play the Funeral March from Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony.

The La Forge-Berumen Summer School will give its final concert of the season at Aeolian Hall on Thursday evening, July 22.

"peremptorily dismissed." He said the men took their leave of their own accord and in all apparent friendliness, and that they had remained chatting with him for some time at the door. He called their expression yesterday a "last gasp."

"It has become merely a question, Mr. Metz said, "of a union that is, and a union that wants to be."

The arbitration proposal of the strikers developed at a three-hour meeting at the Transit Commission, 270 Madison Avenue, arranged by the Rev. Edward Lawrence Hunt, Director of the American Good Will Union. 15 West Thirty-seventh Street, and attended by Commissioner Charles C. Lockwood, Major Philip Mathews, Chief Executive Officer, and Clarence F. Lewis, Commission counsel; and the following strike leaders: Edward P. Lavin, Chairman; Harry Bark, Joseph G. Phelan, James F. Walsh of the power men, Harry Hunt and Harry Rath.

Still Willing to Arbitrate.

The Transit Commission announced at the close:

"Representatives of the Consolidated Railway Workers of Greater New York stated that notwithstanding the rejection by the Interborough of their two previous offers to arbitrate their differences with the railroad company, their men were still willing to agree to any fair arbitration in the interests of the riding public, and they renewed their offer to submit these differences to arbitration."

James L. Quackenbush, Interborough general counsel, construed the pronouncement as merely an attempt to "outgeneral" the company by play upon the word "arbitration."

"'Arbitrate' what?" Mr. Quackenbush said. "Define the term. Give the issue." He outlined the issue as the determination of the strikers to upset the Brotherhood of Interborough Employes and to gain recognition of their own seceded organization.

"We will not even discuss such a thing," said the lawyer. "Every one knows our position is to stand by the brotherhood. We will not depart an inch."

The same sentiment was expressed in fuller detail in the statement issued under the name of Mr. Hedley. In that statement Mr. Hedley said every striker, "with a few exceptions," could return to work at once at the old pay. Asked whether "exceptions" implied a "black list," Mr. Quackenbush denied it with spirit.

"We have no such thing, and we never did have any such things as a black list, and we do not know what it is!"

Mr. Quackenbush said that if the men who bolted the brotherhood to form the rival conscildated wished to return they would have to make their individual peace with the brotherhood's general committee. Which of these secessionists would be forgiven would depend, he said, upon that body.

"But there will be no black list," he repeated.

Figures on Subway Operation.

The Transit Commission announced yesterday that the percentage of Interborough subway trains operated, as compared with those scheduled, had risen to 72 per cent. on the Lexington-Fourth Avenue Line on Saturday, and 71 per cent. on the Broadway-Seventh Avenue Line the same day. On July 6, the first day of the strike, the operation had dropped to 44 per cent., according to the following official tabulation.

"The following statement shows the total number of trains scheduled for normal operation in both directions and for both express and locals for twenty-four hours; the total number of trains operated in both directions on both the express and local tracks for the same period, and the percentage operated of the schedule.

"The figures cover the operations on the Lexington-Fourth Avenue Line at Grand Central, and on the Broadway-Seventh Avenue Line at Times Square.

Hedley Reports Gain.

"The total number of riders on July 17 was 2,204,581," he said, "as against 1,819,213 on July 10. The subway riders on July 17 were 1,180,549; on July 10, 822,204, a gain of 358,345. The loss on the system for Saturday, July 17, as compared with the corresponding day last year, fell to $19,837.45, as compared with the loss of $38,238.10 on July 10 as compared with the corresponding day last year."

He said that yesterday's elevated lines were operated 100 per cent. of a normal July Sunday schedule, and the subway, a little more than 80 per cent. The Brooklyn subway service, he said, was extended at midnight between Saturday and Sunday to Utica Avenue and Flatbush Avenue, and "ran during the day without incident or accident."

The Rev. Dr. Hunt, who has been appointed Protestant Chaplain of the Consolidated Railway Workers, addressed the strikers' meeting at Manhattan Casino last night.

"You are shedding your blood to wipe out the many sins of the I. R. T. for their many years of wrong-doing. I join Mr. Hedley in offering you my sincere congratulations for your long, patient and efficient service in making the subways the safest railroad in the world and for the true American spirit you are showing in your law-abiding manner of conducting your strike."

Mr. Hunt said Mr. Hedley could get the workers back within twenty-four hours by "following the Golden Rule."

The strikers were told that a more intensive picket campaign would be begun this moning. They were cautioned, however, to avoid all violence and were assured that thus far they had the support of the public in the strike. Lavin predicted that partly as a result of the picketing, "a great many more" men would join the ranks of the strikers by nightfall tonight.

A representative of the Interborough appealed early this morning to the police to distribute extra policemen throughout the system. The request was based on the strikers' decision to intensify their picketing.

'1926 BARE FACTS' HAS SOME NOVEL NUMBERS

Bright Lyrics and Good Tunes in Triangle's Revue That Is Marred by Amateurish Crudities.

1926 BARE FACTS, an "intimate" revue in two acts and twenty-five scenes. Music by Charles M. Schwab, lyrics by Henry Myers. Produced by Kathleen Kirkwood in association with Murray Phillips. At the Triangle Theatre.

The latest of the intimate revues that have a habit of breaking out like a rash all over Greenwich Village when warm weather comes to lower Seventh Avenue and environs is "1926 Bare Facts," which opened at the cave-like Triangle Theatre with a midnight performance on Friday.

"Bare Facts" has to its credit some excellent lyrics, wittily and cleverly wrought, which are the work of Henry Myers, two or three good tunes by Charles M. Schwab—"not the steel man," the management announces—and a few ideas, the one ingredient in revue fashioning that producers too often avoid like the plague. The jungle number, for example, in which Vachel Lindsay's "Congo" is chanted by Mary Doerr and acted in pantomime by the silhouetted figures of the other players, is a really striking conception, especially in view of the limitations of the small stage.

An effective mask dance, done by a girl wearing the head of a huge, grotesque golliwog, and a perhaps too meaningly posed burlesque of the uptown revues' "living pictures" are other scenes somewhat off the beaten track. An amusing number is "Music Masters," in which Mendelssohn, Chopin and Liszt complain to the audiences about the flagrant thefts of their tunes by the Tin Pan Alley geniuses, but this, like several other items of the program, would be much the better for the sort of development it could be given by the Broadway entertainments.

There are the usual burlesques of current plays, an unnecessarily vulgar bit about "Lulu Belle," and long and only intermittently amusing travesties on "The Great God Brown" and "Kongo." "Stand Up On Your Feet and Dance" seems to be the best tune of the revue, although "A Nice Girl," as sung by Gladys James, an eager and personable young entertainer, runs close second. There are several promising young women in the cast besides Miss James, including Miss Doerr, Amey Steere and Roberta Pierre. Rupert Lucas, Joseph Battle and Courtenay Travers do the best work among the male contingent.

Like most of its downtown counterparts, "1926 Bare Facts" contains various amateurish crudities, and in its youthful enthusiasm overdoes many of the things it undertakes. Playing in the stuffy, subterranean Triangle Theatre, it qualifies from the start as hot weather entertainment. In fact, much of the material has to be good to overcome the conditions of its presentation.

4 PLAYS CONTINUE RUNS.

"Love-in-a-Mist," "Kongo," "Laff That Off," "Vanities" Did Not Close

"Love-in-a-Mist" did not close at the Gaiety Theatre on Saturday night as previously announced. At the last minute Charles L. Wagner, the producer, decided to keep the comedy on the boards. "Love-in-a-Mist" enters its seventeenth week tonight, with Madge Kennedy and Sidney Blackmer featured in the cast.

Because of the break in the hot weather last Thursday three other attractions which had previously announced their closings on Saturday night decided late in the week to continue their engagements. They are "Kongo" at the Biltmore Theatre, "Laff That Off" at Wallack's and the "Vanities" at the Earl Carroll, all of which will be played this week at least.

GEYSER WATER FOR SUMMER ACID INDIGESTION

Two sparkling, natural, mineral waters, Geyser and Hathorn, bottled at the State owned Saratoga Springs under State supervision, are in great demand. Geyser is a delightful, natural means of reducing acidity and aiding indigestion caused by acid conditions.

You feel cooler after drinking Geyser because it neutralizes acidity, checks sourness, counteracts gas, relieves headache and other worrisome distresses. Geyser demonstrates its benefits in a most decided manner when taken at big dinners or banquets. It is also delightfully effective as a restful and soothing drink just before retiring, particularly when you have overeaten or partaken of some food which has not digested properly.

Hathorn, the natural laxative water, is decidedly useful taken before breakfast for giving the whole system a morning, internal cleansing, so that the body does not feel the heat during the day as it would if it were burdened with accumulations of undigested food and gases and acids.

Try the combination of these two health waters for a few days and see how much better you feel, how your appetite is improved, how you sleep better at night and how much more efficiently you work.

Sold by all Park & Tilford's stores, and by other high class dealers.

FRANCE SHUFFLES THE CARDS.

Not for nothing does the French Chamber sit in the Palais Bourbon. The Deputies seem to covet association with a name which historically stands for learning nothing and forgetting nothing. This is the depressing thing about the defeat of the Briand Government. Brought about ostensibly on a question of principle, it was in reality caused by political complots, old personal animosities and rancors—the whole in reckless disregard of the great need of France today.

About that need there is no dispute inside of France or outside. It is to restore confidence. Other nations having dealings with France desire assurances that she is able to establish a stable Government capable of setting her financial house in order. At home, the demand is even more urgent. The great problem in France is today as much mental as financial. Something like a panic feeling is spreading among the French people. They distrust the soundness of their own currency. They profoundly distrust the political groups that make up the French Chamber. They are eager for a strong Government that will calm the public mind and prevent the continued flight of capital from France. They were counting upon the Chamber of Deputies to sink political differences and ambitions in a common and patriotic effort to do the work of sanitation required in French public finance. They were prepared to submit to drastic measures and make the needed sacrifices. But suddenly they were compelled to look again upon a combination of politicians to overthrow the Government and compel the work to be begun all over again. It is not surprising that cries of execration were directed at M. HERRIOT as he rode to his interview with the President of the Republic.

Those who in the Chamber set out to pull down BRIAND and CAILLAUX urged that they stood for a great constitutional right. Parliament must not be asked to divest itself of its powers. It must insist upon its privilege of discussing at length every tax bill, every measure of finance, every loan, every form of securing credits abroad. But, as M. BRIAND at once showed, this meant indefinite delay. There would be endless discussions in the Chamber, although prompt action was vitally necessary. France is confronting a crisis which must be solved with instant decision, if it is to be solved most successfully.

Moreover, the very politicians who led the movement to drive out the Briand Ministry admitted that the recommendations of the financial experts are well founded and must be adopted by no matter what Government is in office. This concession incidentally showed how insincere was the pretense of defending a principle. Indeed, in his violent attack upon CAILLAUX, the spokesman for TARDIEU and the Right, M. LOUIS MARIN, frankly said that he was willing to entrust the alleged dictatorial powers to another Finance Minister, but never to CAILLAUX. This recalls the saying of the theologian in PASCAL'S "Provincial Letters," that certain doctrines which he denounced as heretical would be entirely orthodox "in another mouth." What is indignantly refused when asked by BRIAND and CAILLAUX will, it is assumed, be readily granted when the same thing is asked by HERRIOT and TARDIEU.

Saturday's unexpected upset of the Briand Cabinet made a most unhappy impression both in France and abroad. But it does not furnish a reason for despairing of the French Republic. There are sharp differences of political opinion and deplorable quarrels between politicians in France, but there has come to be something like a consensus of view respecting what must be done, no matter what political groups are temporarily dominant, or what Government is in power. As Dr. BENJAMIN M. ANDERSON wrote in his latest "Chase Economic Bulletin," "The financial problems of France have become easily manageable." This may seem a hard saying. What is meant is that the fall of the franc has so decreased the burden of the internal debt as to make financial recovery rapid and certain provided the steps indicated by the financial experts are quickly taken. If they are, it may not be long before French public finance is set right, and the disagreeable effect of the political manoeuvring which led to the fall of the Briand Government partly effaced. But it must not be forgotten. For unless France is able to cure her disordered politics, as well as her disordered currency, the future has in reserve for her only a renewal of troubles.

A BELATED EXPLANATION.

Secretary MELLON'S letter to Mr. PEABODY, made public on the eve of his sailing for Europe, takes up the question of the war debts in an interesting way. He adduces the legal argument for considering the money advanced to the Allies as a loan, not as a gift, in a form which would doubtless convince any court. In fact, the debtor nations have never denied their liability. But that they could not be held to the strict terms of their obligation Secretary MELLON frankly admits. Our Government had to compound with them on the basis of their ability to pay. That this was done in a lenient and even generous spirit is Secretary MELLON'S contention. Taking up the French debt, in particular, he shows that the settlement agreed to by Ambassador BERENGER covers a total debt having a present value of $1,681,000,000. But he states that the loans and advances made to France after the armistice amount with interest to $1,655,000,000. Thus he argues that, in effect, we have canceled all of the French debt to us contracted prior to the end of the war.

That would be true if in his calculation both parts of the French debt were treated in the same way. It has always been felt that they stand on a different basis. The French themselves have sought to make a distinction between the loans which they obtained after the armistice and the sums advanced to them while the war was still raging. But whatever may be said on this point, and no matter what analysis of the debt figures may be put out by our Treasury, the fact remains that these official explanations are both late and limping. The trouble arose from having to present one set of statements to our own people and another one to our foreign debtors. The Administration at Washington and our Debt Funding Commission long made it a point of pride that they had secured from our debtors recognition in full of all that they owed us. Only by subsequent study was it made clear that, what with a virtual moratorium for a few years and the low rate of interest, there was in effect a cancellation of part of the debt, running anywhere from 15 to 75 per cent. with the different countries involved.

This is the point which those have had in mind who have maintained that our Government blundered in not making all this clear from the first to our foreign debtors. By so much it showed a lack of skill in handling this difficult international question. In such matters almost everything depends upon the form and tone. There could be no doubt, for example, that if from the earliest day our Government had made it plain to the French people that they would, in reality, have to pay only what they had borrowed since the armistice, the feeling about the United States would have been very different in France from what it unfortunately has been.

PHILIPPINE ECONOMICS.

The Filipino politicians would not have played the game "according to Hoyle" if they had failed to avail themselves of the presence of Colonel CARMI A. THOMPSON at the opening of the legislative session to pass their usual resolution for independence. In this there is nothing new. The interesting thing is that there appears on the part of some of the Filipino politicians the dawning consciousness that the economic development of their islands will be of even greater advantage to the Filipino people than to the Americans. Owing, perhaps, to the fact that hardly any Filipinos are in business, the politicians have been slow to realize that the economic foundations of a State must underlie the political superstructure.

Both Colonel THOMPSON and Governor General WOOD, who presented his annual message to the Legislature at this session, stressed the importance of facilitating the culture of rubber in Mindanao by liberalizing the restrictive land laws. On the part of some of the Filipino politicians is the desire to try to make this liberality contingent on the granting of complete autonomy. In other words, they are willing to try to bribe America to grant independence by permitting the development of the agricultural lands. But the granting of independence to the Filipinos is not to be determined by offers of special concessions for American business men, but by the preparedness of the Filipino peoples to govern themselves and to maintain an independent State without having recourse to the United States for military protection and financial aid. The development of the agricultural wealth of the islands, which up to the present has been largely neglected, will, of course, be of some advantage to the people of the United States. But the greater profit will go to the Filipinos.

Only about 12½ per cent. of the land of the Philippines is now utilized. Of the farm lands, as distinguished from forest and grazing lands, only about a third is under cultivation. On this the agricultural methods are for the most part primitive, and the production per acre is much less than could be had if modern farming were used. The greater part of the Island of Mindanao, where most of the rubber lands are situated, is uninhabited. This island, about the size of the State of Indiana, has a climate and soil equal to that of the best rubber lands in Sumatra and the Malay Peninsula. It could be made to bring prosperity to hundreds of thousands of Filipino farmers and large revenues to the Filipino Government.

The Philippine problem is largely an economic one. Heretofore too much stress has been put on its political aspects. As a result business men have been reluctant to embark on large-scale projects to develop the resources of the islands. They have feared the interference of politicians and have hesitated to face the consequences of too early American withdrawal from the islands. If Colonel THOMPSON can bring back a constructive plan for the economic development of the Philippines, he will do much to improve the political conditions. In the final analysis, the success of the politicians will be determined by the degree of economic growth of the Filipino peoples rather than by the brilliance of their rhetoric.

"THE MIND OF TYRANNY."

One of the admitted blunders of the general strike in England was the shutting up of the newspapers. It was an ominous indication of what the Trades Union Congress might do if it gained complete power. People did not fail to point out the strange likeness between the attitude of the Italian Dictator and the English proletariat. But the lesson does not appear to have been learned. At the recent meeting of the National Union of Railwaymen at Weymouth, a resolution was promptly adopted to the effect that "only representatives of "trades union papers should be eligible to report the public proceed-"ings of this conference." What was meant, of course, was newspapers having the closed shop. But to the credit of the reporters present, not even those who might have qualified under the terms of the resolution remained in the hall. They all left in a body as a protest against such an interference with the freedom of the press. The Daily Herald itself, the Labor newspaper, was for a time at least left without a representative.

Such an action as this of the Railwaymen's Union has rightly been described as exemplifying "the mind of tyranny." A tyrant, a dictator, cannot bear discussion, and feels that he must control every medium of communicating information to the general public. Uncolored truth he considers inimical to himself. The free reporting and printing of what he says or does or proposes, he cannot tolerate. That trades unions should be ready, on slight occasion, to set up this form of censorship or suppression of the press, does not argue well for the quality of their leadership. Yet Labor censors have long been known in England. When Mr. HAMILTON FYFE was editor of The British Worker he wrote: "I have four censors sitting at "my table—a large one, fortunately—"who go through every line of type." This gives an unpleasant hint of what sort of rules for newspapers Labor would lay down if it got into a position to do freely with the English press what MUSSOLINI has done with the Italian. Happily, labor leaders in the United States are too clear-sighted, saying nothing of any question of principle, to commit such a mistake as that which the English trade unionists have repeatedly fallen into of seeking to deprive the public of legitimate information.

THE OBSERVER'S OBSERVATIONS.

Mr. GARVIN, whose Fourth of July editorial in The London Observer we reprinted in full, has become a champion of America. He reports that his mail in the fortnight following has been filled with "unexpected correspondence," especially from Americans—"the most interesting set of letters "we have ever read in one week from "America." Most of them confirm him in the excellent opinion of America, but several correspondents pessimistically dissent from his optimistic views. They tell him of the dying out of the breed that founded America and of the calamitous influx of non-Teutonic peoples. They complain of taxes and rents, and see economic sun spots of impending "hell to pay" in the instalment system of buying.

By none of these depressions and despairs is Mr. GARVIN moved. He is even impervious to the gibes of his contemporary, The Morning Post, which satirizes Ellis Island under the caption "The New Purgatory." He finds the social order in America "as solid as the Pyramids." As to the dying of the "founding breed," it has been "dying on paper" for decades but is still very actively alive, as is illustrated by the fact that we still place in our Presidential office men who bear names English, Scotch, Irish and Welsh. English and German were mixed with Celt and Slav before America was heard of. "What "has happened to modern America, "happened in Europe more than a "thousand years ago, with enriched "vigor and genius as a result." The Americans may reasonably expect the same result here. They need not worry that the Irish make athletic records or be anxious lest we have too large an infusion of the blood more or less common to DANTE, MICHAEL ANGELO and CAVOUR, or despair if the American race of the future shows distinct traces of the blood that produced TOLSTOI or of that which brought forth LUTHER, GOETHE and BISMARCK. The "Rainbow" regiments that gathered here last week give support to this confident prophecy of "physical assimilation" and "racial adjustment."

That Mr. GARVIN is not disturbed by the American instalment system is due to his confidence in our financial common sense, which will assert itself if the fundamental principles of credit are violated. This native common sense has insisted, first, that the article sold under this plan must be one that is not rapidly consumed in its use; second, that the initial payment shall be sufficiently large to give the purchaser an incentive to save and complete the purchase; and, third, that the term of payment must not be extended beyond the life of the residual value of the article. If our common sense cannot solve this minor problem and the larger problem of the relationship between capital and labor here, where both find themselves in better state than in Europe, then "they cannot be solved anywhere." This is the challenge which faith in us, as voiced by a discerning friend in Britain, offers to an America whose "difficulties are a bagatelle by com-"parison with those of post-war "Europe." We are the observed of all observers, by reason of the prosperous state into which we have been "called." It behooves us "to walk worthy" of this high vocation.

GIRLS ON THE MARCH.

To any one who has recently motored or traveled by train through the country near New York the announcement of the Girls' Service League that girl hikers are marching on this city is superfluous. It is not absolutely necessary to leave midtown in order to be aware of the advancing army. Girls in knickers and flannel shirts, with silk stockings and slippers equipped with "baby Spanish" heels, are to be seen, usually in pairs, sometimes in groups of five or six, almost anywhere; resting in a movie, refreshing themselves at an open-air orange-juice stand, listening to a concert at the Stadium or occupying themselves with the business their costume calls for.

The uninformed might suppose that knickers and flannel shirts meant hiking. But the girls are not so much interested in walking, either for exercise or as a means of getting somewhere, as they are in riding. Of course, there are the few proud walkers who are bearing messages from one Mayor to another and doggedly footing it every step of the way. They get their names and pictures in the papers. But the great unknown crowd is out for adventure. The girls who daily appear at the Girls' Service League clubhouse to ask for help are not, according to the report, in search of work, money, refuge or assistance in getting back home. Only a few are not asking merely for a bath, one night's lodging and perhaps a place to stay until expected parcels of clothing are delivered to them.

The parents of most of the girls know what they are doing, and if they do not approve, at least do not refuse fresh clothing, with some good advice tucked into the new knickers. The confidence the girls have in themselves is bound to inspire a little in the breasts of the most timid mothers. Their belief in their ability to take care of themselves appears to be well justified on the whole. Kind-hearted motorists offer them lifts, meals, even a free night's lodging occasionally, and the girls see the country, develop sturdy calves, walk as much as they care to and all the while feel that they are bold, free spirits.

In return for the kindly attitude of the passing motorist and the service rendered by the league at its clubhouse the girls tell the stories of their travels. Some are spending their vacations hiking and have good jobs to return to. Some are looking for work in New York and have hiked hundreds of miles to arrive here. All have the wandering minstrels' privilege of embroidering the theme with incidents which might have happened. The public has not yet heard many of these tales, but it doubtless will. In the meantime the hikers have an opportunity to ingratiate themselves with the critical, who object to the footwear of the walkers as unsuited to the rest of the costume. The "baby Spanish" heels may be forgiven, for, after all, the girls do not do much walking. But for silk stockings, usually having wide "runs" up the back, there is no excuse. The first hiker to submit the story of her adventures for serialization should be compelled to show affidavits that she wore cotton or wool or else no stockings at all.

A BOYS' REFERENDUM.

A World's Committee of the Y. M. C. A. has been asking questions of boys and youths all around the planet for the purpose of disclosing "the "true aspirations and real problems "of the younger generation." What is any "question" without a questionnaire? Is modern youth radical and full of revolt? Does it hate tradition? Is it irreligious? Has it discovered new truths? Or does it feel meekly after the elder generation? The last interrogation was superfluous and insulting; but these and other queries were popped at our young masters, of wide geographical distribution. We haven't seen the report, issued some two weeks ago, of the results of the inquiry, but such few replies as we have been privileged to read make us long for more.

Especially gratifying is the disposition to put the old folks in their place, if there is any left for them. A lad of Denmark says sententiously that "adults hinder youth by not leaving them in peace to grow." Such hindrance is to be expected from curmudgeons who have ceased to grow themselves. A stripling of England finds that "conditions of life have changed"; but he is restrained in his criticism of the elderly culprits: "Older people are sometimes old-fashioned and childish." Why not tell the whole truth? They all are. Hence the proverb: "Teach your grandmother to suck eggs." Some budding Aldous Huxley pierces the "problem" through the heart: "Something might "happen if adults did the work and "youth the directing." But that, unless, as Professor A. Ward says, "our eyes deceive our earsight," is practically the case now.

So there is no "revolt," but a de facto as well as a de jure government of youth, by youth and for youth. Old age begins before birth. We don't know where the present old-age limit begins; probably at 25 or sooner. Yet it is pleasant to know that "the old" are not cumberers of the ground. Somebody must work, at least until the no-hour day of labor dawns. Let the old do it. Youthful direction they will never lack. They are not complaining of any lack of it now. One regrets to notice, in Switzerland, a jarring note of conservatism. Question: "What is the most effective punishment for boys?" First Swiss boy: "Send him to bed with nothing to eat." Second Swiss boy: "A good spanking." A hundred years ago BRONSON ALCOTT showed the perfect rule of school discipline. If a pupil was "naughty," AMOS smote his own hand with a ferule. "Spank teacher!" "Send teacher supperless to bed!" The backwardness of these Helvetian younglings is deplorable.

From South Africa speeds the golden and final word about girls: "Don't "worry much about them, but take "them as a matter of course." O Paris of Troy! O Don Juan Tenorio of Seville!

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Tempering the Rage of a Volcano.

In Java, where there is more familiarity with volcanos and therefore perhaps less fear of them than in most other lands, the Dutch authorities have made an ambitious attempt to limit them and render them harmless. The work has been in progress since 1918, just after there had been a destructive eruption of the volcano which is known as the Kloet.

Its specialty, it seems, is the occasional sending out in enormous quantities, not of fire or molten lava, but of mud. Between times a huge lake of this material accumulates in the crater, and the purpose of the engineers has been to lower the level of this lake so that when the eruptive forces waken there will not be much of the mud for them to scatter abroad.

With this end in view, a tunnel into the side of the mountain toward the crater and opening into it far below the maximum level of the mud was started. The making of a ventilating tunnel leading down to the main tunnel was found necessary, as was also the construction of minor and higher tunnels to the crater.

Constantly the chief trouble has been from water, but how the water gets there, at or near the top of a mountain, is not revealed in the account at hand, taken from the Dutch East Indian newspaper Locomotief. It is not stated, either, that the efficiency of the tunnel has been tested, as yet, by a really serious eruption. It is hard to believe that a volcano can be bridled in this or any other way, but the Dutch are not likely to waste their money on a hopeless scheme.

Shooting the Usual Punishment.

Instead of exclaiming or declaiming over the fact that after a court-martial trial the French in Syria have sentenced the young Tennessean, BENNET J. DOTY, to eight years at hard labor, his friends and relatives down in Memphis have reason to be surprised at the lightness of his punishment. For his offense—desertion in the presence of an armed enemy—would be held capital in any army.

That DOTY'S life has been spared indicates a desire on the part of the French authorities to win American favor by showing kindness to one of our nationals. The only mitigating circumstance in the young man's case was that cowardice had nothing to do with his desertion, for he had shown exceptional bravery both in our own expeditionary force in France and in the Foreign Legion. His own explanation was that he had a sudden attack of homesickness.

The chances are that he had wearied of the terribly strict discipline of the Foreign Legion. The "hard labor" to which he has been condemned is not to be performed in a prison, but is to take the form of further service not only in the Legion, but in the disciplinary regiments to which the violators of that body's iron code are sent when held deserving of something less than death. What that service means can be realized, at least in part, by readers of Captain WREN'S remarkable book, "Beau Geste."

They Did Seek for Safety.

According to Chief Gunner WILLIAM A. GERTZ, the first witness before the Naval Court of Inquiry into the Lake Denmark disaster, who spoke from detailed knowledge of the buildings there, those that exploded first after the lightning stroke were thickly netted with copper wires and had many rods extending above the roofs, all running well into the earth. If this apparatus was carefully made, and its electrical grounding in constantly moist soil was carefully maintained, it should have given a large measure of protection. Of what Professor PUPIN said should be done in such cases, only the elaborate copper sheathing of roofs and walls seems to have been lacking.

But the lightning did strike, so either something was inadequate in the protection given or else complete safety from the most violent discharges cannot be given. It is not necessary to believe in the existence of that possibility, and if high explosives must be collected in great quantities and in one place, the utmost efforts to guard them must be made.

A Harsh Word Is Used.

A London fashion journal resents the frequently made charge that English women are dowdy dressers and denies that all the fine feminine clothing in London remains in the shop windows. It explains that this impression must have been given, especially to American women, by the fact that their British sisters exercise far more of individual judgment and taste in the designing or selecting of their garments and do not all "slavishly" follow the style of the moment, as the Americans do.

In other words, says this authority, the American women illustrate the American tendency toward standardization in everything, while the British women dare to differ among themselves.

There may be something in this theory. Over here, no doubt, the woman who does not dress much like other women during any given year is held to be, as well as to look, queer, and from that to "dowdy" the distance is not great in the estimation of a standardized frock. Certainly one not infrequently hears our women say that while they do not like this or that form of hat or dress, they can buy no other in the shops and hence are obliged to wear it. For that sort of submissiveness the epithet of "slavish" is not unduly severe.

Feeding Working Hens Is Costly.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following is for the enlightenment and edification of Aaron E. Rubenberg, whose letter on the price of eggs appears in today's TIMES:

A baby chick costs about 15 cents. It is housed, along with some 299 other baby chicks, in a poultry house erected at a cost of about $250. For the first few weeks of its life it is warmed by wood, oil or coal stoves specially constructed for the purpose. It is fed a carefully selected mixture of grains, with buttermilk or sour milk, and plenty of water. At eight or ten weeks the roosters are sold for broilers, and not at the retail price of 50 cents a pound. At six months the pullets begin to lay, and if they have been properly fed, housed and cared for, they will average six eggs a week each.

The farmer feeds his hens all year around, even in the Summer when eggs are scarce, and about all that nature supplies is a few bugs and a little grass for a few months in the year.

Statistics indicate that the farmers' profit averages $1 a hen a year. Deducting all the charges, will Mr. Rubenberg advise why he does not think the farmer entitled to get a price for eggs in the Summer months when they are "few and far between?" Mr. Rubenberg may be referring to the type of farmer who has a few hens and does not give them much care or attention. Even in such cases, hens cannot live or lay which is the only element which nature provides generously.

BRONX RIVER PARKWAY.

The stream—it's tiny, but of great renown—

Wide meadows blaze beneath the July sun,

A sheltered place with seven stepping-stones,

And many golden butterflies are there.

Three baby birds, attending flying school
On bending shrubs beside a quiet pool.

A bridge that calls to mind the Japanese;
Above it twines an elm and oaken frieze.

Great hemlocks, brooding down a dark ravine,
Carved slowly, through the ages all unseen.

Rough boulders strewn by Titans, like great tears,
Now frozen with the passing of the years.

Unnumbered cars speed swiftly all day long—
And scarce a person heeding, in that throng!

How can they all this beauty so ignore—

Jacksonville Citizen Wishes We'd Set a Better Example.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a long ways from New York, never saw the city, yet I have seen many pictures of the metropolis and even heard lectures about the wonderful place.

I felt that for years New York was a city that could not be dispensed with, as her electoral vote was great in deciding who would be President of the nation. My theory was dispelled when a real test came in electing Woodrow Wilson without the electoral vote of New York State.

I once thought that people living in such a grand city would never leave the place. I now find New Yorkers living all around me that have no desire to return at all. They are excellent citizens and we honor them.

Likely New York gave herself the hardest biff when the State turned the tide in the Eighteenth Amendment enforcement by repealing the State law upholding enforcement in that State and setting an extremely bad precedent to the rest of the country by so doing. The apparent disregard of New York to law enforcement, in so far as liquor is concerned, will react on the morale of the place and the country. I sometimes think that New York is now writing her own undoing by the precedents she is setting in disregard of the constitutional amendment, and that gradually but surely the business of that great centre will lose out to some other American city that has a real high morale.

Personally I would like to look up to New York even at this distance and say that she is the grandest city in the world; that her political ideals are the highest and cleanest of all cities in the United States. When New York caters to this sort of environment and strives to live therein, then New York as a city will be living a life worth while and her example practiced everywhere. I now feel satisfied that if a really great-minded man would get at the helm of that city and let the people actually know that high principles of living were uppermost in that great metropolis, the people would follow them now as never before.

THE WAY TO CITIZENSHIP.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter from "American Woman Without a Country," published in THE TIMES of July 13, is very interesting. As a solution of her difficulty I would suggest that her husband, as soon as he can under the law, apply for citizenship in this country. At or before the expiration of the "six months' visa" under which the man and wife are now in this country, let application be made for an extension of the visa as it applies to the presence of the woman. I believe this can be granted. Possibly a bond for a nominal amount would be required. Under the bond, extensions of the visa could be made until the time when the husband becomes an American citizen.

When the husband became an American citizen, married to an American-born woman, if she did not then become an American citizen, what kind of a citizen could she be? I believe the authorities at Washington would then hold that the conditions of the bond under which extensions of the visa had been made were satisfied, that the woman was no longer a visitor and that she was discharged from the obligation to the Government by which she had been bound.

If the matter worked out as above, it would take the woman exactly as long to become an American citizen as it would for the man she married to obtain citizenship. It is only fair for a person who has voluntarily given up citizenship to wait as long to regain it as it would take any bona fide applicant of foreign birth to acquire it.

Philip Nolan was a "man without a country," and he wasn't. For "as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he"; and Philip Nolan loved his native land.

A JEFFERSON MONUMENT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to congratulate The Sunday TIMES Magazine of July 4 on its historical article on the Declaration of Independence and the wonderful picture of Thomas Jefferson. As we grow older we forget the history we learned in childhood. This brought to mind many things we had forgotten, and it should be filed away and kept for future reference.

It is a peculiar fact that the great Jefferson has not been honored by the nation as he should have been. In building the Washington Monument, one should have been built also as the "Jefferson Monument." If Washington is the "Father of his Country," if a nation may have two fathers, Jefferson should be the other father. There is a rumor that a memorial to this greatest of our immortals is under consideration to be placed with Washington's at the national capital. Why should any other name be considered? And after a century just realizing what he did in the building of this nation! He, like Moses, needs no monument. He created them, and his work is going on, and will go on as long as life. Twice President of the United States—a gift of the people—was small compared with the work he left to posterity, which is well known to every school child. We hope to live to see his name honored as it should be at Washington.

British Bathroom de Luxe in 1855.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The statement was made in THE TIMES recently that there were no bathrooms in London homes before 1886. I can, with other elderly folks, indignantly deny this, for in my father's home in Surrey we had a bathroom complete, a large bath encased in mahogany sides and with a shower.

It was a large room with a cheery open fire burning in cold weather, and for comfort there are few today to be found more so.

This was from 1855 on, and the men of the family enjoyed a cold morning sponge.

RARE CLAY TABLETS OF EGYPT ON VIEW

ONE FROM ASSYRIAN RULER

Documents of Time of Akhanaton Said to Be Only Ones of Their Kind in This Country.

Two letters to Akhanaton, the heretic King of Egypt, written on clay tablets, which measure only a few inches in their greatest dimension, have been placed on exhibition in the Recent Accessions Room of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

According to the July number of The Bulletin, the official publication of the Museum, made public yesterday, these two letters, with the exception of a fragment of a letter at the University of Chicago, are the only Amarna tablets in America.

In the Autumn of 1887 a native woman from a village in Upper Egypt in the region known as El-Amarna, as narrated by The Bulletin, helped herself one day to ancient sun-dried bricks from the near-by ruins of the capital city of Akhanaton, with the view to using them once again as building material after some 3,250 years.

Stumbles Upon a Great Find.

In doing so she accidentally made one of the greatest finds in the history of archaeology, a part of the Foreign Office files belonging to the reigns of Amenhotep II and his son, Akhnaton.

Of the hundreds of letters found many were lost or destroyed through careless handling, but about 360 tablets found their way into safe hands and have been studied and published. Most are in Berlin and many in Cairo, London and Oxford.

Two letters came into the market in Cairo, and the Metropolitan Museum acquired them. The script is the so-called cuneiform, or wedge-shaped, writing, each tiny wedge being made by the scribe in the soft clay with the end of a reed stylus. After the letters were written the tablets were baked hard, and the writing thus preserved.

The language of nearly all the letters is Assyro-Babylonian, the diplomatic language of the time.

One of the letters reads:

To the king of Egypt thus speaks Ashur-uballit, king of Assyria: May it be well with thee, thy house, thy wives, thy chariots, and thy warriors! I have sent my messenger to thee in order to see thee and to see thy land. That which my father hath not sent have I now sent to thee. One splendid chariot, two horses, and one * * * of beautiful lapis lazuli have I sent to thee as thy gift. The messenger whom I have sent to thee to see * * * let him see and then go! Thy desire and the desire of thy land let him learn and then go!

The Other Written in Peace Time.

The second tablet acquired by the Museum appears to have been written in a time of comparative peace. It is frim Abimilki, Prince of Tyre, to the Pharaoh.

The Museum has acquired also several Greek inscriptions of unusual interest, exhibited during July among the recent accessions, and a Latin epitaph on a gravestone placed in the court of the new wing K.

The Greek inscriptions are not recent finds, The Bulletin says. All are in the Attic dialect and fragmentary in condition. One is a fragment of a decree concerning the assessment of tribute paid to the Athenian Empire. The second inscription is apparently an account of small sums expended in connection with an athletic festival. The other three are fragments of decrees.

The Near Eastern collection has recently been increased by a rare group of thirteen earthenware plaques, with relief decorations, found in public baths of Mesopotamia and Persia.

INCA RELICS MAY COME HERE

Peru Likely to Allot Some After Work by Dr. A. L. Knoeber.

LIMA, Peru, July 18 (AP).—A share of the priceless archaeological treasures of the Incas in Peru may come to the United States, despite a recent Government order forbidding their exportation.

A special Government decree authorizes Dr. Alfred L. Knoeber, a noted United States anthropologist, to work jointly with Peruvian scientists in making archaeological exploration in several regions.

The order specifies, however, that no new excavations are to be made and that the Government will arrange for the distribution among the United States and Peruvian scientists of the treasures found.

POPE TO PRAY FOR MEXICO.

Special Ceremonies Will Be Held in Rome on Aug. 1.

ROME, July 18 (AP).—The religious situation in Mexico, reports of which have reached the Vatican daily through private channels, has so affected Pope Pius that he has decided to personally devote an hour to prayer on Aug. 1 for those afflicted in Mexico.

That is the day on which Catholics throughout the world have been asked to unite in special prayers for the cessation of the Mexican Government's persecution of Catholics and for divine pardon of those guilty of ordering the carrying out of the anti-religious measures.

On the morning of Aug. 1, the festival of St. Peter-in-Chains, and the beginning of "the indulgence of Portiuncula," the Pontiff will go to the Pauline Chapel for prayers, while special ceremonies will be held in the various basilicas.

NEW FLAG FOR C. M. T. C.

Secretary of War Authorizes It Officially for Training Camps.

Time-honored and battle-worn flags in the United States Army's official gallery opened ranks to admit a "recruit" yesterday. This youngest addition to the long line of army colors and standards is a regimental flag which Secretary of War Davis has just authorized for units of the Citizens' Military Training Camps.

It is a solid blue flag with an eagle in white rising with outspread wings and the letters C. M. T. C., also in white. A knotted fringe of yellow silk borders the flag, while attached to the spearhead of the staff is a tasseled cord of red, white and blue strands.

The C. M. T. C. flag will be carried at fifty C. M. T. C. encampments throughout the country where 35,000 volunteer youths will be in training this Summer.

TEXAS VOTERS COOL IN A HOT CAMPAIGN

PRIMARY COMES SATURDAY

Many Believe Mrs. Ferguson Will Be Beaten and Will Resign as She Has Promised.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 18.—Confidence of supporters of Dan Moody that he will be nominated for Governor in the Democratic primary July 24 and that no run-off primary a month later will be necessary is growing stronger. This view of the situation, however, is ridiculed by Governor "Ma" Ferguson and Lynch Davidson and their chief spokesman, including James Ferguson, who is waging a single-handed fight for his wife's re-election.

Davidson and his principal supporters seem to be well pleased with the situation, and, while they do not believe that he will lead in the first primary, they express confidence that he will be in the run-off with Moody, and that in the final primary he will receive enough of the former Ferguson vote to nominate him. This view is well founded, according to veteran political observers.

The three other candidates for Governor—the Rev. F. L. Zimmerman of Naples, Mrs. Edith Wilmans of Dallas and Mrs. Kate Johnston of San Antonio—are not expected to receive more than a few thousand votes all told.

Of the 1,130,000 qualified voters in Texas probably not more than 700,000 will enter the Democratic primary. Notwithstanding the intense feeling that exists between Ferguson and Moody and many of their supporters, the masses of voters are not aroused. In the first place, the farmers are too busy with their crops to attend political meetings or to do much reading about the issues of the campaign, and, secondly, the personalities which have been brought into the political fight have so disgusted many Democrats that they will not go to the polls at all.

The Republican primary will be held the same day as the Democratic primary, but with an open split in the State and Congressional organizations of the party it is expected that not to exceed 50,000 votes will be cast for the Republican candidates for Governor.

Ferguson Fighting Moody Only.

Mr. Ferguson's fight is directed wholly against Mr. Moody. In his speeches he continues to charge that "Moody runs with the Ku Klux Klan at night."

Mr. Ferguson's assertion that his wife kept evolution teachings out of the textbooks for public schools is disputed by S. M. N. Marrs, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who is Secretary of the State Textbook Commission, and who kept the minutes of its proceedings.

As the day approaches for holding the first primary, interest in the pledge or agreement that was made between Governor Ferguson and Mr. Moody increases. In her opening address of the campaign at Sulphur Springs, Governor Ferguson made the proposition to Moody that she would resign her office immediately after the result of the first primary were made known if he led her by as many as one vote, provided Moody would agree to resign as Attorney General if she led him by as many as 25,000 votes.

Moody accepted the wager and in his speeches he has promised to live up to it to the letter, but neither Governor Ferguson nor her husband has had anything more to say about the pledge since it was originally made. It is the popular belief, however, that both parties to the verbal contract stand ready to abide by the result of the primary.

Many veteran politicians believe it is Governor Ferguson who will resign. They predict that Moody will lead her by 50,000 to 75,000 votes in the first primary. Moody expresses confidence that his vote will exceed that of Governor Ferguson by not fewer than 100,000.

Should Governor Ferguson resign the latter part of this month, the vacancy would be automatically filled by Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller of Dallas, who would serve until the duly elected successor takes office the third Tuesday in January. Miller has no opposition in his candidacy for re-election. He has made no political speeches and has not intimated which of the candidates for Governor is his choice.

Talk of Special Session.

It is regarded as certain that Miller would issue a call for a special session of the Legislature if he took over the reigns of government. An insistent and popular demand exists for a special session to legalize the outstanding road district bonds, which aggregate $80,000,000 to $100,000,000. The delay in validating these bonds has placed a blight upon all other bonds issued in Texas and caused a serious depreciation of their market price.

But if Governor Ferguson should retire from Texas politics, there is no assurance that "Jim" Ferguson would be content to remain long in private life. Irrespective of the outcome of the present contest for Governor, he plans to make the race for the United States Senate against Senator Earle B. Mayfield. That much is known, and it is asserted that one of the reasons why Mr. Ferguson is making such a to-do over the Ku Klux Klan in the present campaign is that he wants to keep that issue alive for use in his candidacy against Mayfield. The latter was elected to the Senate by the votes of the Klan, it is declared, and it is added that he still stands in high favor with that organization.

Another unusual phase of the situation is that it is assured in advance that the next Legislature will be anti-Ferguson even if the Governor should be re-elected. In only a few Senatorial and Representative districts are candidates lined up for the Fergusons. Most of them are making the race on the same issues that are championed by Moody.

While Mr. Ferguson is away from the capital, campaigning for his wife, the affairs of the State are being looked after by the Governor, who has spent more time in her office during the last few weeks than was the case before the campaign opened. She seems to be taking more pride than formerly in disposing of official matters that come before her. In questions of major importance, however, she continues to defer to her husband's advice and judgment.

Garner Facing a Hard Fight.

Representative John N. Garner, minority leader of the House, has a fight on his hands for the Democratic nomination in the Fifteenth District, which he has represented for many years. The candidate who is running against him is Sid Hardin of Mission. Even with the elimination of Hardin in the primary July 24, there will be left a Republican opponent in Hardie H. Jefferies of Laredo.

Mr. Garner came down from Washington a few weeks ago and was surprised to find that many of his political friends were troubled over the support which Hardin seemed to be commanding. He was told that during the last two years thousands of new settlers have come into the district, most of them locating in the lower Rio Grande Valley, and that he cannot count upon them flocking blindly to his standard as was the case in the old days, when he was personally known to nearly every voter in the district.

Even in Uvalde, the home of Mr. Garner, it was found that several former stanch supporters were disposed to criticize him because of his record in Congress, especially his votes against a tariff on wool, mohair, hides and onions, all of which are produced in great quantities in his district. Hardin is also attacking Garner because of his support of the Federal Inheritance Tax bill.

For the first time since he entered Congress, twenty-four years ago, Garner finds himself with a real fight on his hands, but while the many new voters in the district are of a more or less uncertain quantity, the renomination of Garner is regarded as assured. It is also apparent that there has been a large influx of Republicans to the district from Northern States during the last two years, and Jefferies is counting on running Garner a close race in the general election.

In the Seventeenth District Representative Thomas L. Blanton is opposed by J. R. Smith, Democrat, of Burnet, and Dr. H. B. Tanner, Republican, of Eastland. Although Mr. Blanton is a thorn in the side of the Texas Congressional delegation, his popularity in his own district has been strikingly shown on numerous occasions, and persons familiar with conditions there say he will be renominated and re-elected by his usual majorities.

Contests in Other Districts.

Seven other members of the present delegation in Congress from Texas have both Democratic and Republican opposition. In the Second District John B. Box, incumbent, is opposed by W. W. King, Democrat, of Bronson, while two Republicans are seeking the nomination of that party. In the Fifth District Hatton W. Summers, incumbent, is opposed by D. P. McCalib, Democrat, of Dallas, with two Republicans seeking the nomination. In the Eighth District Daniel G. Garrett, incumbent, is opposed by Harry C. Gerlach, Democrat, of Houston.

In the Tenth District James P. Buchanan, incumbent, is opposed by James R. Hamilton, Democrat, of Austin. This contest is causing considerable interest because Hamilton charges Buchanan with being a leading member of the Ku Klux Klan. In this district W. A. Matthael of Bellville is making the race as the Republican candidate.

In the Eleventh District Tom Connolly, incumbent, has for his opposing Democratic candidate Lowesco Brann of Hamilton. W. H. Black of Waco is the Republican candidate.

Fritz Lanham, incumbent, in the Twelfth District, is opposed of C. E. Farmer, Democrat, of Fort Worth, and David Sutton, Republican, of Fort Worth. Guinn Williams, incumbent, in the Thirteenth District, is opposed by Ben D. Sartin, Democrat, of Wichita Falls.

Harry M. Wurzbach of Seguin, the only Republican member of Congress from Texas, is being fought by both Republicans and Democrats in his candidacy for renomination. His own party is split wide open over the question of Federal patronage. His Republican opponent is Fred E. Knetsch of Seguin. If he should be renominated he would have a Democrat pitted against him in the general election. There are three Democrats seeking the nomination in that district, the Fourteenth. They are A. D. Rogers, John P. Pfeiffer and R. E. Chrone, all of San Antonio.

Moody Resents 'Insult' to Baptists.

WOODVILLE, Texas, July 18.—Attorney General Dan Moody, replying to the charge of James Ferguson, husband of Governor Ferguson, that Moody belonged to "the anti-evolution crowd of monkey-faced Baptists," said it here today:

"I believe in the Bible from cover to cover. I believe that God created man in his own image and likeness, that the whale swallowed Jonah, and that the children of Israel passed through the Red Sea on dry land.

"I am the son of a son of a hard-shell Baptist preacher, and I do not think Jim Ferguson has any right to criticize me for belonging to that church. When he referred to 'monkey-faced Baptists' he hurled an insult at that entire religious body."

STADIUM CONCERT INDOORS.

Audience Driven by Storm Into the Great Hall Hears a Fine Program.

Last night's storm compelled Willem van Hoogstraten and the Philharmonic Orchestra to seek the shelter of the Great Hall of City College instead of giving their concert in the Stadium. A very small audience had the pleasure of listening to a very good program, which began with Beethoven's First Symphony. Mr. van Hoogstraten, whose special devotion to the Bonn composer is well known, conducted with a clarity that left no doubts in the mind of the listener. The last two movements of Bizet's Suite Arlesienne No. 1 completely captured the imagination of the audience. Mr. von Hoogstraten gave as a complete contrast Strauss's "Till Eulenspiegel," which resulted in a compliment to the fine execution of the orchestra. The final number was the overture from "Benvenuto Cellini."

Tonight Tchaikowsky's Fifth Symphony will fill the second half of the program, while Schelling's "Victory Ball" will be repeated.

A cockatoo, resisting arrest on a charge of vagrancy, severely bit one of its captors last night before the available men in the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station, from Lieutenant to caretaker, were able to put it into a cell.

Patrolman Oehlerking saw a crowd gazing upward toward the second floor of The Mornings Telegraph building, at Fiftieth Street. He looked up and saw a gray and pink breasted bird on the ledge. Amid the cheers of an ever-increasing audience, he scaled the building in human fly fashion and seized the captive set out for the station house.

Arrived there, the cockatoo suddenly began to fight. Oehlerking and the Lieutenant, who were trying to decide as to its immediate future, suddenly had to call for help. Caretaker William Taylor arrived and entered the battle with gusto, only to retire after a moment with a badly bitten thum. Finally some strategist put a basket over the bird's head and it was placed in a cell.

An hour later Miss Iris Navarro, formerly of the Greenwich Village Follies, arrived to claim the bird. Miss Navarro said that the cockatoo, its feelings injured at not being allowed to join a dinner she was giving at her apartment at 326 West Fifty-first Street, had flown out of the window and away. The cockatoo was gratefully returned.

ALSACE AUTONOMY MAY GO TO LEAGUE

CLAIMS CALLED POLITICAL

League Officials Point to Lack of Proof of Discrimination in Race, Religion or Law.

GENEVA, July 18 (AP).—Leaders of the recent unsuccessful movement in Alsace-Lorraine to obtain autonomy for the recovered French Provinces, may, it is believed in some quarters in Alsace, take their cause before the League of Nations. That there is a certain amount of sentiment in this direction among these leaders was learned by a staff correspondent of The Associated Press who has just made a tour of the districts.

Reference of the matter to the League presumably would be fought vigorously by France, while League officials say that even if any petition reached Geneva it would not be acted upon and would not even be circulated among League members, since France never signed a minority treaty concerning Alsace.

In official quarters of the League the Alsatian claims are regarded as fundamentally political, as no proof has been forthcoming that the Provinces are being discriminated against from the standpoint of race, religion or law.

Although the recent manifesto couched in violent terms and signed by about a hundred residents of Alsace-Lorraine, has been described simply as a symptom of "growing pains," it was serious enough to warrant swift action by the French Government.

Of those who signed the document calling for autonomy, twenty-one-most of them State employes of various kinds, were deprived of their posts or barred from their professions. Twelve clergymen signed the manifesto, but they were not punished because this would have involved diplomatic negotiations with Rome.

Separatist Manifesto Repudiated.

The leader of the autonomy movement was the Vice President of the local Parliament when Alsace and Lorraine were under German rule. The organizers formed a "League of the Fatherland." Their manifesto declared that the hour was grave for Alsace-Lorraine, that the territory had been subjected to systematic spoliation at the hands of France for the past seven years, and that their rights were trampled under foot and their customs, traditions and liberties destroyed.

The manifesto called for the formation of a "national minority" and demanded complete autonomy "within the framework of France." The latter phrase was inserted at the request of the majority of the signers. A legislative assembly with its seat at Strasbourg was called for. It was insisted further than German should be the principal language taught to school children and not French.

Although this manifesto did not call for a complete separation from France, in many cities the correspondent found the conviction that the movement for autonomy was intended as a step toward complete separation.

The disciplinary measures taken by the Government brought out a second manifesto, much milder in tone. All three political parties, Catholic, Socialist and Radical, condemned the original manifesto, although the Radicals expressed approval of administrative decentralization, so that Alsace and Lorraine could conduct their own affairs.

German Influence Is Denied.

Charges that the funds for support of the movement originated in Germany were made by General Bourgeois, the noted Alsatian. On the other hand, the Catholics of Mulhouse protested against the penalties inflicted on the signers of the manifesto.

The second manifesto disavowed any intention of launching a separatist movement, and repudiated accusations that the autonomy movement was sustained by funds from outside of France and was preliminary to reannexation of the territory by Germany.

"We have been treated like criminals merely because we are demanding for Alsace-Lorraine a constitutional régime similar to that accorded by Germany," the manifesto says. "We are certain France will realize that our legitimate claims cannot be stifled by violence and that the French people will be convinced that they have misunderstood our true intentions."

While Premier Mussolini, in the annexed Austrian district of Southern Tyrol, is having only Italian taught to school children, France is pursuing a different educational policy in Alsace-Lorraine. The French give predominance to the French language, but permit, and even encourage, German in third year primary education.

This is being done on the theory that the interests of the inhabitants of Alsace-Lorraine, as a frontier people between France and Germany, and the interests of the French Republic itself, clearly demand that the population know both German and French.

"Hindenburg" Partition Plan.

Much interest has been created by the circulation of a document signed "Hindenburg" which is said to have been found in the former German General Staff headquarters in Strasbourg after the Armistice. This recommended that after the war all forms of autonomous government in Alsace-Lorraine should be abolished, the Provinces placed under military rule for at least ten years and then divided, Alsace being made part of Bavaria and Lorraine part of Prussia.

Another belief held in some quarters is the alleged dream of some Rhine leaders of bringing into being some day a great Catholic buffer State between France and Germany on the left bank of the Rhine, which would include the 8,000,000 inhabitants of Alsace-Lorraine, the Rhineland, the Palatinate, the Sarre and Luxembourg.

M. Peirotes, Socialist Mayor of Strasbourg, sums up the situation thus:

"It is merely the growing pains of the French assimilation of our people after fifty years of German domination. Of course, there are difficulties and there are malcontents who are constantly conjuring up the particular benefits enjoyed under the German régime. But with patience it will all come out right in the end, provided, however, that Paris accords administrative decentralization and gives more authority to the Prefects and the District Councils, who are elected by the people."

CHARLES PADDOCK TO WED BEBE DANIELS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 18 (AP).—Charles Paddock, the sprinter, tonight showed Hollywood his speed as a wooer with the announcement by Bebe Daniels, film star, whom he has known for five weeks, that they would be married, but not for a year.

Paddock, holder of four world's sprinting records, met Miss Daniels when he was engaged to appear in her support in a motion picture now being filmed. The production marks the champion's début on the screen.

"We have no plans other than that we expect to be married. The wedding will not take place for at least a year because we each have other plans which will occupy most of our time during the next twelve months. I have another picture to make here right away, then a two months' vacation abroad and then another picture."

Paddock could not be reached for a statement, although he followed a custom he established a few weeks ago by accompanying the star home from the studio. However, he admitted to friends there that the engagement had made him happier than any of his track achievements.

The engagement came as a surprise to Hollywood film folk, because there had been no intimation of the announcement. Miss Daniels is twenty-six years old, while Paddock will celebrate his twenty-sixth birthday during the coming week.

John Shepard 3d, of the Shepard Stores, Boston, left for that city yesterday to begin the operation of radio station WNAC on a new wave length of 429 meters. "We believe this wave length will result in the least interference for our listeners," he said, "but if the audience prefers our old wave length of 280 meters we will return to that length."

A. M. HERRING DIES; PIONEER OF THE AIR

PARTNER OF GLENN CURTISS

Said to Have Invented Curved Plane —Application for Patent Rejected.

Augustus M. Herring, a pioneer designer of airplanes, died on Saturday morning at his home, 558 Fifty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, from a paralytic stroke, in his sixtieth year.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Lillian Mellen of Freeport, L. I.; his son, William Herring, and his daughter, Mrs. H. Miller, of 108 Middle Neck Road, Great Neck, L. I.

The funeral services will be held privately at 9 A. M. today in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Mr. Herring, who was born in Conyers, Ga., had his interest in air phenomena aroused in 1880 by a toy helicopter butterfly, according to his biographer, James V. Marvin, holder of the world's record for airplane efficiency and a former pupil of Mr. Herring. To solve the problems developed by his efforts to make large model helicopters, he took a four-year course at Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, being in the class of '88.

In 1889 Mr. Herring developed the aerofoil, or the curved plane at present in use. He then obtained a position at the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, as one of the late Professor Langley's assistants. In that year, it is said, he sent his first plane into the air, using a compressed-air motor. The plane, which was without pilot or passenger, flew 800 yards at a height of about twelve feet from the ground before it crashed.

In 1896 Mr. Herring filed an application for a patent on his "curved winged" flying machine, but it was rejected. The Wright brothers filed their application seven years later.

He constructed in 1898 a machine which, with himself as the pilot, is credited with flying for thirty-six feet at an altitude of about ten feet. The engine was run by compressed air, although Mr. Herring is said by his friends to have developed at that time the gasoline motor to a point of efficiency for use in the air.

When in 1903 the Wright brothers accomplished a flight of a few seconds' duration Mr. Herring took the keenest interest in their efforts, and, according to Captain James R. Martin, an associate of Mr. Herring and a pioneer in aviation, gave them access to his research discoveries.

Herring in 1908 constructed for the Government a plane that was wrecked in a preliminary flight on Hempstead Plains, L. I. Undaunted, he organized with Glenn Curtiss the Herring-Curtiss Company and the next year sent a machine to France for the air races at Rheims. The Herring-Curtiss machine was the victor.

In 1910 Herring became affiliated with the Starling-Burgess Company of Marblehead, Mass. A plane made by that company was personally flown by Herring.

For the last fifteen years, Mr. Herring had taken no active part in aviation. According to Captain Martin, this was because of ill health, and because he was embittered over litigation attendant upon his application for patents and troubles with some of his associates.

DR. F. BERTRAND DIES IN HONDURAS

Dr. Francisco Bertrand, former President of Honduras and sponsor of a plan for a Central American Federation of States, died of heart disease on July 16, at La Ceiba, Honduras, it was learned here yesterday.

Dr. Bertrand, who was 56 years old, became President in 1916. He resigned in 1919 when a revolution developed from friction between rival parties seeking to elect his successor. He left Honduras and made his home with his family in New Orleans until two months ago, when he returned to Honduras.

Pacification of the various political parties in his country was the end to which Dr. Bertrand devoted his administration. He declared a general amnesty for all political exiles of former régimes. Shortly before his resignation he called a conference of representatives of the Central American Republics to consider their union in a federation, but the opposition of some of the countries prevented consummation of the plan.

It was reported in 1919 that Dr. Bertrand and Carlos Melendez, former President of Salvador, had agreed upon what was termed the "basis of a treaty," by which the constitutions of the two countries should be annulled and the nations amalgamated into one republic.

Sister Ann Jerome Dies at 92.

Sister Ann Jerome, 92 years old, died on Saturday at the New York Catholic Protectory, Unionport Avenue, the Bronx. Before she became a Sister of Charity fifty-three years ago she was Miss Susan Conway of this city. For many years she was a teacher at the College of Mount St. Vincent-on-Hudson and of late years had worked in the girls' department of the New York Catholic Protectory. A mass of requiem will be celebrated tomorrow morning at 9:30 in the Girls' Chapel at the Protectoy.

From the Founder's Writings

This Store Is a Rare Book

It is bound in stone.
Its clasps are thick steel.
The people of New York and vicinity have been reading it, but have not yet read it through.
It is a book of actual life.
Each year adds to its pages.
Its pages are full of pictures.
The making of the book is a daily pleasure.
The more days, the more there is to do to perfect the useful book.
It is striving toward an ideal.
The master key to it is good common sense.
In improving the book determination is superior to genius.
It has been proven that the power of ideas is greater than an army of a million of men.
To give birth to an idea, to secretly cherish it, to develop it and live down oppositions to it, is a fair lifework.
This book has changed the methods of commerce throughout the United States.
We are proud and glad to have made what seems to be a useful book.

Belmaison Reproductions

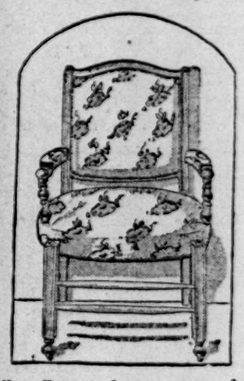
A Collection of 100

French Peasant Arm Chairs

Specially Made for Us for This Sale

Among the recent shipments from abroad which make Belmaison's part in the Furniture Sale this year one of such vivid interest and importance is this delightful collection of French peasant arm chairs, with their painted frames . . . a few are of the natural beechwood . . . and the gaily figured stuffs used to cover them.

The Charm and Individuality Of the Materials



It is these coverings in particular which give the chairs their unusual charm and individuality. In many instances lovely and irreplaceable bits of old needlework and Savonnerie have been used for this purpose. Others are covered with the most amusing chintzes and toiles imaginable. And only a few, in pairs, are alike. In most cases there was just enough of the material to cover one chair!

An engaging pair with frames painted a blithe rose-red are covered with apple-green needlework, figured with little tufts of rose-red poppies and wheat ears. An oyster white chair has a lovely bit of Savonnerie with a flower and fruit design in rose and gray. Others are painted in agreeable nuances of yellow, mauve-rose, pale gray and blue. And always there is some unexpectedly witty note of color contrast or subtle harmony in the material used with each . . . here a gaily flowered morceau of chintz, there a quaint chinoiserie, or a Louis XVI conceit of blue with pale gray ribbons and medallions.

They are chairs that will bring the happiest of decorative accents into many types of interior. Prices from $65 for the chintz-covered ones to $130 for those with needlework and loose seat cushions.

REPUBLICANS AT SEA OVER WET FORMULA

WOULD IGNORE THE ISSUE

But Think Such an Attitude Would Provoke Both Sides and Lead to Open Break.

CONVENTION FIGHT FEARED

Some Say No Dry Plank Will Be Drawn, Others Say There Will, but Neither Appears to Meet Situation.

Despite reassuring statements from Republican quarters, the Republican leaders are still busily seeking a formula on prohibition for their platform and their campaign orators.

Not long ago a Republican in a high party position declared flatly there would be no reference whatever to prohibition in the State convention's platform. Then another Republican, who will wield considerable influence at the Madison Square Garden meeting, told friends there would be a prohibition plank merely pledging the party to abide by the prohibition referendum in November, the party promising its best efforts for "State local option" if the voters demand it or for a State enforcement act if the voters decide for that.

It appears now that both the foregoing statements were lacking in authority, that neither attitude would do and that in reality no decision has been reached upon this ticklish question.

There is no doubt that the platform would ignore prohibition if that could be done without provoking an open fight in the convention, where the wets and drys will be about evenly matched. But a way has not been found yet, and talks with Republicans with hands on the party machinery and ears to the ground indicate a belief that the issue cannot be evaded.

Developments before the State convention would render virtually meaningless a plank merely pledging the party to abide by the referendum. The party candidates for the House of Representatives and for the State Senate and Assembly will be nominated in the primaries on Sept. 14, a fortnight in advance of the State conventions. These candidates will be compelled to take a stand before election.

The Anti-Saloon League is even now preparing questionnaires for all candidates for Congress and the Legislature. An answer in keeping with the proposed wet plank undoubtedly would prove unacceptable to the drys, who already have threatened to pick candidates for Senate and Assembly and possibly for the House of Representatives if candidates of the regular parties do not meet the standards set up by the league.

With nearly all the rural territory up-State dry, there is no reason to believe that Republican candidates in such constituencies would chance dry opposition to be in line with the prospective stand to be taken in the State platform. Republican leaders are fully aware of this and it worries them.

The fact that a majority of the candidates for Congress and the Legislature, mindful of the pressure brought by the drys in their primary campaigns, will sit as delegates in the State convention will not improve the situation. Some of the harassed party leaders believe this will bring much nearer the peril of a wet and dry fight in the convention.

Republicans will seek a solution for this problem in the weeks before the convention. One step will be the appointment early in September by the Republicans of a special committee to draft a tentative platform.

The same course has been followed before. Two years ago an unofficial platform committee's platform came in for sharp attack when the Platform Committee named by the convention began to consider the tentative platform. It was charged that the unofficial body had been composed almost exclusively of New York City men entirely out of touch with sentiment upState.

This year the Republican leaders will wait until the delegates to the State convention have been designated and the delegates to be recommended for the convention's Committee on Resolutions are known. Their plan is to select as members of the unofficial committee as many as possible of the delegates who will sit on this committee. Thus they hope to avert a fight.

The State Referendum Committee, headed by William Bell Wait, a Republican lawyer, opened headquarters last week at 27 Pine Street, where the tabulation of enrolments for the referendum fight is now in progress, supervised by Carey Jarman, who was lent to the committee by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Mr. Jarman said that as many as 4,000 enrolments, representing all parts of the State, were received at his headquarters in one day. On other days the number ran as low as 700 and as high as 2,500.

SMITH MYSTIFIES OLCOTT.

Republican Can't See How Men of His Party Back Governor.

J. Van Vechten Olcott, in accepting his appointment to the Advisory Committee of the Republican Business Men, Inc., of 4 West Fortieth Street, admitted that many Republicans would vote for Governor Smith if he is renominated rather than for the Republican candidate, no matter how good a man the Republican Party nominates.

How a man who "gloried" in the fact that he voted for Governor Smith could remain a member of the Union League Club or the Republican Club was a "mystery" to him, Mr. Olcott said.

The letter, made public yesterday, said:

"My own impression is that, had the business men joined their organization clubs, we could have elected a Mayor in 1921 and could have elected Mr. Waterman last year. Will not many of these people who will support Wadsworth vote for Mr. Smith if he is renominated for Governor, no matter how good a man the Republicans put up? I know that a great number of people in the Union Club and, I regret to state, a considerable number in the Republican Club, whenever Mr. Smith has run for Governor, have rather gloried in the fact that they voted for him. Just how they can remain in either of those clubs and vote against the Republican organization candidate for Governor is one of those things that is a mystery to me.

"If you can induce the Republican Business Men, Inc., to support the entire Republican ticket from the top to the bottom, you will have accomplished wonders."

Harold G. Aron, Chairman of the Advisory Committee of the Republican Business Men, Inc., announced that among those who have agreed to serve on the Advisory Committee of that organization are:

Nathaniel A. Elsberg, formerly President of the National Republican Club, Inc.; Frank S. Gannon Jr., formerly Justice of the Supreme Court; Charles D. Hilles, Vice Chairman of the Republican National Committee; William W. Hoppin; Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman, Republican County Committee of New York; Frederick J. H. Kracke, Appraiser of the Port of New York; Richard W. Lawrence, formerly Chairman of the Republican County Committee of the Bronx; Charles C. Lockwood, Public Service Commissioner; Jacob A. Livingston, Chairman of the Republican County Committee of Kings County, and J. Van Vechten Olcott.

Announcement was also made that Francis L. Whitmarsh, a director and an executive of F. H. Leggett Company, had accepted the chairmanship of the Finance Committee.

The Executive Committee of the Republican Business Men, Inc., will meet tomorrow to confer with a group of Republican women with the idea of forming an auxiliary women's organization to the business men's organization.

No opposition to the selection of Mr. Fairchild, whose home is in Pelham, was voiced.

SAYS THAW PROMISED BY MAIL TO MARRY HER

Miss Walsh Asks Winchester (Va.) Police to Locate Harry K., Whom She Has Never Seen.

WINCHESTER, Va., July 18 (AP).—A young woman, who said she was Miss Forrest Walsh of California, appealed to police here yesterday to help her locate Harry K. Thaw, who, she insisted, has promised to marry her. She said she and Thaw had engaged in a "mail courtship" and had never seen each other. She told police she had copies of all of Thaw's letters, but had returned the originals several months ago at his request.

"Mr. Thaw promised to meet me here," she said, and went on to assert that with her mother and a younger brother she had traveled by automobile from California, spending practically all of their funds.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 18.—There is rejoicing in one poor Parisian household today, for the young daughter of the family has suddenly found herself in possession of 40,000 francs—a small fortune to a French wage earner—through the recovery of the famous pearl necklace belonging to the Baroness James de Rothschild.

The pearls are valued at 1,500,000 francs.

The girl is employed at a well known dressmaking establishment to assist clients in trying on their gowns. The Baroness de Rothschild, who is one of the wealthiest women in Europe, came for a fitting last Thursday. Later in the day she reported the loss of the necklace to the police and that same evening the young girl in cleaning up the fitting room found the pearls.

Taking them to the head saleswomen, she explained how she had found them, but the saleswomen laughed and told her:

"They are only cheap imitations, keep them."

The girl nevertheless placed them in a drawer, locked it and went home.

Her father, several nights later, read of the loss of the pearls and the girl immediately went to the police.

The baroness was sent for, identified the pearls and, kissing the young girl, handed her a check for 40,000 francs.

DISTURBERS FOILED AT NOBILE WELCOME

Four black-shirted Fascisti and four white-shirted anti-Fascisti were arrested outside the Lewisohn Stadium yesterday morning for trying to start a disturbance among 12,000 of their countrymen, mostly Mussolini sympathizers, who had assembled in honor of General Umberto Nobile, designer and commander of the airship Norge on its historic flight across the North Pole.

The reception had been arranged under the auspices of the Bolletino della Sera, an Italian newspaper of this city. Officials of the Italian Government were there, including Baron Giacomo de Martino, the Italian Ambassador, and Emilio Axerio, the Consul-General in New York. Six hundred Fascisti were present, wearing the black shirts of Mussolini's followers, while others in the crowd of more than 10,000 were members of Italian fraternal and religious orders and Italian-American civic and commercial organizations.

The eight combatants had been quarreling inside the stadium during the exercises, until they were ejected by the police. They continued their altercation outside, on Amsterdam Avenue, and came to blows just as crowds were streaming from the gates at the close of the ceremony. The four white-shirts rushed at the four black-shirts, one of them shouting, "Abbasso Mussolini!" (Down with Mussolini). Instantly a turmoil of shouts and imprecations arose, quieted only by the arrival of the police in command of Inspector William F. Day.

Stadium Strongly Guarded.

During the meeting the Stadium had been heavily patrolled to guard against just such a demonstation. In consequence, the police made quick work of arresting the eight trouble makers, and leading them off to the station house in time to forestall any further excitement. Later in the afternoon, Inspector Day was inclined to treat the whole incident lightly, saying that the eight were arrested "because they wanted to make trouble." He declared that at no time did the disturbance reach the proportions of a riot.

At the West 152d Street Station, where they were charged with disorderly conduct, the eight prisoners said they were John Romano, 38 years old, of 1,308 Washington Street, Hoboken; Joseph Pafifico, 30, of 322 East 114th Street; Vincent Gioiello, 31, of 2,266 First Avenue; Stefano Gelasso, 30, of 724 St. Nicholas Avenue; Nicola Scarbia, 42, of 210 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn; Alexander Porprio, 27, of 165 Willow Avenue, the Bronx; Joseph Andaloro, 30, of 1,710 Bathgate Avenue, the Bronx, and Tony Capobianco, 40, of 29 Beadel Street, Brooklyn. The Fascisti were released on bail.

The nati-Fascisti went to cells and later to Night Court, where they were fined $5 each by Magistrate Flood. Andaloro pleaded guilty to tdisorderly conduct. Patrolman Roof said Andaloro was lying on the ground, unconscious, when he arrived. Romano, Scarbia and Porprio all pleaded not guilty, but were found guilty.

The Norge's commander sat in an armchair on the high bandstand used by the Philharmonic Orchestra during the Summer months. He was dressed in the trim khaki uniform of a General of the Italian air force. On one side of him sat Ambassador de Martino, on the other, Major General Charles P. Summerall, Commander of the Second Army Corps Area, who attended with his military staff. Behind them was an orchestra and a choir of 200 voices from the Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, in the Bronx.

Noble Praises Comrades.

Speaking in Italian, General Nobile paid his tribute to the crew of the Norge and to Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth, for whom he said he had always had the friendliest feeling. He praised Mr. Ellsworth's generosity in supplying some of the funds with which the flight was accomplished, and then told the crowd that he had beenoverwhelmed by his welcome in the United States.

Others who spoke included Ambassador de Martino, General Summerall, F. M. Ferrari, President of the Harlem Bank of Commerce; Judge Francis X. Mancusco of the Court of General Sessions, Congressman Fiorello H. LaGuardia and Dr. A. H. Giannini, President of the Italian-American Chamber of Commerce. At the first mention of Mussolini's name in the speeches the black-shirted Fascisti jumped up and raised their right arms in the Fascist salute. The exercises were concluded by singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the royal march of Italy.

After the reception General Nobile, Ambassador de Martino and the five Italian members of the Norge's crew were luncheon guests of Judge Mancuso at his home, 164 East 111th Street. Later they went to the Italian Hospital, at 617 East Eighty-third Street, where they walked from bed to bed to chat with the patients.

A surprise was furnished by the five Italians of the Norge, who dashed to a near-by florist's without General Nobile's knowledge and bought twenty large boxes of flowers. Soon after the General and the Ambassador arrived the five aviators rolled up to the entrance in a flower-laden taxicab and distributed their gifts to the patients in the hospital.

TOKIO, July 19 (AP).—A mob of 5,000 persons yesterday attacked prefectural officials of the City of Nagano. About a hundred persons were wounded in the rioting, including Governor Umeya, who was dragged from his residence, stripped and severely beaten.

The riot was caused by the Government's retrenchment policy, which included abolition of seventeen police stations in Nagano prefecture.

Troops were called out. They quieted the demonstrators, but were unable to make arrests.

'Old Glory' in First Battle at Ft. Stanwix, N. Y., Investigations of Army Historians Indicate

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Army historians have unearthed evidence that the Stars and Stripes got its baptism of fire in a land battle in the defense of Fort Stanwix, N. Y., on Aug. 2, 1777. The colors improvised by the garrison appear to have shown both the alternate stripes of red and white and the "stars of glory" set upon a field of blue cut from a "camulet cloak taken from the enemy at Peekskill."

At the request of historical societies, the War Department began a search which has brought to light a work entitled "A Narrative of the Military Actions of Colonel Marinus Willett," who was a member of the garrison. It describes the necessity for making a flag when the enemy invested the fort and adds that "a decent one was soon contrived."

"The white stripes were cut out of ammunition shirts; the blue out of the camulet cloak taken from the enemy at Peekskill, while the red stripes were made of different pieces of stuff procured from one and another of the garrison," the narrative says.

Quoting a letter written by Lieut. Col. Willett at Hartford, Conn., on Aug. 21, 1777, the narrative adds, speaking of the final action at Fort Stanwix on Aug. 6:

"We totally routed two of the enemy's encampments, brought off upwards of * * * five colours, the whole of which on our return to the fort were displayed on our flagstaff under the Continental flag."

In view of these first-hand statements, War Department historical authorities are satisfied that the Continental flag mentioned was, in fact, the Stars and Stripes in its original form.

RODGERS GANG RAID GIVES MURDER CLUE

Police of Plainfield Say Three Prisoners Are Linked to Fatal Hold-Up.

FOURTH MAN SEIZED IN AUTO

Arsenal of Banditry and Loot of Robberies Found in House by 16 Raiders—Rodgers Gets Away.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., July 18.—With the arrest today of a fourth man in the round-up of alleged members of the John J. (Bum) Rodgers band of robbers, Union County detectives declared they had evidence that implicated three of the prisoners in the slaying of a Perth Amboy bank messenger during a hold-up last August, as well as a series of recent robberies in this vicinity.

While the latest captive was being questioned, a dragnet was being spread over the State for "Bum" Rodgers himself, who is believed to have escaped arrest by the premature springing of a trap yesterday afternoon when sixteen detectives raided a house in South Plainfield, reputed to have been the headquarters of the gang.

The detectives were not very sanguine of laying their hands on Rodgers, an elusive criminal who escaped from a prison guard at the 125th Street station of the New York Central Railroad in New York recently while being taken to Auburn prison to serve a long term for robbery. They said they had information that "Bum" and nine other members of the gang had headed toward Atlantic City when they learned of the round-up. They expressed the belief that Rodgers would succeed in dodging his pursuers.

Fourth Man Seized.

The man taken into custody today was Walter Legenza, 27 years old, of 174 Garfield Street, Jersey City. The two alleged members of the gang arrested yesterday were William Dwyer of Woodbridge and Charles Cassagelli. Frank Sylvester, owner of the South Plainfield house, was taken into custody as a material witness.

Evidence found in the raid on the house, and other information obtained at various sources, according to the Union County detectives, connected Legenza, Dwyer and Cassagelli with the killing of the bank messenger and several recent hold-ups.

The bank messenger, James Gallagher, was riding in a taxicab, taking a payroll of $14,000 to a contracting firm building the Victory Bridge at Perth Amboy, on Aug. 21. Three gunmen opened fire without warning and killed him almost instantly. The robbers escaped with the money.

Dwyer, Cassagelli and Sylvester were arraigned before Judge Mutsgill in Perth Amboy today. The first two were held in $25,000 bail, charged with complicity in the recent robbery of the Castle Hill Ice Cream Company plant at Perth Amboy, where $30,000 was stolen, and the Merck Chemical Company plant at Rahway, N. J., where cash and a large amount of drugs were obtained. Sylvester was held in $3,000 bail as a material witness.

Detectives said that in the South Plainfield house they found a veritable arsenal, more than $5,000 in small bills in a bag, which had been stolen in the ice cream company robbery, as well a large quantity of picture wire, such as had been used to bind the victims. Drugs and bottles to which revenue stamps were attached as they had originally been issued to the Merck Company were also found, according to the detectives.

Ten Pistols and Dynamite.

The extensive equipment for robbery seized in the raid, according to the detectives, included ten gallons of nitroglycerine, ten automatic pistols and revolvers with large supplies of ammunition, two sawed-off shot-guns, five sticks of dynamite and an elaborate assortment of burglars' tools and blackjacks.

Witnesses of the Gallagher killing and the various robberies attributed to the band will be brought before the prisoners tomorrow in an effort at positive identification. The detectives said that witnesses already had identified at least one of the prisoners for each crime from pictures.

Legenza was arrested by Traffic Patrolman Mack Gerard, who noticed that the automobile in which he was driving, with another man and two women, along Park Avenue in the direction of South Plainfield bore the license number of one of the automobiles reputed to belong to the Rodgers gang.

Pursuing the car, he forced Legenza to halt. The patrolman drew his pistol, to be ready for action if necessary. When Legenza was unable to give satisfactory answers as to his possession of the automobile, he and the man with him were arrested. The other man, Legenza's brother Michael, was released, and left with the women, who were relatives.

When questioners, including Union County Prosecutor Abe J. David, put Legenza through a long cross-examination, they said they had learned enough to hold him as a member of the gang.

"Bum" Rodgers is the man the detectives are most anxious to capture. New York detectives also want him, believing he led the robbery of the Roosevelt Hospital of $10,000 in payroll funds.

HINTS OF A SECOND GREAT LIQUOR RING

LIKELY TO INVOLVE POLICE

Inquiry Has Been Going On Since Captain Wunsche Found $9,500 "Mystery Money" on His Desk.

A second rum ring, even larger than the one which led to conspiracy charges against William V. Dwyer and nine codefendants now on trial before Federal Judge Mack, will be the next objective of the United States Attorney's office here. This has been revealed by inadvertent bits of testimony in the present trial, by observation of the witnesses coming and going before the Federal Grand Jury and by those in the United States Attorney's office itself. Attachés of the latter have admitted that still more startling rum-running revelations are now imminent.

It is said in informed quarters that police corruption will figure largely in the next case. There has been testimony in the present trial concerning the close relations between both policemen and Coast Guards and the ring Dwyer is charged with operating. No policemen, however, have been brought directly into the case, and no names have been mentioned in the testimony.

Dwyer himself has been repeatedly referred to as the "Czar of Rum Row," yet the authorities are said to have begun to find evidence of a still larger ring soon after they started work on the Dwyer case, and even before he was indicted in January. Several individual arrests and seizures which have been made since are believed to have touched this second rum-running ring, though their significance has not been revealed.

It is expected that when the authorities are ready to make their revelations concerning the second, bigger ring an incident that will figure is that of the $9,500 "mystery money" which Captain Hugo O. Wunsche of the Marine Division of the police found on his desk at Pier 1, North River, last April. That incident, in which Captain Wunsche himself figured innocently, dropped out of sight as suddenly as it had appeared and nothing was ever heard of it subsequently. But it is known that the investigation which followed has been pursued up until very recently and that certain startling evidence concerning some persons in the Police Department was revealed.

The steamer Eker and the schooner Donetta were seized within a few days of the "mystery money" occurrence, and it was said at the time that the two ships were in some way connected with the money. The money was thought to have reached the wrong desk. It is known that neither the Eker nor the Donetta was connected with the Dwyer ring.

During the cross-examination of Captain Weishaar, skipper of an alleged Dwyer boat and later a warrant officer in the Coast Guard, the imminence of another large-scale rum-running prosecution was revealed. Benjamin Spellman, in trying to lay open the relations between Weishaar and A. Bruce Bielaski, in charge of prohibition investigations here, asked him concerning certain evidence that he had laid before Bielaski. United States Attorney Buckner immediately was on his feet objecting to the line of questioning.

It developed that the evidence in question concerned certain individuals not yet arrested who are involved in a liquor smuggling conspiracy. Mr. Buckner was obviously much perturbed in making his objections and he was finally sustained by Judge Mack "for reasons of public policy."

LEAPS FROM BURNING AUTO.

Girl, Panic-Stricken, Fatally Injured When She Jumps.

Mrs. Alma Moran Grimm, 19 years, of 203 Ninth Street, Jersey City, was fatally injured shortly after midnight yesterday morning in jumping from a burning automobile. She died in the Bayonne Hospital.

The car was driven by Thomas J. Connolly, 26, of 226 Ninth Street, Jersey City, with Mrs. Grimm sitting on the front seat alongside the driver. Their car had just crossed the Morris Canal Bridge on the Boulevard from Bayonne to Jersey City when a passing motorist shouted to them that the auto was on fire.

Connolly did not have time to stop his car before Mrs. Grimm, panic-stricken, open the door and leaped out, falling heavily on the pavement. She received a fractured skull and concussion of the brain. Connolly was held on a charge of not having an owner's or a driver's license. The automobile was destroyed by the flames.

GIRL DIES, PINNED BETWEEN AUTOS

Special to The New York Times.

WOODBRIDGE N. J., July 18.—Salome Bernstein of Portland, Ore., came across the continent to visit friends. She was entertained in Philadelphia, whence she journeyed to Newark, stopping at the home of Rabbi Charles I. Hoffman, 624 High Street. Together with the rabbi's son and daughter and Miss Rebecca Fredlander of Orange, she went for a drive late on Saturday night.

Just outside of Woodbridge a puncture brought the drive to a halt. Laughingly the party trudged into town to get a repair man. They returned with a tire man who jacked up a rear wheel. The girls stood about in back of the car, watching the work of patching an inner tube. Salome was standing in the centre, her arms about the waists of her friends.

Down the road came another automobile. It was driven by Wendel Dafchek of Avenal.

None of the girls moved, confidently expecting the oncoming car to swerve and pass their automobile. Dafchek, however, according to Dr. Hoagland of Woodbridge, who examined him later, was under the influence of liquor. His machine crashed into that of the Hoffmans, pinning Salome between the two cars. She was killed instantly.

Rebecca Hoffman was thrown to the road and received a fractured skull and a badly battered knee. Miss Fredlander sprained a leg in leaping away from the wreck. The rabbi's son, Leon, and the garage man were unhurt.

Dafchek was taken to Dr. Hoagland by Policemen Simonsen and Somers of the Woodbridge Station. The doctor pronounced him intoxicated. He is being held on charges of manslaughter and driving while drunk.

Woman Killed in Crash.

Mrs. Yetta Levack, 36 years old, of 171 Beach Seventy-first Street, Arverne, L. I., was killed yesterday when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband, Benjamin, collided with one driven by Edward Smith, 24 years old, of 440 Central Avenue, Far Rockaway, L. I., at Cross Bay Boulevard, Howard Beach, Queens. Smith is a prisoner in Rockaway Beach Hospital, suffering from a fractured jaw. He is charged with homicide.

Silver Engelberg, 16 years old, of 440 Central Avenue, Far Rockaway, who was in Smith's automobile, and Mr. Levack were slightly injured.

Edward Mudge, 30 years old, of 183 Eckford Street, Brooklyn, a taxicab driver, was killed yesterday when he crashed into a milk truck at the Long Island end of the Queensboro Bridge. Five men in the taxicab were injured and went home after being treated for bruises and cuts.

According to the police, Mudge tried to pass to the left of the large truck, but misjudged his distance and wrecked his taxicab. The injured were Thomas Reilly of 82 Meserole Street, Albert Benson of 227 Calyer Street, John Tynan of 183 Norman Avenue, Thomas Bonuso of 169 Kent Street and Michael Dalton of 149 Greene Street, all of Brooklyn.

Three women and a man were injured when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into another machine at Essex and Liberty Avenues, Brooklyn. The injured were Sol Wang of 196 Atkins Street, his wife, Rose, and Rachel and Rose Schwartz, 18 and 20 years old, respectively, of 1,370 West Sixth Street, Coney Island. Wang's car, driven by Rose Schwartz, according to the police, collided with an automobile operated by Joseph C. Bossert of 167 114th Avenue, Jamaica. Bossert was uninjured. Wang got a summons for failing to have a registration card with him. Miss Schwartz had a driver's license.

Two Girls Seriously Hurt.

Two girls were taken to Nassau Hospital at Mineola yesterday seriously injured by automobiles. Mary Allogi, 7 years old, of New Cassel, L. I., suffered a fractured skull when she was struck by an automobile driven by Mannie Galmese in Westbury, L. I. Jane Morgan of Brightside Avenue, Central Islip, L. I., was removed from Massapequa, L. I., where she suffered a fractured skull.

Edward Reilly, 35 years old, of 134 West Sixty-second Street, a mechanic, employed at Bellevue Hospital, was struck by an automobile while on his way to work last night and seriously injured. He was crossing Twenty-eighth Street at Third Avenue when he was struck. The automobile failed to stop.

Eight persons were injured when two automobiles collided during the storm last night on Shelter Rock Road, near Herricks, L. I. The injured were taken to Nassau Hospital, Mineola, for treatment. The drivers said they were confused by the storm. Wardell Wilkinson of 41 Fifth Avenue, Manhattan, suffered internal injuries and Cathleen Carr, 20 years old, of 65 Central Park West, Manhattan, suffered a fractured jaw. Six others were only slightly hurt.

Three persons were slightly hurt in an automobile crash at the height of the storm when a taxicab driven by Charles Scofield, 26 years old, of 26 McDougal Street, Brooklyn, collided with another automobile at Chambers and West Streets. Scofield received lacerations of the scalp and fingers. His passengers, Louis Riley, 32, and Albert Barhold, 38, both living at 489 Tenth Avenue, were cut by glass.

An automobile driven by Joseph Harris, 34 years old, of 2,024 Seventy-eighth Street, Brooklyn, skidded during the downpour last night and ran into an elevated pillar at the corner of Hester Street and the Bowery. With Harris in the car were his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Harris, 25, and Miss Carrie Rosenberg, 45, of 2,045 Eighty-fifth Street, Brooklyn. All three received minor bruises and went home.

Wedding of Newark Couple Revealed on Return From Honeymoon.

The marriage of William C. J. Penn, 18 years old, of 138 South Street, Newark, said to be a direct descendant of the founder of Pennsylvania, to Miss Emma Thiems, 17 years old, of 23 Malvern Street, was revealed yesterday when the couple returned to Newark after a honeymoon trip. They were married in Newark on June 20.

Among the documents of the Penn family in the possession of the youthful bridegroom is a religious treatise entitled "No Cross, No Crown," written by William Penn while a prisoner in the Tower of London in 1668.

Finds Reformers Too Glum; Excepts Pussyfoot's Grin

Good nature in the dry reformer is the greatest need for making prohibition successful, according to Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, professor of philosophy at New York University. In a statement made public by the university last night, Dr. Shaw maintained that good humor was necessary as an antidote to unpopularity.

"The greatest psychological asset in the whole course of prohibition is the grin on the rounded face of Pussyfoot Johnson," Dr. Shaw said. "A dry film with Pussyfoot as the star would do more good than an army of prohibition agents. The chief asset of the dry is such good humor as he can master, for in that there is the spirit of tolerance and the absence of all sense of persecution. Prohibition needs a good laugh."

DR. HARRIS DEFENDS HIS MILK PRICE PLAN

SEES END TO ADULTERATION

Health Commissioner Louis I. Harris took issue yesterday with W. J. L. Banham, President of the Board of Trade and Transportation, who in a letter to Dr. Harris opposed the fixing of milk prices by a commission because he did not see any reasonable connection between pure milk and price fixing.

Dr. Harris said he regretted that Mr. Banham had not come to him to discuss the matter, as he felt sure Mr. Banham would then see things as he did, "as facts upset all theories and theorizing."

"The facts of the milk situation indicate that price bears a definite relation to the purity of milk," said Dr. Harris. "The lesson of the whole Danziger situation must be remembered. When Danziger was arrested, the purity and adulteration of milk and cream and butter were dependent on the price fixed, and price manipulation methods are part of the competitive warfare continually waged in the ranks of milk dealers.

"All you need is a momentary outburst of competition or underselling, sometimes at a loss, as is the custom, and at once the dealers are incited to reprisals which take the form of adulteration and skimming of milk or cream.

"If there is any lesson I have learned since my appointment it is that there is perpetual strife among the hordes of jobbers and middlemen of all qualities and degrees, and that the people of New York will not have pure milk so long as the Health Commissioner tolerates this warfare.

"The latest instance of this situation has just come to hand. I have learned that a man with a large amount of capital has gone into Harlem and the Bronx and has approched retail dairies and grocers with the old fiction of buying good-will. This simply means that he offers a dealer a certain sum for each can of milk the dealer buys from him as 'good-will' for becoming his customer. Such a move generally leads to a price war with other milk wholesalers, to reprisals, and in the end the inevitable adulteration and substitution."

SHOTS FIRED IN CHASE; STOLEN CAR WRECKED

Five Youths Seized After Auto Hits Riverside Fence, Near Schwab's Home.

More than one hundred shots were fired by detectives on Riverside Drive about 4:30 o'clock yesterday morning when five youths in a stolen automobile were pursued from Ninety-fourth to Seventy-third Street and finally captured after smashing into a fence opposite the home of Charles M. Schwab.

Detective Captain Daniel J. Kerr was cruising along the Drive in a police automobile accompanied by Detectives James Donnelly, William Barrett, James Hennessey, Edward Fitzgerald and Frank Tweed, when at Ninety-fourth Street they saw a limousine containing five men driving along in a manner that aroused the suspicions of the captain. The detectives drove alongside of the other car and ordered the driver to pull over to the curb. The latter instantly stepped on the gas and the car was off like a shot. Captain Kerr and his detectives started after the car, firing their pistols as the car sped south.

After the crash the occupants leaped out. They were soon rounded up, placed under arrest and taken to the West 100th Street Station.

The prisoners are Harry Kellner, 18 years old, a deckhand, of 640 Wythe Avenue; John Fonks, 18, a messenger, of 347 Broadway; Edward Schneider, 21, a clerk, of 141 Moffat Street; William Jhne, 21, a clerk, of 114 Himrod Street, and James Haught, 18, laborer, who said he lived at Marcy Avenue and South First Street, all of Brooklyn.

It was learned later, according to the police, that the car had been stolen from Hewes Street and Harrison Avenue, Brooklyn, at two o'clock yesterday morning, and was owned by Benjamin Amato of 80 Montrose Avenue, Brooklyn.

LAGUARDIA ON CONGRESS.

He Will Take Up Results of Recent Session at Star Casino Tonight.

Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia will make a public report of the last session of Congress at the Star Casino, 103 East 106th Street, tonight. All his constituency has been notified of the meeting, and Mr. LaGuardia has indicated that he will take up prohibition scandals, the bread trust, veterans, civil service, and other legislation.

Congressman LaGuardia telephoned to THE TIMES yesterday to deny the conversation with Policeman Manella, reported yesterday as having occurred in the drug store when the policeman failed to see his way to arrest the Congressman on the latter's announcement that he was making beer. Mr. LaGuardia said the policeman did not enter the drug store and therefore could not have been asked to "accommodate" him by an arrest. The conversation was told to a TIMES reporter by the policeman, whom the TIMES man saw emerge from the store.

PLAN NEW SCRUTINY OF STORY OF CHRIST

Scholars Believe Zeitlin May Clear Up Josephus's Reference to Jesus.

OLD MANUSCRIPT FOUND

Historian Going to Russia to Study Slavonic Version of Original Aramaic.

WORLD'S SAVANTS DIVIDED

Some Say Mention of Resurrection Was Added to Jewish Work by Christian Theologians.

The announcement from Paris that Professor Solomon Zeitlin is going into Russia to study a recently discovered Slavonic manuscript of Josephus's "Jewish Wars," supposed to be a translation from the original Aramaic, drew from scholars here yesterday statements that the study was of particular significance in view of efforts in the past century to prove that Jesus was a mythical figure.

The versions of Josephus in general use contain a paragraph mentioning Jesus and his resurrection. This paragraph has been attacked by many scholars as spurious. The ordinary Slavonic version of Josephus also contains this paragraph, but elaborated into even more detail than is found in the Greek version.

Will Compare the Translation.

The original writings of Josephus, the great historian who lived in the first century of the Christian era, were in Aramaic. The manuscripts which Dr. Zeitlin, who is professor of ancient history at Dropsie College, near Philadelphia, intends to study are understood to be a translation from the original Aramaic, and if it contains the reference to Jesus as given in other versions, and if Professor Zeitlin finds that the version is genuinely a translation from the original, it will constitute powerful evidence against the theory, advanced first in Germany by Dr. Strauss in 1835, that the whole Christ story was a fabrication.

The passage referred to by Dr. Zeitlin is in Chapter III, Book XVIII of Josephus's "Antiquities." In the standard English translation of the Greek version, made by William Whiston, the paragraph is as follows:

"Now there was about this time Jesus, a wise man, if it be lawful to call him a man, for he was a doer of wonderful works, a teacher of such men as receive the truth with pleasure. He drew over to him both many of the Jews, and many of the Gentiles. He was (the) Christ. And when Pilate, at the suggestion of the principal men amongst us, had condemned him to the cross, those that loved him at the first did not forsake him; for he appeared to them alive again at the third day; as the divine prophets had foretold, these and ten thousand other wonderful things concerning him. And the tribe of Christians so named from him are not extinct to this day."

Written Probably About 80 A. D.

If Josephus actually wrote this, according to authorities of ancient history in New York, it must have been written about 80 A. D.

The authenticity of the paragraph has been discussed by scores of scholars and though the majority believe it spurious, there are many of the first rank who believe it genuine. Its presence in the works of Josephus led to intensive reading of Josephus by early theologians, and to the use of Josephus's writings in early Christian controversial literature. It was quoted by Eusebius, proving it was in Josephus's writings by the fourth century. Among other exponents of the Christian faith who employed Josephus in their arguments were Theophilus, Clement of Alexandria, Origen and Tertullian.

Among those who have rejected the paragraph as an interpolation, written into Josephus's works later in order to support the Christian doctrine, is Benedictus Niese, a German authority on classical history and in particular a student of Josephus. In an article on Josephus in Hastings's Encyclopaedia of Religion and Ethics, Niese says:

"What is said here about Christ does not take the form of a narrative, such as we should expect from a historian, but is, in the main, a eulogy, and of a kind that only a Christian could have written. But as Josephus, alike in feeling and in utterance, is always a Jew, and, indeed, a Jewish priest, never manifesting the slightest hint of the Christian standpoint, the general concensus of investigators has long ago decided that the passage is spurious."

Genuine, Another Scholar Says.

The view that the passage is genuine is upheld among others by Dr. Louis H. Gray of the University of Nebraska, also a recognized authority. As to the significance of the paragraph Dr. Gray says:

"It shows that a Jewish historian who was born and bred in Palestine, who

CHARACTER, HE SAYS IS NATION'S WEALTH

ILLUSTRATIONS IN HISTORY

"Christian Citizenship" was the subject of a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Ribour yesterday in St. Andrew's Church, 2,067 Fifth Avenue.

"The true wealth of our country is not the accumulated silver and gold in our vaults, but the character of our citizens," said Dr. Ribourg.

"Wherever we go among the remains of the nations of antiquity we see that the most persistent things, the things that have survived the rack and ruin of empires, are the essential qualities of manhood. We see that these are a nation's noblest product, the only things that remain real and permanent. If we are to live as a nation, potential in human affairs; if we are to survive in story and song, then we must give higher heed to the making of a Christian citizenry than to production of material things. We must do more than build big ships. Tyre did that, but long ago her ships with their embroidered sails and royal rowers were forever swept from the seas. We must do more than cut lumber and dig ore, for the lumber men of Lebanon, the miners of Cyprus and the smelters of the Hittites are all gone, leaving no memorials save bared mountain slopes, buried furnaces and abandoned mines.

"These material things are all good and worthy of our pursuits, but they are not the things that make a nation, that render it potential when it does live and remembered when it ceases to live. If we as a nation are to grow strong and survive, then manhood modeled after Jesus Christ should be our most precious and pre-eminent production. And here we see the influence of religion in the social and national life. Without the transforming presence and power of the spirit of the living God as a force in the individual and national life we cannot maintain the integrity of the nation.

"A Christian nation must recognize that the highest standards of national well-being are attained only by the persistence and predominance of the religious spirit. Religion is the buttress of civilization. It is the guarantee of the sanctity of the home. Religion is the inspiring force of virtue, of the righteousness that exalteth a nation.

"If our great centres of population are to be kept free from the corruption which brought to an end the cities of ancient civilization, it is of the most importance that a spirit of Christian citizenship be infused into them. We glory today in the progress of democracy in the world, but if democracy is to endure it must rest on God and its claims must be supported by righteous, upright men—men whose lives are influenced by Christian principles."

EXPLAINS FAILURE OF SOME RELIGIONS

Dr. Mercer Says They Must Be Big Enough to Satisfy Earthly and Spiritual Needs.

"There is an apparent contradiction in what man worships," said the Rev. Dr. Samuel A. B. Mercer in his sermon yesterday at Trinity Episcopal Church, Broadway and Wall Street.

"On one hand he wants something which touches his everyday life, which he can take into his business and which will help him in his contacts with the world. On the other hand, he needs a subjective religion like the mysticism of the East, which will raise his thoughts into a contemplation of the universe. The division between the two is not sharp. It exists in every individual who, while keeping his feet on the ground, can let his mind soar beyond the stars."

Dr. Mercer said that, in his opinion, the reason for the failure of many religions was that they failed to satisfy this double need of man's nature, and that for a faith to live it must be big enough to embrace both.

"It is in the life of man that we see the need of this comprehension," he continued. "Man is a creature of earth. And yet he is a being who can comprehend all things, whose mind can picture worlds, who sees beyond the mountain tops. The two are not opposed; they are component parts, one of the other.

"Man's savior must be very God and very Man. He must be a person who can descend to earth and be a man and yet be the equal to God, a person who could eat and drink and yet be the explanation of why you come to church today."

Organ Paid For, Church Celebrates.

MANASQUAN, N. J., July 18.—Canceled notes for $6,500, paid for the pipe organ in the First Methodist Episcopal Church here, were burned at a jubilee service in the church today. The Rev. George W. Toms, pastor, was in charge. The money for the organ, installed a little over two years ago, was raised by public contributions. The Rev. F. A. Demaris, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Asbury Park, spoke on "The Furniture of a Modern Church." The notes were burned by Mrs. Owen Frazee of the Ladies' Guild and Mrs. Mae Eckman of the Mite Society.

Right as Legislators' Guide.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 18.—The Rev. Dr. Reasert A. Greenwell, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church here, in a sermon today touched on State and national legislators. He said they were asking, "What do our constituents want?" instead of whether a certain action was right or wrong. "What we need is what is right, not what the people are clamoring for," declared the preacher. "It is easy to yield to popular opinion."

Dr. Mathews Assails Modern Tendency To Accept Doctrines Without Deep Thought

"The temptation today is to let faith become stagnant," said the Rev. Dr. Shailer Mathews yesterday at the Park Avenue Baptist Church at Sixty-fourth Street.

"Somewhere we stop thinking," he said, "for it is very easy not to think beyond a certain point. With Jesus, when he was tempted of the devil, it was told Him, 'It is written.' In that case, the Bible became the source of temptation.

"Jesus was tempted to use force when he was confronted with the problem of the method of leadership He should use. A very subtle temptation to the man who can do things. History's pages are filled with the idealists who become terrorists in their attempts to convert the world to right ideas. They proceeded on the theory that the end justified the means. We are aware of the philosophy of 'self-expression,' as it is commonly called. It is, however, allied to the savage. Self-control is to be desired."

WANTS RELIGION BASED ON ETHICS

Dr. Norman Thomas Assails Dogmatic Authority in the Teaching of Children.

WOULD SEARCH FOR TRUTH

A Difficult Quest, He Says, but We Must Not Accept a Thing as True Because It Works.

The religious education of children should be based on ethics rather than on dogmatic authority, according to the Rev. Dr. Norman Thomas, Director of the League for Industrial Democracy, who spoke yesterday at the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street.

"The search for truth, however," he continued, "is not quite as easy as many of us believe. It is a much simpler thing to say that we must follow truth rather than authority than actually to make that quest the guiding principle of our lives. We all rely in some degree upon authority, whether it be the Bible or Karl Marx, and too often when we cut loose from that authority we feel as a lost child on a dark night.

"In our difficult quest for truth, a quest which, like the search for beauty, really makes us men, we must not accept any cheap and easy pragmatical truth, a truth that is so only because it works. Lies very often work over a short period of time, and we must seek for something firmer upon which to base truth.

"Few men or women are strong-minded enough to be hypocrites, and we cannot accuse religion and its interpreters for all the misfortunes that dogma and superstition have brought about. We cannot always have a devil to blame something upon, but we must look to our own intelligence. We are more likely to be cowards than dupes, stupid not hypocritical. We must acquaint our children with all manner of religious teachings and impress upon them that, while life may be short and does not give us time to fulfill a vision, it does give us the vision of truth, and it is up to us to make use of it."

WILL ADVERTISE RELIGION.

Head of Church Department of Advertising Clubs Plans Campaign.

All the resources of the modern advertiser will be brought to bear in a world-wide campaign for promoting religion, it was announced yesterday by the Rev. Charles Stelzle, who has just been elected President of the Church Advertising Department of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. The radio, the newspaper, the billboard, posters and exhibits, and many other popularizing methods will be used in the coming year. Mr. Stelzle said.

Mr. Stelzle will appoint an outstanding advertising man as vice president in each of the eighteen districts of the Associated Clubs, which now cover all of America and much of Europe. All service in the campaign will be voluntary.

Advertising conferences will be held for ministers and church workers, advertising men, representatives of national religious bodies and editors of the religious press, and courses of lectures on advertising will be on the program in theological seminaries.

ASKS HUMILITY IN POWER.

Dr. Reiland Says Great Should Pay Debts to Lowly by Service.

"The Spirit of Power" was the title of the weekly message of the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's Church, Rutherfurd Place. "Power is a very wonderful thing to possess and to have great influence is a privilege," he said. "The higher one climbs from the common ground, the greater is the necessity that he keep his head clear and maintain both his balance and his hold. The abuse of power and privilege is always easy to find because many who possess those are not strong enough to keep a humble spirit.

"No one is really self-made, though we often hear of self-made men. The phrase is counterfeit. Under its influence we are likely to do injustice to the many obscure and humble helps which have contributed their moiety to the making of a powerful man. Such a man's satisfactions should be those of discharging just debts with the golden coin of service so that his power may have about it that which it does not always embrace, the light of happiness and the lustre of joy."

Calls Spiritual Suffering Trying.

The Rev. Charles Inglis, a visiting clergyman from London, preached yesterday morning on sorrow and suffering in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, Fifty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue.

Grief and tribulation were two legacies left to mankind since the fall of man, he said. Of the three forms of suffering, physical, mental and spiritual, he declared that spiritual suffering was the most trying. Sorrow was not a sign of God's displeasure, Dr. Inglis said, but it was His method of educating persons. The holiest persons in the world were afflicted with sorrow, he declared.

"There were many lessons that cannot be learned except through suffering," Dr. Inglis said. "Sorrow produces patience. The sufferer is rewarded ultimately, for he rises to heights of glory that other persons cannot approach."

GOOD, EARNEST WORK AS A SOURCE OF JOY

Dr. H. F. Hoops Says Every Active, Energetic Mind Delights in Activity.

THE WORLD'S GRATITUDE

Many Who Overestimate the Value of Their Services Expect Too Much, He Says.

"To every active, energetic mind there is an intense delight in earnest work," said the Rev. Dr. H. Frederick Hoops in his sermon yesterday at the Second German Baptist Church, 407 West Forty-third Street.

"Work gives scope to those powers within us which rejoice in action. It reacts upon our own soul and strengthens and develops us in direct proportion to the efforts put forth or the sacrifices made. It is moreover impossible to do good to others without receiving great good ourselves. God thus frequently blesses us with such an immediate and gracious return for our labors that we are repaid tenfold, even in this life, for all that we may do in His service.

"We hear a great deal about the ingratitude of the world. Some clever writer has called its hollow thankfulness 'a lively sense of favors to come.' But every person who has been engaged in truly useful work will be able undoubtedly to affirm that his experience contradicts the cynical assertion. The truth is that many people quite overestimate the value of what they do, and expect a great deal of gratitude for every small service.

"Indeed, gratitude cannot fail to please nor ingratitude to pain us; but to let the hope of one or the fear of the other influence our work in any permanent way is a dishonor to the work itself. We never find the great workers of the world complain of unthankfulness or of failure. If they encounter it, it seems to produce no effect upon them. They work on indefatigably because they love their work.

"It is a very trite saying that 'what is worth doing at all is worth doing well.' Many have written it in their copy books at school. Everybody assents to it as a matter of course, yet not one person in twenty, perhaps, puts it into practice. It should be written in letters of gold in every house, in every school, in every shop, office and factory. To slight our work is to despise the task God has given us to do, and to refuse the use of those powers He has given us to work with. If we have nothing but the most menial of tasks to perform it should be done as carefully as if it were the most important work in the world. 'He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in that which is greatest.'"

TELLS OF BLESSING IN PRIVATE PRAYER

Dr. van Dyke Says God Will Be Known Only to Those Who Meet Him Alone.

The great need of the present day is an escape "from the dominance of crowds," said the Rev. Dr. Tertius van Dyke in a sermon yesterday to the congregations of the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church and the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church, in the church of the latter at Park Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street.

"We are continually on parade," continued Dr. van Dyke. "We are organized and systematized, and every moment of our time is accounted for. The result, particularly on our young people, is a terrible and paralyzing self-consciousness. We are forever trying to produce an effect. Our relaxation is much like our work. It is a matter of crowds. We are afraid to be alone.

"You may remember that it was Jesus's custom to withdraw a little from the crowd and pray. He would go up into the solitude of the mountain and find a relief from the dominance of crowds. If He found this seclusion of value, might we not also? Should we not withdraw, too, on occasion?

"God will be adequately known only to those who meet Him alone. The most obvious benefit of solitude is, of course, that when you are alone you cannot play a part. You must get down to fundamental things.

"We should turn oftener to the practice of private prayer, for no one can long remain faithful without inner prayer. No amount of kindly deeds can take the place of this inner communion.

"What we lack today is the willingness to turn away from the dominance of the crowd and commune with God."

BE PREPARED, PASTOR URGES

Preaching at the Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin, 139 West Forty-ninth Street, the Rev. Dr. H. K. Pierce yesterday urged his congregation always to be prepared for death and never to look forward with apprehension.

"You can shilly-sham, you can deny God until a certain time when you have no further choice in the matter," he said. "Some time there has to be a final choice, and that is the last conscious moment of our lives. We make all sorts of resolutions here on this earth, but there comes a time when we can no longer change our plans. Is death going to catch us in some act of sin or after a confession?"

DR. STEIMLE FINDS WORLD IMPROVING

WOULD COMPARE RELIGIONS

Asserts That Greatness of Christ Will Be Evident to Students of Other Faiths.

"There are more men under arms in Europe today than there were before the war, said the Rev. Dr. Augustus Steimle, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Advent, Broadway at Ninety-third Street, in his sermon there yesterday. "Disarmament sometimes appears to be but a lovely dream beside the sweet and beautiful sayings of Christ; and in the stress of modern life even those sayings of the Master may sometimes strike some of us as impractical, impossible to interpret in the light of the twentieth century.

"However this may be, there is still a change for the better, I think, apparent in our lives. You have only to pick up a book of history to see what I mean. History is written a little differently nowadays; the style has changed since most of us were schoolboys. In the old days the wars made the history; history stopped when the wars were ended. But nowadays we see that it is not in the arts of war, but in the steadfast practices of peace, that history made its greatest progress.

"Has not the providence of God been extended over us all? Consider how He has blessed all of you, step by step, and you will realize again that God has given an all-sufficient answer to every question. Take all the religions of the world, sum up their separate beauty, place them alongside the words of Jesus Christ, and you will realize by that comparison the sublimity of His power. The soul that has felt the sweetness of His life will realize the difference at once."

STYLES PAUL'S CREED IDEAL OF CHRISTIANS

Rev. Mr. Warren Says the Great Apostle Knew That Death Was a Gain.

The philosophy of Paul was held up as the ideal Christian philosophy of living by the Rev. Paul Warren, Associate Pastor of the West End Presbyterian Church, who spoke yesterday morning at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, 131 West 104th Street.

"Paul had the right conception of living," he said. "Sinclair Lewis in his novel 'Arrowsmith' makes a statement to the effect that it is the difference in human philosophies that makes life interesting. There is back of every life some kind of philosophy that directs that life. For all too many life is a vague, dull, shadowy, unreal and unholy thing. Others, like the poet, have found it a thing of beauty and joy.

"And then there was Paul's conception of life. For him it meant serving Christ. 'Life to me,' he said, 'is Christ and to die is gain.' Mark the tremendous assurance of the man! 'And to die is gain.' Yet he was not one who found life bitter. He had no reason for wishing to die. And yet he faced death with perfect assurance. He knew that Christ would be waiting.

"This spirit of Paul's has not ceased to exist, you still find it wherever you find Christians. We Christians can face death with the same assurance. Nor do we fear the future for anything that it may hold in the way of punishment. Our sins are behind us and God has blotted them out. We don't know much about this future, but like Paul, we know that Christ is here, and that is enough."

SAYS CHURCH HAS DUTY.

Bishop Declares It Is to Teach, Not to Be Taught.

"Religion is essentially a biological process and back of everything we do is a biological foundation," said the Right Rev. Irving Peake Johnson, Bishop of Colorado, in his sermon yesterday at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

"The Church has its own job as much as a university," he said, "and the mission of the Church isn't to give you what you want but what the Lord has to offer. Because a university has an engineering department, you do not make it responsible for the sewerage system of New York, nor for the politics of New York because it has a department of political economy. Everybody is telling the Church what it ought to do and it really isn't everybody's business.

"The Church was founded by Christ to do that for which he intended it—to make men righteous that they might inherit eternal life and that they might have life and have it more abundantly."

ON CHRISTIANITY'S AIMS.

Dr. H. H. Tweedy Knows No Christian Nation in the World.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., July 18.—"There is not a Christian nation on the face of the world," declared the Rev. Dr. Henry Hallan Tweedy, Professor of Practical Theology in Yale Divinity School, in the Moody Auditorium here this morning. More than three thousand persons attending the annual Women's Foreign Missionary Conference were present.

"Never in the world," Dr. Tweedy continued, "has industry tried to be Christian. There is not a city in the world where the majority of the people ever tried to make it clean. Never before in history has the world tried to stop war.

"What are you and I doing to try and stop the next war? Nothing is illegal when war breaks out."

Preaches in Her Son's Pulpit.

Mrs. Charles Clifford Peale occupied the pulpit of her son, the Rev. Norman V. Peale, last night in the Kings Highway Methodist Episcopal Church, Kings Highway and Thirty-seventh Street, Brooklyn. Taking her subject, "The Raised Horizon," Mrs. Peale urged women of the congregation to broaden their outlook while still performing their household duties. She said the word "heathen" was misleading and unjust, and that a world viewpoint was a necessity for women of the present day.

During hot weather the size of the weekly ironing grows—the hotter the weather, the more clothes worn, and the larger the ironing

Then it is that a cool handled Electric Iron which can be used in any comfortable room—away from the kitchen stove—is most appreciated

The ironing goes quickly—smoothly; almost without effort. The heat is concentrated in the ironing surface, and is even — there are no delays while irons are being changed or reheated

Electric Irons are on display in all of our Showrooms and may be purchased in the many Electrical Stores of the city which are listed in The Edison Directory

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Business Generally Optimistic in View of Higher Security and Commodity Prices.

At what may be described as the "vacation season" of the year, when business as a whole is usually at a low ebb and initiative for new undertakings absent, a survey of the financial and business situation gives the unmistakable impression that conditions as a whole are fundamentally sound, that the turnover of goods for the season of the year is unusually heavy, and that a general attitude of cheerfulness prevails toward conditions in the Autumn. Possibly the buoyant tone of the markets is in a measure responsible for the present optimism. At any rate, the usually dependable barometers of trade give no hint of other than "clear sailing ahead."

It is small wonder that the markets, viewing a continuation of carloadings well above the 1,000,000-car mark each week, steel orders increasing, department and chain store sales forging ahead and money continuing easy, should go about the business of forecasting and discounting excellent conditions in the Fall. That, possibly, is what they are doing at the moment, and the result has been a long succession of advances on the Stock Exchange, continuing almost uninterruptedly since mid-June. This swing, it is true, has been accomplished without the aid of much public buying. Brokers' loans, in fact, show but about a 20 per cent. increase from the low point of the year. Nevertheless, the character of buying and the fact that the highest grade stocks have reflected the keenest demand may be construed as something more than mere "pool operations for the advance." It is at once a natural consequence of the cheerfulness existing in our industrial and business centres, coupled with an ease in money which has injected an element of competition into large-scale buying of first-grade securities.

Just how far the markets must advance to discount fully such active and rapid trade as is now generally forecast for the Fall is problematical. This will depend to a large extent on the degree of public participation attracted to the market. It will also depend on the continued ease of money and, of course, on the satisfactory outturn of crops this season. It is most obvious at the moment that the buying power of the nation is extremely large, probably larger than ever before in history. This may be judged from the full employment reported from practically all parts of the country, from the keen demand for merchandise outside of the necessity class, and finally, from the increases shown in personal income taxes paid to the Government.

As our own prosperity is so apparent, the unsettled financial conditions existing in some sections of Europe, notably France, are likely to be overemphasized in contrast. The fall of the Briand-Caillaux Cabinet on Saturday, although not entirely unexpected, nevertheless draws particular attention to the difficulties, political as well as economical, in the paths of those who are attempting to rehabilitate the tottering French financial system. The fact that a serious crisis has developed in France and that the future of the franc is in the balance must be faced and the eyes of every capital will be turned to Paris closely watching the developments of the next few days. The franc is at approximately the lowest price in its history, due mainly to the fact that the patent evil of currency inflation is slowly but surely engulfing the present system. So greatly has this inflation progressed in the last few weeks that there remains but the bare amount of 56,000,000 francs between present advances to the State by the Bank of France and the minimum legal limit. Such a situation cannot long continue. It must lead to sharp recovery through the adoption of drastic measures or to the eventual oblivion of the franc, an almost unthinkable development.

It is considered probable that the decline of the franc in both France and Belgium may have had a considerable influence on our foreign trade statement for the last fiscal year, although there were also other considerations which brought about a drastic shift in our foreign trade. The sharp decline in exports for the year and increase in imports, with a consequent reduction in our "favorable merchandise" balance, may be considered "ledger evidence" that there is an increasing independence of our goods in Europe at the same time that there is a growing dependence in this country upon foreign-made merchandise. Europe is evidently cutting down her purchases to the very bone and, simultaneously, making every effort to place European goods in the American market.

The advance of wheat and cotton last week represented a satisfactory turn of events from a business and political standpoint. It was due mainly to a sharp revision of the Canadian Government's wheat estimate and to the possibility of a lighter cotton crop than anticipated because of insect damage and heavy rains in the South. The promise of good business generally this Fall is more or less entwined with the condition and open market price of crops; therefore, the advances which took place were construed as a step in the direction of improvement. At least they probably helped to alleviate some of the agricultural dissatisfaction which has lately appeared in the Middle West.

LONDON, July 18.—The week's receipts of gold by the Bank of England aggregated £979,000, of which £229,000 were bars, and the balance in sovereigns, all coming from South Africa. Withdrawals were £60,000, of which £33,000 were for Spain, £22,000 for India, and £5,000 for the Straits Settlements. During the coming week £500,000 in bars, and £250,000 in sovereigns are expected from South Africa.

The latest inflow of gold raises the total influx for the current year to £6,756,000, and reduces the efflux since the introduction of the gold standard in April last year to £4,859,000.

FLIGHT FROM FRANC INTO FRENCH STOCKS

FUTURE HINGES ON DEBTS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 18.—A new form of flight from the franc is reflected in the rapid rise of French securities of all sorts, due in the main to the fall of the franc. The explanation lies in the prospect of a reduction of excessive taxes on coupons, but there is also another reason. The French public is beginning to realize that exchange depreciation must entail a rise in all prices, including the price of securities, the income from which, they think, must rise in proportion. Foreign securities here are following a more natural course, and the greatest buoyancy which has cropped out has been in strictly French industrial shares.

Buyers particularly favor shares of undertakings the gold value of which is calculated at a set exchange rate, and particularly in cases where the exchange rate is higher than the Bourse quotation of such shares. People are buying any kind of share rather than keep money liquid, which is a form of flight from the franc. As for the franc's fall in the last few days, it was due entirely to the fear that the old Government could not manage to have its financial plans accepted and would be unable to get the allied debt settlement ratified. The Deputies who voted against the Briand-Caillaux Cabinet and who brought about its fall have indicated no opposition plan to that of the experts. There cannot be any other rational procedure, and the fall of the Cabinet on Saturday is regarded as a veritable catastrophe for the franc. Not one man in the recent minority had produced anything but purely negative programs. The public is so disgusted with the attitude of the Chamber that many people believe the fall of the Cabinet and the fall of the franc have been fully discounted.

The London agreement has produced a good impression, because England took into account the difficult position of France and gave her satisfaction on several points. A comparison of the London and Washington agreements is not favorable to the latter. In the eyes of the public England's concessions show up American hardness still more. It is widely predicted, however, that both agreements will be ratified directly a new Cabinet is formed. There is no other alternative.

FRENCH BANK REPORT IS SOMEWHAT BETTER

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 18.—The Bank of France return shows an increase of 356,000,000 francs in bills discounted and a decrease of 61,000,000 francs in loans against securities. Private deposits fell by 117,000,000 francs. Advances to the State rose 100,000,000 francs, leaving a margin of 700,000,000 under the maximum authorized, which, it must be remembered, was reduced by 1,000,000,000 francs on Dec. 31, 1925.

Total taxes collected in June, excluding the postoffice levies, were 2,404,000,000 francs, compared with 1,896,000,000 for June, 1925. Higher prices and heavier taxation account for the increase. On the other hand, the direct tax revenue is less this June, because the 1925 taxes were almost entirely paid up in the first quarter to escape fines and the direct demands of 1926 have not yet been issued. Direct taxes for June, 1926, amounted to 185,000,000 francs, compared with 75,000,000 for the same time last year.

Indirect taxes for June were 2,217,000,000 francs, compared with 1,614,000,000 for the corresponding month in 1925.

For the first six months of this year direct taxes were 15,549,000,000 francs, compared with 13,000,000,000 for the first six months of 1925. The six months' indirect taxes amounted to 12,950,000,000 francs, compared with 10,365,000,000 in the same period of 1925.

HELP FOR JOBLESS GERMANS

Government Subsidy Will Provide Funds for Public Service Improvements.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 18.—The official index shows a slight increase in the cost of living, which is now 140.5 over the pre-war 100, as against 139.9 last month. This, coupled with the growing unrest and the tendency to violence among the 1,700,000 unemployed, has led the German Government to evolve a comprehensive program for the constructive employment of the jobless hosts. Advances totaling at least 200,000,000 marks will be made to the German railways and postal and telegraphic systems out of the National Treasury.

With this sum and funds already available for the improvement of transportation and communication services, besides the large amount voted by State Governments for deepening and extending canals all over the country, it is estimated that several hundred thousand idle workers, perhaps as many as half a million, will be given jobs.

VIEWS ON THE FRANC IN FOREIGN CAPITALS

'Position Precarious,' but Belief Expressed That Debt Treaty Ratification Will Be Forced.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Nothing seems to stem the depreciation in the value of the franc. It is satisfactory that a debt scheme has now been agreed on, but a small majority in the French Parliament makes the position still very insecure and the further inflation as shown in the Bank of France return has emphasized the depreciation. Speculation has helped so that fluctuations have been wide and a new record of 209 francs to the pound has been touched. It is now 200 to the pound. The Belgian franc has not been helped by the proposed steps of stabilization and a new record of 235 Belgian francs to the pound has been reached. The rate is now 202 to the pound.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, July 18.—The position of the franc seems, from the Amsterdam standpoint, to be very precarious, as the French physchology is against ratification of the Mellon treaty, which is regarded as unfair so far as it regards payments to America above payments by Germany to France. Nevertheless, ratification now probably will be forced by Finance Minister Caillaux, as this seems the only way out.

The foreign debts of France are now 41,000,000,000 gold francs, which will be reduced to 23,000,000,000 by the foreign debt settlement. The home debt at the present rate of exchange is about 40,000,000,000 gold francs, bringing the total obligation to 63,000,000,000 francs, which is about 20 per cent. of the total French capital. This does not seem excessive.

The French Government proposes to issue German railway company debentures to support the franc. However, England and America refuse this issue for their market before ratification of the foreign debt settlements. Quite naturally, France is bound in every way to this ratification.

Pessimism Over Franc in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 18.—On the foreign exchange market attention was concentrated during the last week on the downward progress of the franc. The Anglo-French debt settlement was regarded by German opinion as a victory for Caillaux, which it was hoped would at least retard the depreciation process. Berlin now sees no hope for the franc unless America intervenes in its support. Pessimism also prevails about the Belgian currency and to a lessed extent the lira.

On the other hand there is no fear about sterling here. Orders continue to be taken in pounds, and bankers assure their depositors that a slight falling off in the British currency need occasion no alarm. Germans feel that whatever happens, the Franco-American capitals are too closely allied with the British to ever let sterling depreciate to any great extent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 18.—The Neue Freie Presse is now hopeful for the franc. It says: "The favorable agreement secured by Finance Minister Caillaux in London means the revision of the Berenger agreement with the United States which has been so far sharply opposed. As England accepted the clauses of transfer and security of German payments to France, we may now hope that the United States will also accept the tendency prevailing in America to grant the French at least no worse conditions than were granted by England."

ENGLISH TRADE SHOWS A SHARP CONTRACTION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—Trade figures are chiefly notable for imports of coal, the figure £966,209 appearing under this head, as compared with only trifling imports previously. The obvious reason for this importation of foreign coal is to replace our own coal. Exports of coal, naturally, have been reduced to a minimum. Compared with June of last year, imports were £13,481,000 lower, due to the fact that the comparison is with a month when large dumpings of goods occurred to escape duties which came into force in July. In this connection imports of silk manufactures show a drop of £4,276,000, while other textiles declined £2,900,000. The aggregate drop in these articles accounts for the greater proportion of decline.

Certain foodstuffs also showed a decrease and there was a decline in imports of frozen meat from New Zealand. Rubber imports increased £610,000, making an increase for the year to date of £12,310,000. The decrease in exports was mainly accounted for by loss of coal production.

The half-year shows a total supply of imports of £75,000,000 and exports of £65,000,000, making an aggregate decline in trade of £140,000,000. The adverse balance for the month was £36,500,000, and for the half-year £198,000,000. The latter figure, however, is smaller than the corresponding figure of last year by £9,500,000.

BRITISH BUSINESS ALARMED BY STRIKE

STERLING HOLDS ITS GAINS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—The chief feature of the stock market has been steady selling of speculative securities, especially Courtalds and tobacco shares. This was induced by a surprising cut in Courtalds' dividend, which led to fears that it might be a forerunner of other reductions in industrial companies as a result of the generally discouraged state of trade.

Considerable nervousness is apparent that the continued prolongation of the coal stoppage must seriously affect all industrial companies and reports due in the next six months will be awaited to see the effects of present conditions. The recent selling reduced speculative commitments considerably, so that fears of trouble at the coming settlement are not now so great.

Markets Become Quiet.

Most markets are showing signs of quieting down owing to the holiday period and to new issues of capital. The recent new trust issues have not been well taken. The South African loan was left with the underwriters to the extent of 74 per cent. and the Coventry loan to the extent of 78 per cent. Some other loans also have been fully subscribed by the public and it is expected there will be a cessation of fresh issues until after the holidays. The Canadian Pulp & Paper issue, however, was well taken and is now at a premium of 3 per cent.

Sterling remained fairly steady and from the point of view of prospects of an adverse trade balance is so much better than last year that its position should be more stable. It is generally expected that sterling may maintain a steady appearance, although the longer the coal trouble lasts the more difficult it will be to maintain a steady level.

Money in Better Demand.

The money position is not too comfortable as the margin of funds is comparatively small and prospects of a reduction in the bank rate appear to be receding. About £850,000 in gold came to the market, and of this India and the trade took £600,000. The Bank of England secured £229,000 of it and also £750,000 in sovereigns sent from the Cape. A further large amount is expected next week.

Currency notes outstanding at the end of the week aggregated £291,659,772 as compared with £294,718,011 in the previous week and £294,036,216 two weeks ago. The highest of the year to date is £303,566,376, in the week ended May 16; the lowest £284,178,770, in the week ended Feb. 19.

FRENCH IMPORTS RISE ON FUTURE OF FRANC

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 18.—The larger imports in June are ascribable to increased pessimism concerning the future of the franc, especially on the part of traders, who last year postponed purchasing abroad, but who now hasten to obtain supplies.

In weight the June imports were 3,893,000 tons, compared with 3,730,000 tons in June, 1925. Exports were 2,744,000 tons, compared with 2,577,000 in June, 1925. Imports for the first six months of the year were 29,414,000 francs, compared with 19,010,000 for 1925. Exports were 26,722,000 francs, compared with 21,580,000 for 1925.

Imports for the first six months of the year in weight were 23,404,000 tons, compared with 22,839,000 for 1925. Exports were 15,904,000 tons, compared with 15,084,000 in 1925. The less favorable trade balance was chiefly due to purchases abroad, showing immediately the effects of falling exchange, whereas prices for goods exported rise more slowly.

GERMAN BONDS DRIFT BACK.

AMSTERDAM, July 18.—Germany is freely buying back its high-grade securities placed in America, owing to the ease in the German money market. Further purchases are anticipated as another reduction in the discount rate of Germany is likely, owing to the small capital outlays of German industry as a result of more economical working methods. This German demand will take away the dangers from the American banking world, which only a short time ago owned a large amount of undigested securities which now are gradually being placed.

It is the Dutch opinion that sterling's position is not much changed. Gold at the Bank of England increased from £150,085,000 on June 24 to £150,521,000 on July 8. The general situation is ripe for a reduction of the discount rate, which is unlikely, however, before the end of the coal strike.

The American position here is still considered hopeful. The satisfactory impression of the Dutch bankers is largely due to the favorable position of the American Treasury, which lately reimbursed $300,000,000 of Treasury notes falling due.

First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds, Series "C"

Due August 1, 1956

Series "C" 5% Bonds redeemable in whole or in part on any interest date at 105% and accrued interest.

The issuance and sale of these Bonds are subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

William H. Williams, Esq., Chairman of the Board of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, in a letter dated July 16, 1926, copies of which may be obtained from the undersigned, writes in part as follows:

"These bonds are to be issued under the First Mortgage of the Company, dated April 1, 1924, which is a first lien, either directly or through pledge of all outstanding securities of subsidiary companies, on approximately 1,485 miles of railroad, with its appurtenances, including two ferry boats and the facilities used in the operation of the ferry over the Mississippi River at Anchorage, Louisiana, on real estate of an estimated value exceeding $3,000,000 and (subject to $2,374,000 of equipment trust obligations) on equipment having a book value, after depreciation, as of May 31, 1926 of approximately $8,823,374.

New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company is controlled, through the ownership of more than 87% of its stock, by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company. Missouri Pacific Railroad Company also owns a majority of the stock of The Texas and Pacific Railway Company, and the lines of these companies form, with the lines of the International-Great Northern Railroad Company, a through route from St. Louis to Houston, Galveston and the important Mexican gateways of Brownsville and Laredo.

These bonds are being sold to reimburse the treasury of the Company for capital expenditures made out of income, and to provide funds necessary for the acquisition of additional properties (including a one-third interest in Texas City Terminal Railway Company) and for betterments and improvements.

Upon the completion of the present financing, there will be outstanding $15,770,000 principal amount, First Mortgage 5½% Gold Bonds, Series "A", $12,326,400 principal amount, First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds, Series "B", $4,600,000 principal amount, First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds, Series "C", and $4,373,600 principal amount 5% Bonds, due in 1935, secured under the First Mortgage ratably with the First Mortgage Bonds issued thereunder.

The amount of Bonds secured by the First Mortgage to be presently outstanding will accordingly be $37,070,000 or at the rate of only about $25,000 per mile of railroad covered by the mortgage as a first lien either directly or through the pledge of all outstanding securities of subsidiary companies.

The Company has no other funded debt, except $2,374,000 principal amount of Equipment Trust Certificates maturing serially up to 1940, secured on equipment costing approximately $3,320,000. There is outstanding $15,000,000 par value of capital stock on which dividends are now being paid at the rate of 7% per annum.

The amount of bonds which may be issued under the First Mortgage is limited to $50,000,000 and, in addition, the amount of bonds at any time outstanding, together with bonds reserved for refunding, may not exceed three times the par amount of capital stock at the time outstanding. Of the bonds remaining unissued, $4,373,600 are reserved to refund or retire the outstanding 5% Bonds, due in 1935, and the remainder may be issued only in respect of the acquisition of new properties or securities representative thereof, or for extensions, betterments and improvements chargeable to capital account, or (to the extent of 80% of the cost thereof) for the acquisition of equipment, or for the refunding of obligations secured by a lien prior to the lien of the First Mortgage on after acquired property. A sinking fund of 5% per annum for twenty years is provided in respect of bonds issued for equipment expenditures.

The income of the Company and its principal subsidiary companies (other than International-Great Northern Railroad Company) for the year ended December 31, 1925, applicable to the payment of interest on First Mortgage Bonds amounted to $4,383,850.70, while the total interest on funded and other debt amounted to only $1,490,831.

The outstanding First Mortgage Bonds of Series "A" and Series "B" are listed on the New York Stock Exchange and application will be made to list these additional bonds."

The above bonds are offered if, when and as issued and received by the undersigned and subject to the approval by any public authorities that may be necessary of the issuance of the bonds and their sale to the undersigned and to the approval by their counsel of all legal proceedings in connection therewith. Temporary bonds will be delivered against payment in New York funds for bonds allotted, which temporary bonds will be exchangeable for definitive bonds when prepared.

COMPANY: The Southern Cities Utilities Company, incorporated in 1917, supplies electric light and power, gas, water, ice and transportation service, through subsidiaries or leased properties, to 54 communities in West Virginia, Tennessee, Pennsylvania and Alabama. In addition, the Company has contracted to furnish electric light and power to 29 additional towns in Tennessee to be presently inter-connected. Customers total over 33,000, while the population of the communities and adjacent territory is approximately 450,000.

Among the important communities in the system are Morgantown and Wheeling, W. Va.; Columbia, Fayetteville and Shelbyville, Tenn. More than 81% of the gross revenues and 91% of the net earnings are derived from sources other than transportation.

EARNINGS: Consolidated earnings of the Southern Cities Utilities Company and owned subsidiaries for the twelve months ended March 31, 1926, as certified to by independent auditors, have been as follows:

12 Months Ended March 31:	1926
Gross Earnings	$2,321,555.81
Operating expenses, including maintenance and taxes, except Federal Taxes	1,572,973.30

GERMANY FEARS LOSS OF FRENCH MARKETS

DUMPING OF GOODS FEARED

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 18.—The heat wave and the fall of the franc served to enfeeble the Berlin Boerse all last week. Values rose slightly on Wednesday and there was considerable trading in industrial shares, which, however, slumped off again when the franc resumed its downward plunge on Friday. It had been hoped in financial circles here that the Caillaux-Churchill agreement and the impending trip of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon might prevent further immediate depreciation of the French currency. Now German manufacturers fear not only the loss of the French market for an indefinite period, but an invasion of French material and manufactures besides.

Loans Freely Called.

A lesser reason for depression on the Boerse was the action of the Federal Credit Company in calling its loans, a move necessitated by the Governmental need of cash and the vacational absence of many big traders. The midmonth settlement day also tended to weaken the market. Bank stocks fared better than most, particularly those of the Deutsche and Disconto banks. Industrial shares moved upward a few points, the activity being spread over rather a wide list, but later in the week most of this gain was lost.

Shipping Merger Reported.

Despite apparently well-founded reports that two great German shipping concerns have concluded a price-fixing agreement, if not an actual merger, both the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd stocks dropped sharply. This is said to be due to dissatisfaction of the shareholders to the extent of preference accorded them in connection with the increase in its capital by 21,000,000 marks by the Hamburg-American Line. The new stock, it is understood, will be devoted largely to the purchase of three ships, the Reliance, Resolute and Cleveland, from the Harriman Line. The North German Lloyd is said to be contemplating a similar increase in its capital.

Money continues very easy in Berlin. Day loans are readily obtainable at between 3 and 5 per cent. and monthly loans at 5¼ to 6½ per cent. Few of the latter are made, however, money offered on the daily basis being adequate to cover all business needs.

LOW POINT OF YEAR FOR FISHER'S INDEX

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, July 18.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of American commodity prices for last week, based on 100 as the average of 1913, is 150.2, comparing with 150.8 the week before, 150.2 two weeks before, 152 three weeks before and 152.3 four weeks before. This week's average, which was also reached on July 3 and May 1, is the lowest for the year to date, and also lower than any reached in 1925; the highest thus far this year was 159.7 on Jan. 30.

The highest weekly average reached in 1925 was 164.4 on Jan. 31, which was also higher than any reached in 1924. The lowest was 154.1, on May 2. The highest percentage since the war was 247, in May, 1920; the lowest, 130, in January, 1922.

Crump's British index number, as cabled for the past week, is 140.5, which compares with 141 the week before, 140.6 two weeks before, 140.2 three weeks before and 138.1 four weeks before. The highest Crump average thus far in 1926 was 146.7 on Jan. 9; the lowest was 138.1 on June 19.

The index number of average Italian prices, compiled by the Chamber of Commerce at Milan, was 665.9 last week comparing with 660.5 the preceding week, 659.2 two weeks before, 654.7 three weeks before and 648.4 four weeks before. This week's average is the highest for the year to date, and is also the highest reached since Oct. 31, 1925; the average of 636.2 for the week ended May 1 was the lowest for 1926 to date.

STOCK PRICES UP SHARPLY.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, July 18.—The weekly index number of Stock Exchange prices, compiled by Professor Fisher and based on the week's fifty most active industrial shares, reckoning their average for January, 1925, as 100, is 150.4 for the past week. This compares with 148.5 for the week before, 148.3 two weeks before, 143.3 three weeks before and 143.8 four weeks before.

The highest point reached thus far in 1926 was 155 for the first week in February; the average of 121.1 on April 17 was the lowest. This week's average is the highest since Feb. 27, when it stood at 151.5.

Lard Closes at Week's Lowest.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Packers have sold lard and meats in liberal volume, with price recessions due to a reduced speculative buying. Prices are at a level where consumption hesitates and packers are feeling it in a spasmodic trade. Hogs have declined in the face of moderate supplies. Lard stocks in cold storage are 25,000,000 pounds less than last year and are 25,000,000 pounds below the five-year average. Lard closed at the lowest of the week, with losses of 17½ to 20 cents, short ribs were unchanged to 5 cents lower and bellies 17½ to 22½ cents lower for the week.

IRON AND STEEL TRADE DIMINISHES IN EUROPE

LONDON, July 18.—On the eve of the coal stoppage 147 blast furnaces were in operation. This had been reduced to twenty-three by the end of May and still further reduced to eleven by the end of June. Production of pig iron in June was 41,800 tons, compared with 888,000 tons in April and 810,000 tons in June of last year. Production of steel ingots and castings in June was 32,000 tons, against 45,700 in May and 585,400 in June of last year.

Decreased German Production.

BERLIN, July 18.—The association of German iron and steel manufacturers has given out figures showing a considerable decrease in the amount of raw iron produced by Germany. During last month production of all kinds of raw iron aggregated only 720,000 tons, as against 736,000 for the month of May, and 941,000 for the month of June a year ago. Out of 208 available blast furnaces, only 80 were in operation, and the productive capacity of the furnaces was only 47 per cent. of normal.

The demand for manufactured metals on the other hand rose considerably, prices exceeding those of June. The financial weekly index of wholesale trade fell off two-fifths of 1 per cent. during last week to 128.1.

VIENNA, July 18.—At a general meeting of the Alpine Montan, Austria's biggest steel works, the new gold capital was fixed at 102,000,000 schillings, compared with a capitalization of 90,000,000 gold crowns in 1912. The President of the corporation urgently pleaded for an increase in the import duties on iron shipped to Austria. These now amount to 2½ gold crowns per ton, as compared with 7 in Hungary, 5½ in Czechoslovakia, 12½ in Yugoslavia, 9½ in Italy and 7½ in Poland. He said that the Alpine Montan is now forced to export 55 per cent. of its production, whereas the home market consumed 90 per cent. before the war.

The revised iron duties will probably pass Parliament shortly, there being no chance for a diminution of the customs barriers in the succession States. Austria despairs of seeking protection through customs barriers, although it is ready to cooperate with other European States and welcomes a general limitation of customs, as proposed by the Austrian Chamber of Commerce at the International Chamber meeting in London.

STEEL PRICES HOLD FIRM.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 18.—The whole steel market is holding its own as to maintaining recent prices, there being no discernible change in stiffness of any line in the past fortnight. The matter is not so simple as it looks, however. An effort was made in the closing weeks of the first half of the year to advance bars, shapes and plates $2 a ton, to 2.00 on large lots and 2.10 on lots under 100 tons. The effort has been only partially successful on the basis of prices now available to buyers, but even a partial success would mean much.

A very substantial tonnage was driven to cover in this connection and there is correspondingly less inquiry at the present time on large lots, so that part of the test is deferred, while furthermore there is not much single carload business being done now at the 2.10 price aimed at.

In sheets there has been a steady market for several weeks, after the long decline. Buying has increased somewhat, but not enough to produce any real stiffening in prices. This is predicted, but depends upon tonnage. Sheet mills are showing the courage of their convictions to the extent that they will not accept contracts to the end of the quarter at prices readily quoted on prompt deliveries.

Heavy melting steel scrap in the Pittsburgh district has stiffened still further, being now quotable at $16.75 to $17. There has been little mill buying, but dealers are sanguine as to a further rise and are bidding prices higher than the average of their present deliveries to mills. Originators of scrap, both industrial producers and small dealers, are fully aware of this change in attitude and are insisting on better prices. Should the market rise a little more and then show weakness, scrap would promptly come out in larger volume.

Connellsville furnace coke has declined about ten cents, being now $2.75 to $2.85. The decline represents loss of nearly all the rise produced by preholiday buying.

The valley pig iron market remains dull, while buying in other districts is tapering off after quite a heavy movement in the past few weeks.

VIENNA EXPERIENCES SHARP MARKET RISE

RAIN DAMAGES GRAIN CROPS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 18.—During the past fortnight the Boerse has maintained a satisfactory aspect, although the general rise in shares has now slackened. The remarkable demand for pre-war securities continues owing to the reiterated rumor of a prospective valorization. Some of the railway preference shares have advanced 600 per cent. since January. Banking and mining shares are advancing more slowly and are chiefly bought by foreign purchasers, especially investors in Germany and France. The private discount rate has fallen to 6½ per cent., the lowest rate prevailing since the war. Budapest and Prague report satisfactory business, but only on a small scale. The figures for the Austrian export trade for April, which have just been published, show a decrease both in imports and exports of about 10 per cent. compared with March.

Rain Damages Crops.

The middle-European crops of some countries have been badly damaged by incessant rain. Czechoslovakian wheat fodder in several districts has been entirely destroyed. Hungarian estimates of the wheat crop place it at 1,750,000 tons, compared with 2,000,000 in 1925. The only Rumanian estimate of the surplus there is 150,000 cars of wheat, 100,000 of barley and 250,000 cars of corn. The Rumanian Government is seeking everywhere for cars and locomotives as well as ships to handle such goods.

Government Aids Central Bank.

The difficulties of the Vienna Central Bank, being the main reservoir of deposits for savings banks and cooperatives, forced the Government to avert a general run by guaranteeing deposits of the bank and advancing about 60,000,000 schillings. It is feared that the cash reserve of the Government has been badly reduced thereby, so that necessary investments will advance more slowly.

The Social Democrats now oppose the scheme for reduction of the unemployment dole, which is claimed unnecessary if advances to the Central Bank are repaid.

CROPS IN FAIR CONDITION.

Winter Wheat Harvest Is On—Corn Is Tasseling and Looks Well.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Interest in crops is centred largely in the outcome of the Western Canadian wheat. The Government report estimating 349,000,000 bushels for the entire east and west of Canada was a surprise, as it compared with 411,000,000 bushels harvested last year. There have been scattered rains since the report was made up and a spotted condition exists.

Private experts who have been over that country within the past week are finding considerable poor to fair wheat that was injured by early drought and later by heat. Black rust in early stages is found in Southern and Eastern Manitoba, Eastern Saskatchewan and Northern North Dakota. There is also black rust in Northern South Dakota and a little in Southern North Dakota. So far no injury has resulted.

Corn has grown rapidly and overcome part of the lateness in leading corn States but needs general rains and continued warm weather to bring the crop up to the average for this season. More than half the Iowa crop has been laid by and even in the dry northwest counties of that State corn has done exceptionally well considering the extremely adverse conditions.

The tallest corn is now as high as a man and the smallest about knee high. Tassels are becoming more frequent and silk is appearing in a few counties.

Oats are nearly a failure in Northwest counties of Iowa and the crop as a whole is under last year.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS FAVORABLE IN WEST

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Business is getting back to normal in a good many ways, but there are no indications of a return to pre-war conditions, and no necessity for it, as the war has changed ideas of business and financial leaders, and brought about reversals in practically all lines.

The conditions in the West have undergone a decided reversal is seen in the ability of Kansas and Southwestern bankers to finance the largest after-harvest movement of wheat known in the latter part of June and during the first half of July, without calling on the East for assistance, and at the same time, loan money in Chicago at concessions from the local rates as they are now doing. This is what has happened within the past few weeks, especially in the past week.

Developments in the business situation for the week were in the main favorable. New buying of steel has been rather surprising in volume, and compares well with June, with operating capacity continuing higher than usual for this season. Fabricated material and soft steel bars come in for greater attention, with automobiles, agricultural implements and other large consumers placing a good-sized tonnage. Tank makers have also been in the market.

On the other hand, railroad buying was limited aside from a material increase in track fastenings tonnoge which has exceeded early expectations of large systems, and they have sent in numerous reorders. Rail orders have fallen off and the mills have caught up with specifications. In some instances large railroad systems are showing a disposition to place orders for next year much earlier so that they can get better deliveries.

Buying of pig iron in the Chicago territory, aggregated between 400,000 and 500,000 tons on the recent movement, which is about over. One blast furnace has shut down and another started up, with a majority of the stacks in operation.

A survey of the dry goods and general commodity trade in the Middle West shows favorable conditions, with stocks light and a disposition to buy as required. Wholesalers of dry goods reported more customers in the market, with a larger distribution than last year, and retail sales were satisfactory, weather conditions being favorable. Labor conditions in Illinois make a better showing than in some of the other States, there being an increase in employment in June of 4.7 per cent., of which nearly 3 per cent. was in Chicago alone, and the average wage for the month was increased 10 cents over the previous month.

Money conditions in the Chicago territory are even, but loans in the Seventh Federal Reserve district decreased while gold and deposits increased last year. Ratio of reserve moved up to 73.9, compared with 74.6 per cent. the previous week, 77 per cent. last year and 84.2 per cent. two years ago.

STEEL PRODUCTION UP TO RATE OF JUNE

It May Even Exceed the 80.34 Per Cent. of Capacity Reached Last Month.

LULL POSSIBLE AFTER JULY

Precedents of Previous Years Point Both Ways—Some Tonnages Keep at High Levels.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 18.—The decrease in steel production last week emphasized by some trade reports is of no consequence, the significant point being the smallness of the loss and the quick recovery. Steel production in the past week has been approximately equal to the June rate, possibly heavier, and there are distinct chances that July as a whole will show a better operation than June, when steel production was 80.34 per cent. of assumed capacity. This was only 13½ per cent. under the peak rate of last March.

Business forecasters are evidently puzzled by the high degree of activity shown this Summer, when they expected a substantial "seasonal decrease." As to steel production, the precedents do not really warrant any precise expectations, for they vary widely. From the high point early in the year to July, steel ingot production decreased 11 per cent. in 1923, 55 per cent. in 1924 and 27 per cent. in 1925. An average computed from these figures would be purely arithmetical, having no real weight. If any conclusion, or even hypothesis, is to be drawn, it is that this year may run like 1923. If so, it will show decreases in steel production after this month, for 1923 showed monthly decreases through December, while 1924 and 1925 showed increases after July.

May Be Decrease in Consumption.

Three suggestive points are in line with such a view. Some economists studying the showing of certain consuming lines reach the conclusion that lately there has been more decrease in steel consumption than in steel production and hold that for a couple of months production has been above consumption.

A second point is that it is known much tonnage in bars, shapes and plates was driven to cover during five or six weeks prior to July by the effort of mills to advance prices of these lines. This tends to swell steel production at the present time, whereby equalization may come later.

A third point is that three steel consuming lines can be picked out definitely as promising lighter consumption later in the year than at the present time, these being the automobile industry, the freight-car-building industry and the oil and gas industry.

Heavier buying of steel by the automobile industry in the past few weeks is universally attributed to the getting of new models into production. This makes a temporary spurt, as automobile production generally runs light in the last four months of the year.

As to freight-car building, installations in May were reported by the railroads at 9,715 cars, with 40,003 cars on order at the end of the month in outside shops and 8,566 cars in company shops. Only about 10,000 cars have been reported as bought in the past four months. Thus freight-car building is decreasing.

At High Gear in Some Lines.

Steel consumption in the oil and gas fields always and necessarily decreases toward the end of the year. At the present time it is at a record high rate. Lap weld departments of pipe mills are running substantially full, with delivery promises of new shipping orders running up to about two months on line pipe, most sizes of casing, well tubing and two-inch oil line. Merchant pipe demand also tapers off as Winter approaches, but is quite high now, giving butt weld departments of the pipe industry an operation close to 90 per cent. The tonnage output of tubular goods as a whole is at a record high rate at the present time, for capacity has lately increased and a full 100 per cent. operation two years or more ago would have produced less tonnage.

SHORTAGE OF CROPS HELPS COARSE GRAINS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Corn crop prospects are nearly 200,000,000 bushels below the average. The market has acted as though it had recently had its break, as prices have moved up from the low in the face of bearish opposition. This is nothing unusual, for corn, as it frequently advances after a long down turn despite bearish conditions. Those long on December and short on September have reduced their interests and the spread between July and the distant months has narrowed. Country holders are in some instances more disposed to sell corn on the advance, but farmers generally are too busy with their harvest to haul corn to market. Stocks have decreased materially of late, despite the limited demand and United States corn is close to an export basis as compared with prices in Argentina.

July corn reached 77½ for the week, an advance of 9⅝ cents from the previous week's low, with September up to 83¼ cents and December 85½ cents, the close was at ¼ to ½ cent from the high point on the near deliveries, with December off ½ cent, with net gains of 5⅞ to 6¼ cents for the week.

A shortage in the oats crop, coupled with the advance in other grains, has brought in more general buying and advanced prices. Farmers are more disposed to sell oats for forward shipment, but the crop is late and the movement will be slower than usual in starting. The close was 1½ cents higher compared with a week ago.

Rye has a good advance because of the crop shortage in the United States and abroad and has worked nearer to wheat. Buying of rye and sales of wheat to close spreads has been one of the features, and considerable seaboard buying has been on, which has helped to make a better and stronger market, but exports have disappointed the speculative trade. Net gains on rye for the week were 8¼ to 8⅝ cents with July $1.05⅞, September $1.05⅞ and December $1.13⅜.

WHEAT UP 13 CENTS IN TWO WEEKS' RISE

WIDE BUYING FOR MILLS

$5,000,000 Bushels of Kansas and Oklahoma Grain Reported Taken in a Month.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 18.—A feeling exists in the wheat trade that there is a foundation for a bull market and that prices are to move irregularly higher. It is based on reduced crop prospects in the American Northwest, where the loss is said to be more than 70,000,000 bushels of Spring wheat as compared with last year, with a practical failure in South Dakota and uncertainty as to the outcome of the Western Canadian crop.

The Canadian crop report was a surprise to the trade, catching operators in all markets short, and even those who favored the buying side were without sufficient confidence in their opinions to buy to any extent and hold their lines for more than a moderate advance. The future course of prices is dependent upon weather conditions in the American and Canadian Northwest and the attitude of foreigners and millers.

Speculative interest in all markets has materially broadened, with an advance of more than thirteen cents in wheat in two weeks. With few exceptions, however, the big professional interests are not known to be in the market on either side to any decided extent, although there has been a quiet absorption of September and December wheat on breaks, while on bulges the market was fed in a systematic way to prevent it from becoming congested on the bull side.

Foreigners Miss the Breaks.

Foreigners were reluctant to accept the unfavorable crop report from the American and Canadian Northwest until late in the week, and there were days when foreign holdings were unloaded on bulges and possibly taken back on price recessions. One of the disappointments is the slowness in the foreign demand which for the present has been offset by the unusual heavy purchases in the Southwest by millers from all parts of the country.

At no time has there been as heavy takings by millers in the Northwest, the Middle West and the East as during the past thirty days, with a movement from the farms practically unprecedented.

It is estimated that around 55,000,000 bushels of Kansas and Oklahoma wheats have been bought by mills since the harvest movement began about a month ago. In some instances millers have covered their requirements, while in others large flour sales have proved a hedge against wheat purchases, but the market for futures has not had to withstand heavy hedging sales of wheat.

In the Central West the Winter wheat harvest was late and the movement is only starting from farms, but within a week it is expected to be of large proportions, as the advance in prices is attractive to farmers.

Shortage of Bread Grain.

A shortage of bread Spring wheat in the American Northwest is indicated by the Government report, with a total of 44,132,000 bushels for the Dakotas and 46,526,000 bushels for durum and a total durum crop for the four Northwestern States of 50,000,000 bushels, and of bread wheat of 100,000,000 bushels. This is materially less than last year.

Should the Canadian crop estimate of 349,000,000 bushels prove correct in the final returns, North America will have materially less wheat for export. The United States alone may have 125,000,000 bushels. With a bullish crop situation abroad and a light carry-over in the world's importing and exporting countries there is a bullish situation that invites speculative buying on breaks, with possibly higher prices largely depending on the volume of speculative business coming into the market.

SEABOARD PLANS SALE OF $8,000,000 BONDS

Warfield Announces Deal With Dillon, Read & Co., Due to Be Completed Today.

Additional financing by the Seaboard Air Line Railway was announced yesterday by S. Davies Warfield, President of the road, who said that he was negotiating to sell $8,000,000 of the company's first and consolidated mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, Series A, to Dillon, Read & Co., and that he expected to close the transaction today. Mr. Warfield said:

"To meet the heavy increase in traffic the proceeds of these bonds will be used to increase the facilities of the Seaboard, for extensions to the company's properties and those of subsidiaries, for improvements, additions, acquisitions and the like. We are installing 175 miles of automatic signals, in addition to the 354 miles installed last year. Among the facilities mentioned which are to be increased are double tracking and lengthening and providing additional passing tracks and transfer facilities at important transfer points.

"The passenger traffic of the Seaboard has grown to heavy proportions and the road has added extensively to its equipment, both in engines and cars. The several departments of the company in development work are extending the textile and other industries in the South, as well as the intensive development of Southern lands in agricultural pursuits."

READY FOR CLEARING IN GRAIN FUTURES

JULIUS BARNES ON BOARD

Strongest Features of Other Clearing Systems Adopted, Executive Says.

Organization of the New York Grain Clearing Corporation, through which the members of the New York Produce Exchange will clear their grain futures transactions when trading begins early next month, has been completed. The corporation has been chartered under the laws of Delaware.

The directors are Julius Barnes, former United States Food Administrator; A. C. Field of A. C. Field & Co.; Axel Hansen of the Hansen Produce Company; H. B. Watson of M. B. Jones & Co.; B. F. Schwartz of B. F. Schwartz & Co.; W. F. Rosar of Melady Grain Company; C. W. Andrus of C. W. Andrus & Co.; Robert F. Straub of Montgomery, Straub & Co. and Frederick H. Teller of Knight & Co.

At the organization meeting of the board of directors Axel Hansen, Chairman of the Grain Futures Committee of the New York Produce Exchange, was elected President, Robert F. Straub Vice President and W. C. Rossman Secretary Treasurer.

"The clearing corporation," said President Hansen, "is basically the same as those in operation in all of the other principal grain centres. We have adopted, many of the strongest features of the other clearing systems, such as the new clearing house in Chicago, and have also drawn from those in Minneapolis and Winnipeg.

"For instance, we have followed the system of the New York Cotton Exchange in one respect, that is in having a guarantee fund, which greatly strengthens the financial structure of our clearing corporation. In other respects we have utilized the clearing house system for cotton seed oil, which has been under the supervision of the New York Produce Exchange for years. We feel satisfied that the New York Grain Clearing Corporation will be modern, effective and strong."

COTTON CROP BACKWARD.

Widespread Presence of Insects Causes Delay in Fruiting.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, July 18.—The widespread presence of insect pests has greatly shaken confidence in the prospects of the new cotton crop, mainly because the delay in fruiting will render the plants more than ever liable to the ravages of the boll weevil during August unless there be a spell of dry and hot weather to hold that voracious insect in check.

Whether an advance of approximately eight dollars a bale since the publication of the Government report on July 2 has discounted a sizable decrease in condition since June 25 remains to be seen. Another week will elapse before the next Government report will be issued. Should the weather turn dry and hot in the meantime prices will in all probability recede on the theory that such weather will reduce the prospect of ultimate insect damage but should the showers continue prices are apt to advance again on the fear that the weevils will take their old time toll of the crop.

RAINS CAUSE WORRY IN THE COTTON BELT

PRICES MOVE UPWARD

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 18.—Another week of fairly active trading featured the cotton market and prices gained approximately 15 points, which carried them to new high levels for the present movement. Although the net gain was not large, fluctuations were fairly broad.

The lowest levels were reached Monday, when active new crop months traded a little more than 40 points below the closing levels of the preceding Friday and the highest points reached were attained Friday of the week under review when prices reached the best figures since the Government report of July 2, or 73 to 79 points above Monday's lows and 162 points above the lowest reached immediately after the Government report was issued.

Weather Dominant Influence.

The weather conditions and the reported progress of the new crop were the dominating influences. When the weather showed signs of improving prices eased off and when showery weather returned they advanced with the result that fluctuations were fairly frequent and reasonably broad. The concensus of opinion has been that the showers have been entirely too frequent as well as general over the belt, creating conditions favorable to the increase of insect pests and encouraging the growth of weeds, instead of fruit in the cotton plants.

While there are still some traders who contend that the absence of the fruit usual at this period of the season is due to the lateness of the crop and not to the cotton hopper or flea, most traders are convinced that the insects are mainly responsible for the failure of the plants to take on fruit, although apparently growing vigorously. But whether due to lateness of the crop or to the insects, the fact remains that there is general complaint of the absence of fruit on the cotton stalks, which has created the fear that the next Government report, due July 23 and based on conditions existing July 16, will show a material falling off in condition.

The only private mid-month reports so far issued made the condition, as of July 8, 74.2 per cent. of normal as compared with 77.4 by the same author made two weeks previously, a falling off in condition of 3.2 points. As the Government report will take in conditions up to and including July 16, it is assumed that it will show a still greater falling off in the condition average, as the crop has continued to deteriorate since July 8.

Crop to Be Exposed.

There are many who contend that the cotton hopper will gradually disappear and that the stalks will take on fruit later, but the fact remains that belated fruiting will render the crop more than commonly exposed to an early frost and to the ravages of the boll weevil, which is reported to be increasing rapidly in numbers as a result of the showery and compatatively cool weather. The possible damage by the weevils is a much more serious menace than the damage already done by the hopper.

Reports from the interior indicate that the hopper has destroyed the lower fruit, which usually furnishes the earlier and greater portion of the crop. This is the most serious phase of the situation. Nevertheless, it is believed that a week or two of dry, hot weather would bring about a great betterment in the situation of the crop. Present indications point to fair weather for the next few days, but there are not lacking indications that the showers may be resumed this week.

NEW LAW TO CURB FAKE BANKRUPTCIES

MOST FAILURES VOLUNTARY

One-tenth of All Cases in Country Are In New York—More Than 2,000 Here In 1923.

The amendments to the Bankruptcy law, providing increased punishment for persons manipulating the law for their own profit, become effective on Aug. 27. They are the result of long study by civic associations, Federal officials, lawyers and the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives.

The section dealing with offenses which are of especial interest to the criminal bureaus of United States Attorneys, provides that any representative of the Government found guilty of the wrongful use of the property of a bankrupt estate, or who uses it solely for his own advantage, shall be sentenced to prison for not mare than five years. The same punishment is provided for any person found guilty of concealing assets, or for many other illegal acts.

Attorney General to Decide.

When any Federal Attorney decides that the facts in a case do not warrant prosecution the matter must be presented to the Attorney General, who shall decide what course shall be pursued.

David P. Siegel, head of the criminal bureau of United States Attorney Buckner's office, said that considerably more than one-tenth of the bankruptcy proceedings in this country were in this jurisdiction, and that three-fourths of the entire number were voluntary proceedings. Voluntary proceedings in all States in 1923 totaled 18,728 and involuntary proceedings 3,789. In this district the voluntary proceedings closed in 1923 numbered 745 and the involuntary 1,330.

"Out of a total of more than 2,000 proceedings in this district closed in 1923," said Mr. Siegel, "64 per cent. were involuntary in form, but the fact was that the great majority of these so-called involuntary proceedings were in fact voluntary. During the period in which the law of 1898 has been in force there have been approximately 36,400 bankruptcy proceedings in this district. In 18,200 of these cases discharges were not granted."

In reference to the efforts of many lawyers and others to make the bankruptcy law more effective, Mr. Siegel recalled the recommendation by the Merchants and Bar Associations that in districts containing a city having a population of 500,000 or more official receivers should be appointed in cases where the assets did not exceed $10,000.

Receiver Also the Trustee.

"A rather pretentious program was arranged whereby the official receiver was to continue as the trustee where the assets were below that amount," Mr. Siegel said, "and he might even be named trustee where the assets exceeded that amount, if the creditors so desired. The official receiver was to receive a compensation of $7,500 a year, he was to have stenographers and clerks, &c. The usual fees paid to receivers and to trustees where the receiver was also appointed trustee were to be paid into the United States Treasury, and the plan was so carefully worked out that the salaries of official receivers and the stenographers, accountants and clerks they were to have would practically have been borne by the moneys which would have been received by the official receivers.

"It is to be regretted that this plan was thrown overboard, especially when it is realized that during the year ended June 30, 1923, in the Southern District of New York of the 1,065 ordinary bankruptcies (as distinguished from compositions) 1,005 (over 94 per cent.) had gross assets under $10,000.

"Of the 1,005 cases under $10,000, 137 had no assets at all; in 368 cases the gross assets were nominal; in the remaining 500 cases the gross assets averaged $1,587. In all of the 1,005 cases under $10,000 the gross assets averaged $796.81.

"In 712 (about 70 per cent.) of these 1,065 cases no dividends at all were paid.

"The appointment of official receivers would have saved thousands of dollars to the creditors. The criticism that this plan would involve the bench in the administration of too much patronage is not tenable, and this was the reason which seems to have been advanced against the appointment of the official receivers."

Poles to Resume German Parley.

WARSAW, July 18 (AP).—Poland will resume negotiations with Germany tomorrow for a commercial treaty. It is expected here that an agreement will be reached at this time after several unsuccessful efforts, thus putting an end to the economic warfare which has lasted for a year. The Polish Government is persuaded that Germany has come to the conclusion that an economic warfare does not affect the economic position of Poland, which easily located its raw materials outside of Germany.

COMMODITY PRICES.

The vigorous upswing which occurred in the contract grain markets, and which influenced higher prices for the cash article, proved the chief feature of last week's trading. Improvement was found in corn, rye and oats, while in wheat the price of the new crop position was affected by a narrower spread, which resulted in a net loss between old and new, but compared with the week's first price there was a good size recovery at the close.

Cotton was another to stage a sharp snapback, middling uplands recovering to 18.55 cents, after touching 17.85 cents, the year's lowest, on Monday. Metals as a group displayed the first signs of a healthy state of the market encountered in more than a month. Lead, copper, zinc and tin all shot forward. Lard was weak, the dairy products firm, and the groceries irregular. The miscellaneous articles were generally steady.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE RATES.

The most interesting development in last week's foreign exchange market, and one which may have its influence on others for the cure which followed the cause, was the steady progress which the Belgian franc made on the Government's decision to invest King Albert with dictatorial powers in the rehabilitation of Belgium's finances. From a record low of 2.07½ cents, made on Monday, the rate subsequently forged steadily ahead to 2.44½ on Saturday, a gain of ⅝-cent on the week, and of ¼-cent over the final in the preceding week.

Bankers interpreted this as a most substantial response to the new proposal, and forecast a gain fully as commensurate in the French and Italian descriptions were these Governments to adopt the same course.

With the French franc, pressure against this bill chiefly of a foreign origin accounted for a new low at 2.34¾ cents. Except for a closing up of the "short" position at the weekend, the franc failed to develop anything resembling a spurt at any time. Italian lire were also lower, and barely escaped going into new low ground. Here, the decline was less drastic and on the week revealed a loss of 7 points, at 3.40¼ cents.

Sterling remained firm and within a narrow groove throughout, closing up on the week a small fraction at $4.86⅛. Holland, Swiss, Spanish and the Scandinavians were quiet and virtually unchanged. The collapse of the Chinese speculators' campaign against the Japanese yen brought the latter up sharply at the close, while the Chinese currencies sagged. South Americans were dull, but steady.

COURT ORDER STOPS MINE STOCK'S SALE

CHARGES OF FRAUD MADE

"Wash" Sales on Boston Curb Said to Be Admitted—Hearing Set for Thursday.

Prompted by disclosures in the books of the Great Del Norte Mining Corporation of Colorado and statements of its Treasurer, Neil H. Strome, of 1,320 Riverside Drive, Deputy Attorney General Oliver James has obtained from Supreme Court Justice Mitchell May a preliminary injunction enjoining sale of the stocks and bonds of the company, whose offices are at 280 Madison Avenue.

The injunction was issued on the ground of fradulent practices, and an order to show cause why it should not be made permanent and a receiver appointed, was made returnable on next Thursday.

Henry B. Bintliff, Secretary, and Louis R. Jordan, a salesman of the company, are still to be served.

Attorney General Albert Ottinger who has been investigating the company for some weeks, yesterday in announcing the injunction proceedings said that Treasurer Strome had admitted that $11,000 had been spent for "wash" sales on the Boston Curb Market, which had resulted in the sale of stock amounting to $12,690 and bonds valued at $16,600.

"This is a typical instance," said Keyes Winter, Deputy Attorney General at the head of the Fraud Bureau, "of a class of fraud that is being worked on the citizens of this State by means of 'washing' sales on the Boston Curb. Practically worthless stocks are listed on that exchange at fictitious prices. Sales of stocks are then washed between Curb brokers in large amounts at rising prices. A feverish demand for the stocks is created, and the public is lured into the market. The promoters unload at the high prices.

"In one swindle, that of the Home Deposit Company, fifteen or twenty corporations were openly solicited to list their stock on the Boston Curb for this purpose.

"The treasurer of the Great Del Norte Company made no secret of his concern having engaged in the practice. Claims were made for the Great Del Norte that the purchase of its stocks and bonds was a safe investment for widows and conservative investors. They could not lose on the bonds, it was urged, as they were insured. We found that the company had paid only $4,000 on its premium of $28,000, and could not turn over the policy to the bond trustees. There was no security whatever. They weren't shipping ore; they had no mine—only a lease and bond."

All but one reported higher net earnings than in 1925.

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Elimination by mutual consent of unfair practices which may now prevail in the butter, egg, cheese and poultry industries west of the Rocky Mountains will be sought at a conference which will open in San Francisco, Aug. 2, under auspices of the Federal Trade Commission.

Commissioner Houston Thompson will preside, assisted by M. M. Flannery, Director of the Commission's New Trade Practice Conference Division.

Various firms have already been asked to submit descriptions "of methods by which unfair advantages over competitors are sought or secured" but no names of persons or firms are to be included in these statements. The commission plans to list these practices and use the list to guide the general discussion at San Francisco without going into the question of who has been guilty of using such means of getting business.

U. S. Steel's Bookings Analyzed.

PITTSBURGH, July 18.—The statement that the Steel Corporation's bookings in the fore part of this month run above those in the same part of June is not as conclusive as would be a comparison with the immediately preceding period, the latter part of June, for it is well known that bookings increased during June. While steel buying has shown a general upward trend since the middle of April, at no time has it equaled shipments, and the old business, which fills the gap, has now decreased to rather small proportions. Large monthly decreases in unified tonnage are no longer possible, but increases are doubtful. Rail buying for the new year, which may easily come in September, would help to bring about an increase, but such an increase would not betoken an immediate increase in mill operations.

TO PAY ON BONDS.

Detroit United Railways Protective Committee Issues Notice.

The Protective Committee for first mortgage and collateral trust sinking fund five-year 6 per cent. bonds of the Detroit United Railways has issued notice that under a court order the Central Union Trust Company will pay as of Aug. 1 on and after Aug. 2 from funds held as trustee 18½ per cent. of the principal amount of bonds presented. Holders of certificates of deposit issued under the bondholders' protective agreement dated Nov. 2, 1925, are entitled to receive this payment on and after the date specified.

The committee reports progress in negotiations with security holders of subsidiaries for a system reorganization, but say that it is evident no satisfactory reorganization can be effected this Summer. They urge holders of undeposited bonds to deposit their securities with the Central Union Trust Company on or before Aug. 14, when the right to make these deposits expires.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Hogs are off 25 cents to 40 cents in the last two weeks, with packing grades leading the decline. Heavy beef steers are 10 cents to 25 cents lower in a week, with the top $10.25. Yearlings are off 25 cents, with the top $10.50, and the in-between grades of grassy stocks have declined 75 cents, selling at $7.50 to $8.50. The range was $5 to $7, depending upon condition and quality, with best weights bringing more. Chicago received 62,300 cattle last week, the largest in three months, 9,000 more than the previous week and almost 10,000 in excess of last year.

The average price of hogs for the week was $12.85, a drop of 45 cents for the week and of $1.80 as compared with a year ago. The top of the week was $14.75 and at the close it was $14.50. The average weight of 259 pounds was the heaviest in recent years, as compared with 243 pounds last year.

Lambs have declined 40 to 50 cents in a week and 70 cents to $1 in two weeks. Last week's average was $13.90, a drop of 65 cents from the previous week and $1.10 from last year. Feeding lambs sold at $14.25 early, but that price was shaded later.

Sheep values held steady all week, with an average of $5.75, the same as the previous week and $1.25 under last year.

Arrivals of sheep at Chicago for the week of 64,500 increased almost 4,000 for the week and decreased 500 from last year. Estimates for this week are 60,000, against 53,631 last year. Hogs are being marketed at less than an average rate, with arrivals for the week of 112,000, or 15,000 less than last year and compared with 203,000 two years ago. Estimated for this week are 110,000, against receipts of 104,000 last year.

COPPER PRODUCERS SOUND TRADE BOARD

FILING OF DATA AWAITED

Permission to Function Depends on Compliance With the Webb-Pomerene Act.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Plans for the formation by leading copper producers of America of a copper export association, with wide international affiliations, under the authority of the so-called Webb-Pomerene Export Trade Promotion act, have been informally presented to the Federal Trade Commission, which, under the law, must consider all such applications, and can either approve or reject.

The precise scope and character of the association proposed by the copper interests could not be ascertained tonight, but it was stated by one of the only two members of the Federal Trade Commission now in Washington that the matter is not now officially pending before that body, since formal application to organize has not yet been made and no written statement filed as required by law.

In a general way the plans and purposes of those contemplating the formation of the copper export association were brought to the attention of the Federal Trade Commission some weeks ago by A. C. Brownell, to whom was granted an informal hearing behind closed doors, during which he explained the desire of the copper interests for which he spoke to take advantage of the provisions of the Webb-Pomerene act of April 19, 1918.

That act vests the commission with wide powers over export associations formed under its authorization, and Mr. Brownell told members of the commission that the proposed association would strictly observe the requirements and limitations of that law.

He was informed by members of the commission that if the association were formed strictly in accordance with the law, and that if the papers and documents when filed were satisfactory, the application would be approved, but that the commission would have to satisfy itself that the proposed association kept entirely within the bounds fixed by the Webb-Pomerene law for such export associations.

Within thirty days after its creation the proposed Copper Export Association would be required by the Webb-Pomerene act to file with the Trade Commission a verified written statement setting forth the location of its offices or places of business, the names and addresses of all its officers, stockholders or members, and, if a corporation, a copy of its certificate of articles of incorporation and by-laws, and, if unincorporated, a copy of its articles of contract of association.

None of these papers have been filed, and until they are the proposed association will not be allowed to function. After these documents have been filed, the commission, it was stated tonight, will carefully scrutinize them and determine whether it will grant the application to organize.

Action by the commission must be by majority vote, a quorum of the five members of the commission being present. No such quorum can now be obtained, as three of the Commissioners are in the West, and only two, Commissioners Van Fleet and Hunt, are now in Washington.

Must Furnish Organization Facts.

The Trade Commission has power under the Webb-Pomerene act to "require" the proposed export association to furnish information as to the association's organization, business, conduct, practices, management and its relation to other associations, corporations, partnerships and individuals, and any association failing to do so is not entitled to have the benefit of the provisions of Sections 2 and 3 of the act and must make a forfeiture to the United States for each day of the continuance of such failure.

Section 2 of the act is the one which provides that an association wholly for export is not a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust act.

Section 3 of the act allows ownership in similar associations, by providing that nothing in Section 7 of the Anti-Trust act of Oct. 14, 1914, shall be construed to forbid the acquisition or ownership by any corporation organized solely for the purpose of engaging in export trade, and actually solely engaged in such export trade, "unless the effect of such acquisition or ownership may be to restrain trade or substantially lessen competition within the United States."

The proposed copper export association would be equally bound with all other export associations to observe this feature of the law.

So far as prices of copper in the United States are concerned, as affected by the proposed export association, it was pointed out tonight that the Webb-Pomerene act provides that such export association shall not "either in the United States or elsewhere, enter into any agreement, understanding, or conspiracy, or do any act which artificially or intentionally enhances or depresses prices within the United States of commodities of the class exported by such associations, or which substantially lessens competition within the United States or otherwise restrains trade therein."

TO MAKE PLEA FOR MORSE.

Son Coming Here in Effort to Save Father From Court Appearance.

BATH, Me., July 18 (AP).—Harry F. Morse left tonight for New York to urge clemency for his father, Charles W. Morse, aged financier, who is ill at his home here. Before leaving he announced that he would confer tomorrow with his father's counsel, Judge Nash Rockwood, relative to an order issued last Thursday by Federal Judge Holmes, that the elder Morse present himself in New York next Thursday to plead to a five-year-old indictment charging use of the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Harry Morse and his brother, Edwin, who came here on Friday to attend the funeral of their stepmother, Mrs. Clemence Cowles Dodge Morse, said they would seek a personal interview with Judge Holmes to describe their father's physical and mental condition. They said a stroke of paralysis which he suffered in New York in March, 1925, and a serious illness last Fall, had left him in such a shattered condition that he was incapable of realizing the nature of the court proceedings entered against him.

In the old indictment Charles W. Morse and others were charged with fraudulent use of the mails in the sale of steamship stock.

EASTERN SHIPMENTS DROP

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—More than 2,314,000 tons of cargo were carried by American ships engaged in the intercoastal trade in the first quarter of 1926—that is, the portion of our domestic coastwise trade passing through the Panama Canal—according to a statement issued tonight by the Shipping Board, an increase of nearly 220,000 tons over the same period in 1925. It also exceeded the total volume of tonnage moved in the intercoastal trade in any other quarter of 1925.

Increased shipment of Pacific Coast products to the Atlantic and Gulf coasts is wholly responsible for the advance in the total, the volume of eastbound cargo tonnage, 1,840,000 tons, being 320,000 tons in excess of the similar movement in the first quarter of 1925, while the west-bound traffic from the Atlantic and Gulf coasts to Pacific Coast destinations was 100,000 tons less than in the same period of the previous year.

California oil shipments increased 160,000 tons to a total of 1,055,000 tons, but the volume of other California products fell from 184,000 tons in the first quarter of 1925 to 181,000 tons in the first quarter of 1926. Oregon's intercoastal shipments advanced from 99,000 in 1925 to 133,000 tons in 1926 and the volume of Washington State products aggregated 471,000 tons in 1926 as against 343,000 tons in 1925.

The North Atlantic district absorbed more than the entire increase in California oil cargo tonnage, as the receipts of oil in that district in the first quarter of 1926 reached a total of 1,038,000 tons, an increase of more than 228,000 tons over the first quarter of the previous year, while the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, which absorbed more than 84,000 tons of California oil in the first quarter of 1925 received less than 17,000 tons of that product in the first quarter of 1926.

North Atlantic district receipts of West Coast products other than oil advanced from 587,000 tons in the first quarter of 1925 to 702,000 tons in the first quarter of 1926. The South Atlantic district inbound intercoastal cargo tonnage other than oil was 15,000 tons in 1925 and 22,000 tons in 1926. The Gulf district received 60,000 tons of west coast products other than oil in the first quarter of 1926, as against 23,000 tons in the same period of 1925.

North Atlantic district westbound shipments in the first quarter of 1926 were 78,000 tons less than in the previous year, the 1925 and 1926 figures being 476,000 tons and 398,000 tons, respectively. South Atlantic westbound shipments fell from 13,000 tons in 1925 to 9,000 tons in 1926, and Gulf district westbound totals for the first quarters of 1925 and 1926 respectively were 85,000 tons and 66,000 tons.

VIENNA SEES PARADE OF 33,000 GYMNASTS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 18.—The Pan-German Gymnast Festival of Vienna closed today, the parade taking three hours to pass the Ring. Intended as a homecoming celebration and a demonstration in favor of union between Austria and Germany, it spontaneously developed a more solemn atmosphere. The appearance of German delegations from all the lost provinces of the Austrian Empire awakened memories of the good old days and revived war griefs, causing many of the spectators to weep, centring thoughts generally on past calamities rather than on future hopes of union, which the presence of a large number of the marchers from Germany was considered to represent.

The paraders carried a thousand Austrian and German flags, most of the latter being the republican colors, although the old Imperial German emblem was much in evidence. In contrast with the Socialist parade last Sunday, in which none of the pan-German military organizations marched, the parade was entirely composed of gymnasts, a total of 33,000, a third being girls. It was considerably smaller than the Socialist demonstration.

The demonstration coincides with the fiftieth birthday of ex-Chancellor Seipel. The press, excepting the Socialist papers, unanimously regrets his continued absence on his American trip, preventing demonstrations in his honor today. The papers pay a warm tribute to Seipel's part in the reconstruction of Austria, treating him as a hitherto unappreciated prophet in his own country.

The dark inflation days of 1922, when Seipel took the helm, are contrasted with today's news that the national bank of issue has just purchased 17,000,000 shillings gold in London for a metallic reserve. It is agreed on every hand that Seipel's political influence has recently grown much stronger, and his return is awaited as that of "the only man able to settle the present internal dissentions in his party and the difficulties of the country."

WOULD CURB WASTE IN PUBLIC INQUIRIES

CONGRESSMAN IS QUOTED

M. B. Madden Says Coal Investigation Lasted Ten Years and Was Barren of Results.

TRENTON, N. J., July 18.—A movement for reform of the abuse of legislative investigations which squander public money and public and private time has been initiated by the Manufacturers' Association of New Jersey, it was announced here today. In an effort to arouse public opinion to the growing extent of the abuse, J. Philip Bird, President of the association, has invited the cooperation of manufacturers' associations in every State in the Union.

In support of his belief that there is a well-defined opinion in Congress itself that these investigations have become an evil, Mr. Bird refers to an article on "The High Cost of Investigating," by Martin B. Madden of Illinois, Chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, in The Nation's Business. Mr. Madden supports the views expressed by Mr. Bird in his annual address to the association last April. In his condemnation of the waste of legislative investigations Mr. Madden cites the Congressional coal inquiry, which lasted through four sessions of Congress, from April, 1913, to March, 1923; in which seventeen hearings were held on coal, nine by six Senate committees and eight by four House committees. More than 11,000 printed pages, five or six million words, of testimony were taken, and the coal situation is where it was when the inquiry began in 1913. Mr. Madden adds that this investigation is only one of a great many which have been no more resultful.

The association says that Senate inquiries and investigations have cost nearly $1,500,000 since 1910, according to a survey recently made by Senator Warren, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Appropriations. He estimated that $275,000 would be required for the current fiscal year. The annual reports of the Public Printer show that hearings of Congress printed in the fiscal year 1922 cost $122,740; in 1923, $65,346, and in 1924, $226,530, for a total of 52,619 pages.

Costs of these investigations are not limited to the expenditures for stenography, printing and the expenses of witnesses, for Representative Madden calls attention to the time consumed by them, requiring the attendance of busy men from all parts of the United States, often calling them back the next year to go over much the same ground.

WORK FOR BRIDGE STARTED.

Approach Being Dug for Span From Glen Island.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, July 18.—Construction operations are now being pushed by the Westchester County Park Commission on the approach to the proposed bridge for connecting Glen Island to the mainland. The bridge approach boulevard will extend on a direct line through the Keogh property and Neptune Park to the shore of New Rochelle Creek at a point south of the Government dock.

The necessary right-of-way through the Keogh property was acquired by the park commission some time ago. A contract for the excavation and grading work on the approach was award to Louis J. Seiling of Red Bank, N. J. This work involves stripping 2,000 cubic yards of top soil, 3,300 cubic yards of excavation and 20,000 cubic yards of embankment fill. The amount of the contractor's bid was $42,580.

To Standardize Ribbon Widths.

FIRE VICTIMS TO HAVE COMMON SERVICES

HAINES FALLS, N. Y., July 18 (AP).—Plans for common services and common burial for the thirteen dead remaining unidentified after the fire which destroyed Twilight Inn early Wednesday morning were completed here today. Details of the plans, calling for both Roman Catholic and Protestant services, were announced by W. C. Hanabergh, assistant manager of the inn.

Of the nineteen known dead, one, Mrs. Frederick Backus of Forest Hills, L. I., died in the Tannersville emergency Red Cross Hospital. Only five of the bodies taken from the fire ruins have been identified. They are:

Mrs. Cornelius P. Erkenbrecker, 79, Orange, N. J.

Mrs. Henrietta Ficken, 78, Brooklyn.

William de Armond, 5, New York City, grandson of Mrs. Isabella Brooks, 45, pantry-woman, missing.

The first of the two common services will be conducted tomorrow at 7 A. M., when there will be celebrated a solemn requiem high mass at St. Mary's Church, Haines Falls.

The Protestant ceremony will take place in the Haines Falls cemetery, 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

But Father, Having Heard It Eight Times, Is Staggered by "It's Twins."

By this time Michael Adesso, 54 years old, of 715 Patterson Plank Road, North Bergen, has become used to the announcement of the nurse or physician, "It's a girl."

Eight times in thirteen years he had heard the news, but it was varied in one particular on Saturday when he waited in the North Hudson Hospital in Weehawken.

"It's twins," said the nurse. "Girls."

Michael, the proprietor of a two-chair barbarshop, displayed admirable fortitude, although he expressed the hope that his wife, Elisa, would not remain in the hospital for long, because it was no joke to take care of the eight girls remaining at home. They range in age from 13 years to 16 months. The new arrivals have been named Carmelina and Nicolina.

POLICEMAN STOPS BOXERS.

Abraham Pearson, 17 years old, of 1,928 Second Avenue and Samuel Garin, also 17, of 311 East 102d Street, saw the Delaney-Berlenbach championship fight the other evening. Yesterday they took their boxing gloves to Central Park to try some of the punches they had witnessed. A crowd of fans quickly gathered, shouting encouragement and friendly jibes. Suddenly there was silence as if a hawk had lighted in a group of chirping sparrows. Sergeant John Quinn of the Arsenal Station stepped from his Ford and arrested the pugilists on a charge of disturbing the peace.

AUTUMN COAT DESIGNS.

Types of Those Designed for Afternoon and Evening Wear.

The steady rise of the fur-lined cloth coat in both moderate and high-priced merchandise is a significant trend of the early Fall season, as revealed in the preferences of leading designers, according to the bulletin issued yesterday by the fashion service department of Botany Worsted Mills.

"With this development another change appears," the bulletin says, "notably the use of sleek furs, hitherto allotted to sports apparel, in afternoon coats and ensembles of the most formal character, in conjunction with broadcloths and zibelines. The two-scarf embellishment of the suave and wrappy coat in duvetyns and suede cloths has been accepted as a conservative choice.

"The early general approval bestowed upon the cape-coat in luxurious afternoon and evening modes has again lifted that silhouette to a position of undisputed importance. The velvet lining of these wraps, established last season, is the preferred texture in self-tone or contrasted handling in garments of sumptuous peltry and the superb new metal brocades alike.

"The fate of the dolman and the extreme versions of the blouse back, however, remains a disputed point. With creators of the evening wrap, no doubt whatever is expressed as to its style value, inasmuch as dolman lines have been employed for decades in luxurious evening modes and because of their easily adjusted lines are actually preferable to the straight contour.

"In the manipulation of lines for the afternoon coat designers are engaged in reducing the fulness without loss of the actual blouse expression. Applied motifs, which are profiled from the lower half of the back to the upper section, not only eliminate the undesired bulk, but actually create geometric or floral designs of great ingenuity and smartness. It is believed that this method has brought about the best results so far determined upon as the Americanized version of the blouse coat treatment."

OLD ASTOR MANSION A TRADESOOTHSAYER

BIG RISKS FOR WRECKERS

Recent wrecking of the Astor mansion, the Hotel Netherlands and the Madison Square Garden brought out interesting information regarding the salvaging of building materials for use in lowering the cost of new buildings, writes Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

In these three jobs three different kinds of brick laying was done. In the Madison Square Garden construction the contractor used cement mortar, probably laid up in natural cement, which was the kind of cement in vogue when the Brooklyn Bridge was erected and which was used in the construction of its towers. The brick was laid up dry. Probably the same kind of mortar was used in the erection of the Hotel Netherlands, with the exception that the brick were very evidently wet thoroughly before they were laid up in mortar. The Astor mansion job was evidently done in lime mortar—and here hangs a tale.

It seems that on each of these jobs the wreckers had a particularly hard job of it, each of the structures having been of especially high grade construction, good materials were used and the work was done with great care to insure a first class job.

When a wrecker takes a structure for purposes of demolishing it, he figures on getting enough out of the salvaging of materials of one sort or another to make his profit. The element of chance is very great. The winnings are high and the losings are painfully low. But whether the contractor in each of these cases profited or not, the conditions developed by each of these building destruction jobs brings out the question as to how much longer will building destruction be conducted on a basis where the wrecker is willing to take such long chances.

One thing that will determine the continuance of the present system of awarding contracts for clearing sites of proposed new buildings, is the marketability of the common brick they retrieve out of the building.

In the days before the war it was a rare thing to see a truck load of building trash headed for the dumps or refuse barges with great chunks of brick wall on them, to all intents and purposes as firmly knit together as rock. They tell a mute story as to whether the building that is being destroyed is of comparatively recent origin or whether it was erected before the days when Portland cement was displaced lime mortar and natural cement as mortar material. When the bulk of the buildings to be destroyed reveal Portland cement mortar content between the joints of a brick wall, that is the time that wreckers will demand a different process of payment, because it is rare that a wall laid up in Portland cement mortar can be broken up, the brick cleaned and re-sold at a profit to jobs requiring second-hand brick.

Inventors are at work now trying to find a way by which machinery can break up these chunks of brick and cement wall and mechanically clean the brick. One of these machines were recently experimented with in the destruction of a large brick hotel at Lakewood and, according to the engineers in charge, Lowery & Grant of this city, the device easily cleaned 24,000 common brick a day with lime mortar, and with cement mortar brick, that could be broken up at all, three to five thousand brick were 95 per cent. cleaned in a day.

The wreckers themselves are evidently the least concerned about the development of mechanical means of cleaning brick. With common brick retailing fresh from the Hudson or Raritan river kilns for $20.40 to $22.40 per thousand on the job in New York City, it pays the second-hand brick seller to hire men to sit on a brick pile day after day and bat off the chunks of lime mortar with an old rasp. It is too slow a process to try to chop off chunks of Portland cement mortar. There are those who say that if the price of common brick ever drops in New York the beginning of the end of the second hand common brick may be expected. Common brick importers are studying this possibility and they expect to fill in the breach in New York City when the bulk of the buildings to be erected are not of the cement-mortar variety.

I was more than pleased with the number and quality of men who joined the organization following my announcement last week that new positions were open.

WARNING OF RABIES ISSUED.

Health Department Tells Doctors to Inoculate Any One Bitten.

Unusual prevalence of rabies has led the Department of Health to issue a warning for "physicians, veterinarians and dog lovers" to be on the lookout for the disease. Physicians are advised to give a bitten individual the benefit of doubt and to administer prophylactic anti-rabic treatment in every instance.

The Bureau of Laboratories of the department reports that a larger number of dogs was submitted for rabies examination during the first six months of this year than during the same period last year and that a larger proportion of dogs were found to have rabies. In 1925, from January to July only 152 dogs were submitted. Of these twenty-five had rabies. This year up to July 1 395 dogs were examined and 200 had rabies.

In view of the muzzling law, the health authorities do not fear a plague of rabies such as has troubled Soviet Moscow. A news dispatch said 10,000 cases were reported there in the first five months of 1926 and that the year's total for Russia was predicted as likely to pass 100,000.

OFFER $50,000 PRIZES FOR TWO BEST NOVELS

Backers of Contest Say Plan Is to Find Whether Men or Women Are the Better Writers.

A $50,000 prize contest to determine whether men or women are the better novelists was announced yesterday by the John Day Company, publishers, and the Woman's Home Companion. A prize of $25,000 will be given for the best novel written by a man and another prize of $25,000 for the best novel written by a woman. There will be four judges, two men and two women, chosen by the Woman's Home Companion, the John Day Company, the Author's League of America and the American branch of the international club of writers, "P. E. N."

The announcement of the contest says the only restrictions are that the novels be written in English and be of average novel length. The manuscripts will go anonymously to the judges. The prizes are to be only for the American serial and book rights, the authors retaining all other rights such as motion picture, dramatic, second serial and translation. The successful authors also will receive additional book royalties, it is announced, and manuscripts not winning prizes but deemed worthy of publication may be accepted on terms agreed upon between the authors and publishers.

4 MISSING IN FOREST FIRES.

Ranch Houses and School Are Destroyed Near Redding, Cal.

REDDING, Cal., July 18 (AP).—Fanned by high winds, forest fires that broke out yesterday near Redding, at the foot of Lassen Peak, spread a trail of devastation today. Many hundred acres of grazing land was burned over and several ranch houses and a schoolhouse were destroyed. A hundred men left this town yesterday to fight the fires, which endangered scores of homes. Fears were felt for the safety of four men who had not been located tonight after disappearing into the fire zone last night. Their comrades reported them hemmed in by the fires when they were last seen.

Dense smoke clouds hung over the fire-swept region. Three other fires were burning near Lassen Peak, the only active volcano in the United States.

Reports from the State of Washington said a hundred men were battling a fire in the Clear Lake region of Skagit County, which covered 2,000 acres of logged-off land. The Washington Forest Fire Association announced that the situation in that State as a whole was normal.

BRIGHT COLORS FOR ENGINES

Southern Railway Adopts Green and Gold for New Locomotives.

SPENCER, N. C., July 18.—Displacing the black which has been the color for locomotives on American railways, the Southern Railway System has adopted a color scheme of green, gold and burnished steel for twenty-three heavy Pacific type passenger engines, now being received from the Richmond plant of the American Locomotive Company.

These engines have tenders, cabs, smokestacks and other projections above the boiler jackets, drivers and other wheels painted a rich dark green with gold-leaf striping. The boiler jackets, driving rods and other running parts are highly polished. Four, to run between Washington and Atlanta, have their tenders lettered "Crescent Limited," and three, to run between Chattanooga and Meridian, "Queen and Crescent Limited."

Worcester Bandits Appear Again.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 18 (AP).—Armed and masked automobile bandits made their second appearance in six days here early today when three men held up and robbed James L. Hamilton and a young woman companion on May Street near Beaverbrook. The bandits took $10 from Hamilton and were about to search him for valuables when frightened off by the approach of another automobile.

COMPLAINS OF ZIONISTS.

Head of United Jewish Campaign Says They Asked Guarantee.

In his second statement on the subject in two weeks David A. Brown, national Chairman of the $15,000,000 United Jewish Campaign, asserted yesterday that Zionist ill-feeling toward the enterprise of which he is the head began when he and Felix M. Warburg refused to guarantee whatever deficit the $3,000,000 Palestine Foundation Fund might incur because of the campaign for Jewish relief in Central and Eastern Europe.

Mr. Brown said Zionist leaders, whom he did not name, had asked Mr. Warburg to make a secret agreement with the Palestine Fund for the guarantee. He continued:

"Both Mr. Warburg and I attempted to show them, first, the impossibility of our making any secret agreement; second, that they were underestimating the giving possibilities and the generous impulses of the Jews of America."

Mr. Brown finally deplored the Zionist attacks upon him and said "the strategy of the Zionist leaders was a great mistake and has been tragic in its consequences."

SIGHTSEERS STORM RUINED NAVY DEPOT

AUTO PARTIES TURNED AWAY

Marine Sentries at Arsenal Gates Stop the Curious—Inquiries Will Continue Today.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., July 18.—The extent of the destruction at the naval ammunition depot at Lake Denmark and the War Department's munition storehouses at Picatinny Lake caused by the fire and subsequent explosions of the greater part of the naval magazines was realized by hundreds of persons today when two special trains, filled with sightseers, were run through the Government reservations over the Wharton & Northern Railroad.

The roads through Dover, Wharton and surrounding towns and villages were jammed with automobile parties, all bound for the scene of the explosion where more than a score of persons lost their lives and more than $50,000,000 damage was done to Government property. None of the machines was allowed in the reservation by a marine guard at the gate of the arsenal.

Captain Roe R. Adams, U. S. N., in charge of the navy reservation, with the cooperation of Colonel Rhea, in command of the battalion of marines, and Major Norman F. Ramsay, commandant of the army arsenal, arranged the train tour. Seven coaches, all crowded, were sent on two trips in the afternoon. Marine guards stationed at the entrances to each coach prevented any one from getting off, and strict orders were issued to prevent any person from taking pieces of exploded shells or other relics of the explosion as souvenirs.

Members of the Naval Court of Inquiry, headed by Rear Admiral R. E. Coontz, spent the day at the Arrowhead Inn going over the transcripts of the testimony given at the inquiry in the last two days. The court will resume its sessions tomorrow morning, when Henry Skews, the engineer who was on duty at the power house at the time of the explosion, will be the first witness. Paymaster Jones will be called to give an estimate of the destruction to Government property and Dr. McDowell will be asked to report on the personal injuries to naval personnel and civilian employes.

The court will hold its sessions tomorrow and Tuesday at the quarters of Captain Otto C. Dowling, U. S. N., commandant of the depot when the explosion took place. The hearings on Wednesday and Thursday will be shifted to New York to the headquarters of the Third Naval District, so that Captain and Mrs. Dowling and marines who are now in the Brooklyn Naval Hospital can testify. On Friday experts will be called to Dover to testify.

The Board of Investigation headed by Rear Admiral Harris will continue its task of receiving claims of civilians, and the army board will resume its sittings at the Picatinny arsenal, checking up the damage on the army reservation.

COOLIDGE STIRRED BY BLAST.

Will Confer With Secretary Davis on Change of Antiquated Methods.

Special to The New York Times.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 18.—President Coolidge is represented as impressed with the charges that antiquated methods were responsible for the explosion at the naval depot, Lake Denmark, N. J. Secretary Davis is expected to confer with him on this problem and the proposal of the War Department to locate a new munitions depot.

The explosion also brings to the fore the strength of the Government air force and its ability to defend the munitions plants and depots from attack in war time. The decision is expected to lead to important developments and perhaps will induce the War Department to favor Ogden, Utah, as the site for a new army munitions depot.

Secretary Davis, who is making an inspection tour of Summer military camps and is due at the Plattsburg camp on Monday, has been invited by the President to spend tomorrow night at White Pine Camp. Mr. Davis will be the first Cabinet member to call at the Summer White House.

TO ADDRESS POLICE CHIEFS.

Dawes and Hoover Are on the Program of Chicago Meeting.

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP).—Vice President Charles G. Dawes and Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, will address the International Association of Chiefs of Police which convenes here tomorrow.

Secretary Hoover will deal with traffic regulations. Addresses will be made by F. Trubee Davison, Chairman of the National Crime Commission, New York; Colonel Cortlandt Starnes, Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Ottawa; Colonel A. W. Barber, Director of Street and Highway Safety, Washington, D. C., and others.

The identification of criminals, juvenile delinquents, extradition proceedings, paroles and the work of police women are among problems which the convention will handle.

"Sunny side up" . . .

That charming expression which one hears so often in the less pretentious eating places of our republic simply refers to eggs fried only on one side.

Expressions differ widely, but the word "fresh" seems to satisfy everybody. Borden's eggs are so fresh that they more than satisfy. Order by telephone or from the wagon.

Second Truck Driver (not afraid to speak the truth):

You said a mouthful, Bill. You see, I sort of neglected to fill up with Socony this morning when I left Worcester and I tried a different gas. Never again. Give me Socony every time for power and pull on the long hills.
